REPORT.

THE delay in the appearance of volume viii. is due to causes which the Council regret but for which they are not responsible. Some time after the transcripts of these cartularies should have gone to the printers, Mr. J. Batten, who was to have edited the volume, found it necessary to inform the Secretary that the infirmities of age compelled him to withdraw from the work. The loss to the Society due to this was very great, for Mr. Batten had long made a study of the histories of Bruton and Montacute, and his intimate knowledge of the localities made him a sure guide in the identification of places mentioned in the cartularies. But the work could not be withdrawn at that too late a date. The Council therefore entrusted the Secretary with the task of seeing it through the press, and Mr. Maxwell Lyte and Bishop Hobhouse came to his assistance as far as possible. Bishop Hobhouse had seen the Bruton Cartulary and knew the district well. To Mr. Maxwell Lyte are due the notes on the charters and the list of priors of Montacute. The Rev. F. W. Weaver wrote the account of the fate of the Bruton canons and the Montacute monks. The index, in which will be found the identification of the places, is due to a lady in the County whose first effort, so full of promise, deserves the gratitude of all the members of the Society. The imperfections are due to the Honorary Secretary who was called upon to undertake in the midst of many other engagements a task for which he had no previous special knowledge.

The next two volumes will contain the Register of Bishop Ralph of Shrewsbury, Bishop of Bath and Wells 1329 to 1363, and it is hoped that they will both appear very shortly. They are edited by the Honorary Secretary. In 1897 it is proposed to issue a volume of early Somerset Assize Rolls of which Mr. C. E. Chadwick-Healey, Q.C., will be the editor.

The number of the subscribers to the Society remains about the same. During the last year we have to record the loss of one, the late Bishop of Bath and Wells, whose interest in the work of the Society was very great and to whom we are greatly indebted for the part he took in obtaining the loan of Bishop Ralph's Register. It is hoped that the work already accomplished and the work that yet remains to be accomplished will obtain for the Society greater assistance from the County in the future.

Introduction.

BRUTON BEFORE THE CONQUEST.

THE eastern border of the county of Somerset possesses certain interesting features, of which the old settlement of Bruton in no small degree partakes. The low rich plains of Somerset were divided from the cold wind-swept uplands of Wiltshire by a long strip of forest land which ran down from North Wiltshire as far as the upper waters of the Dorset Stour and Cale. The northern and southern limits of this district are still known as the forests of Braden and Selwood, and from these higher districts issued forth the streams of the Avon, Frome, Brue, Cary, Cale, and Stour. When the West Saxons under Cerdic landed in Hampshire, they seem to have meditated an advance westward across the river Stour, but their defeat by the British in 520 at Badbury Rings compelled them to turn northward towards Sarum and Ambresbury. After a time they advanced through Wiltshire westward and came to the eastern border of this forest district. This they avoided by going northward past Swindon and Cricklade and first turned westward to the uplands of the south-east of Gloucestershire and then south towards Somerset. At Deorham they defeated under the leadership of Ceawlin in 577 the three British kings Conmail, Condidan and Farinmael and took the cities of Gloucester, Cirencester and Bath. By this victory the West Saxons became possessed of North Somerset as far probably as the southern slopes of the Mendips. But they did not venture as yet into the forest district between Bath and Devizes. For seventy-five years for various reasons they avoided it. Then in 652 Kenwealh led his West Saxons up the river Avon and took Bradford, defeating the British forces that would have protected it, and by this victory he obtained command of the northern portion of the forest district as far as Malmsbury and Cricklade. Six years afterwards Kenwealh marched south, defeated the British at Peonna and drove them beyond the river Parret. This advance from the Mendips to the Parret was probably made with caution and the West Saxons would take care that the British in the forest district did not attack them in their rear. Probably at such a time they advanced up the Brue and Cary, as they had before advanced up the Avon, and occupied strong posts as at Castle Cary. The old Roman road from Sarum to Ilchester ran through the district about a mile south of Bruton, joining close by an ancient track that ran northward at the edge of the forest towards Frome. This appears to have been the way Bruton became English. It was a post of danger and importance, and so the settlement at first was a royal burgh and the King at times resided there as he also did at Milborne Port and Sturminster Newton. Whether Bruton had an earlier existence we cannot say. The district contains many Celtic names, and strongholds like Castle Cary may have had one or two predecessors.

Our earliest knowledge of the district after it had become English is derived from the Life of St. Aldhelm by William of Malmsbury, the monastic historian of the first half of the twelfth century. He enlarged and modified an earlier Life by Faricius which has been entirely superseded. Aldhelm became abbot of Malmsbury in 675 in succession to the old Scotie hermit Maidulf. He had entered the hermit's settlement as a novice in 661 and having stayed there for eight years went to Canterbury about 669 to study under Theodore and abbot Hadrian. Then in 675, on Maidulf's death, he returned to the forest settlement as its second abbot and for a quarter of a century gave himself up to continuous missionary effort in the forest district. He founded churches and established centres of work, monasteries William of Malmsbury calls them, at Frome, Bradford, Doultling, Bruton and Sherborne, and possibly at other places, and down the river Stour as far as Wareham we find traces of his activity. Bruton was by this time a settled royal town, the occasional residence of Ine, if not of Kentwine and Caedwealla. There were two churches in the place, one dedicated to St. Mary which had been built by the King, and another dedicated to St. Peter lately enlarged by the addition of a chancel, which had been founded by St. Aldhelm. During the pontificate of Sergius I, 687-701, Aldhelm, while abbot of Malmsbury, went to Rome, and on his return brought away among other treasures a white marble altar-slab, eighteen inches thick, four feet long and three palms broad, the projecting edge of which all round was adorned with a beautiful ornamental pattern. This Aldhelm gave to Ine who presented it to his church of St. Mary at Bruton. It is certain that Aldhelm must often have been there and even after he became bishop of Sherborne in 705, he not unfrequently visited his old monastery at Malsbury and must have passed through Bruton on his way thither and on his return.

From these days we lose sight of Bruton until the Domesday Survey. The Kings of Wessex had become the Kings of England and Winchester took the place of those royal cities in which the Wessex monarchs occasionally resided. Christian Saxons spared and mingled with Christian British and the special interest of the forest district faded away before the wider interests of united England. In Leland's time there was a tradition that Algar, earl of Cornwall, 1006, had established a house of monks here, which was displaced by the later Norman foundation. We know, however, nothing about this, though there is evidence that the neighbourhood was occupied at an early time by the Church. God mauston,¹ Godcombe, Holyfather, and Holywater, all place names in Pitcombe parish but close to Bruton, seem to point to a time anterior to the foundation of the Mohun family. There was an Algar of Halton who accounted for three hides in Bruton hundred and was probably a subtenant of some Saxon tenant-in-chief of the præ-Norman hundred of Bruton.

T. S. H.

THE FOUNDING OF THE PRIORY AND ITS ENDOWMENT.

The Domesday Survey, 1086, gives us no particulars of the church at Bruton or of any religious foundation there. Bruton was a royal manor and so had escaped hidation, and this very silence of Domesday may be taken as evidence that in 1086 there could not have been any ecclesiastical landowner at Bruton, and therefore if Earl Algar had endowed a body of priests or monks there that grant had lapsed.

The entry concerning it in the Exchequer Domesday is as follows:—

Rex tenet Brumetone, rex Edwardus tenuit. Numquam geldavit nec scitur quot hidæ sint ibi. Terra est L carrucarum. In dominio sunt tres carrucæ et v servi et iv coliberti et xxviii villani et xxvi bordarii cum xviii carucis. Ibi v burgenses et unus porcarius. Ibi vi molendini reddentes xx solidos et xxxviii acræ prati et cl acræ pasturæ. Silvæ v leugæ in longitudine una leuga in latitudine.

From this we may gather that the population was not inconsiderable, and that Bruton was on the border of the forest district. Subsequent to the time of the survey and before the time of King Stephen, the old Domesday hundred, which had been one of the largest in the county, was divided into the three hundreds of Bruton, Catsash and Norton Ferris. At the time of the survey, William de Moion, one of the most powerful of King William's Norman followers, was sheriff of Somerset.¹ The Conqueror had conferred on him the honour of Dunster, and his numerous manors in Somerset made him one of the largest landowners in the county. Among these were the manors of North and South Brewham where William de Moion apparently displaced Robert Fitzwimarch and Almar, while Robert Fitzgerald and the Count of Mortain received that portion of the parish of Bruton which had belonged to the King.

As sheriff William de Moion would have to administer the estates of the Crown and he had therefore been for a time officially connected with Bruton. His son William was made earl (comes) by Queen Matilda, and it would appear that at some time in the early part of the twelfth century, if not before, William the earl was enfeoffed of the manor and advowson of Bruton while the Norman family of Cantilupe received the smaller post-domesday hundred of Bruton. The benefactions of the Mohun family to the church begin, as far as England is concerned, with the gift by William the sheriff of the church of Dunster to the Benedictine abbey of Bath. In the year 1142 Earl William his son settled some canons regular of the order of St. Augustine, whom he is said to have brought from Normandy, at Bruton, and endowed them with the manor and advowson of St. Mary and St. Aldhelm's church at Bruton,² William the chaplain of Bruton at the time surrendering his incumbency. This was the royal church of the eighth century which seems to have outgrown and displaced Aldhelm's early church which was dedicated to St. Peter. The Augustinian canons were a new order of religious men. They were established about the year 1061 for the purpose of raising the moral and intellectual standard of the parochial clergy by associating them together in communities whence they might go forth to minister to the wants of the people in the neighbouring parishes. They were therefore supposed to be in holy orders, and worship, study, and almsgiving were their special rules. At first the order spread considerably and the first foundation in England is said to have been at St. John's, Colchester, in 1106. There were at the time of the dissolution of the monasteries 157 foundations of Augustinian canons in England and fifteen of Augustinian nuns, of which in Somerset we had five of the former at Barlynch, Bruton, Keynesham, Taunton and Wor-spring and one of the latter at Mynchin Buckland.

Earl William further enriched his foundation at Bruton by the gift of various estates and churches on his Norman property: in the diocese of Coutances the church of Moion, a little village on the road from St. Lo to Tessy, whence the family had derived their name, and the church at Pierreville and the chapel at Regouefe, also in the diocese of Coutances, and the church at Lyon-sur-mêr and an estate at Cresserons at the mouth of the Orne, at Secqueville near Creully and at Messons, all in the diocese of Bayeux.

The English benefaction was speedily confirmed by Bishop Robert of Bath (1135-1166) and the tithes and endowments of Bruton and its dependent churches of Pitcombe, Redlynch, Wyke, Witham and Brewham were impropriated for the support of those canons on whom was cast the duty of administering to the spiritual wants of the people in those parishes. From that time to the thirteenth century the endowments of the priory steadily grew. Bishop Robert himself added the impropriate rectories of Westbury with Priddy and Banwell, though the dean and chapter of Wells as the price of its consent¹ procured an ordinance for the payment of 40s. a year by the prior and convent of Bruton for the expenses of a candle to burn before the high altar of the cathedral church. The exact order of the gifts of lands and impropriate churches cannot easily be discovered. If we knew more of the witnesses who signed the deeds of gift in this cartulary, when they lived and when they died, we could probably approach nearer to a definite chronological order. In the absence of this information, we may say that the following gifts were made to the priory in the second half of the twelfth century: Thierry de Mesnil Mauger gave a garden and his land at Bruton. Alexander de Cantelupe gave the hundred of Bruton and the market held there with its dues and land at La Combe, and Henry de Careville recognised in the county court at Ilchester the right of the convent to summon his men to the hundred court at Bruton. Henry de Careville and his wife Isabella gave lands in Pitcombe. Robert Fitzgeoffrey, an under-tenant of Earl William, gave the advowson of Luxborough near Dunster, and William and Richard de Montague, gave the church of Shepton, having given already forty acres of land in Shepton. William de Lovell gave the church of Milton Clevedon, or rather sanctioned its gift by William de Clevedon. Charter 57 is a confirmation by Archbishop Theobald or Thomas¹ of the possessions of the convent and therefore gives us information as to the extent of the endowment before 1170. He recognised the gifts of the churches of Bruton and Luxborough, of land in Bruton and two parts of the tithes of Pitcombe and Discove. In 1175, at the instigation of Henry II. St. Hugh founded the Carthusian priory at Witham and Henry gave in exchange for the Bruton prior's rights as patron and rector of Witham, the rectory of South Petherton with its dependent chapelries of Seavington St. Michael, Barrington, Chillington and Lopen. Canon Archer says that South Petherton had been given by King Stephen to the cathedral church to found a prebend there, but it does not seem to have been ever annexed. About this time also John de Clevedon and Agatha his wife gave lands for the endowment of the chapel of St. Lawrence, Creech Hill, which John le Dennis had given to Bruton, and Walter de Asselegh gave the church of Swell and John Fitzhamon gave the church and manor of Charlton Adam, and William de Mohun the third gave the church at Minehead and the church at Cutcombe. The Earl had also given the Brewham manors and Vaudrill de Courcelles and Roger de Grinton had also endowed the priory with lands. Geoffrey de Wrokesdale and Juliana his wife gave land at Sterte in Babcary, and Ralph, son of William de Bruton, gave Southhey in the manor of Brewham; the mill at Batheaston was given by Hilary de Champflower, tenements at Wareham and Wilton were given by Hawise countess of Gloucester and Gilbert

Morris. At Welkingthorpe in Horsington Thomas Corbet gave lands, and Hugh de Yeovilton the same at Yeovilton and Robert Fitchet an annual rent at Ilchester. William de Mohun the third gave land at Horsely in South Brewham and sixty acres in North Brewham and certain pannage rights. Gerard de Brocton gave one hide of land and his wood at Bratton St. Maur and would have given the church at Bratton but his gift failed for lack of confirmation by his overlord. Hugh, bishop of Coutances, sanctioned the foundation of a prebendal stall at Coutances with lands at Moion for the prior of Bruton for the time being. But the disadvantage to the priory of having lands across the sea soon suggested an exchange with some Norman convent possessed of lands in England. The priory of Trouarn, about 10 miles east of Caen, had been founded in 1022 by Roger de Montgomery, vicomte de 'Exmes, and had been endowed with lands at Runcton or Rongeton in Sussex and Horsely and Whitminster in Gloucestershire. Roger's son turned the priory in 1048 into an abbey and in the twelfth century Trouarn had become one of the most important abbeys in Normandy. The group of Norman charters given in the Cartulary tell the story of the exchange. Bruton surrendered all its Norman property in the dioceses of Coutances and Bayeux, and received the Trouarn property in the dioceses of Chichester and Worcester and gave up also the prebendal stall at Coutances. From the subsequent grant of the manors of Ston Easton and Charlton Adam it would almost appear as if Bruton had made considerable sacrifice in the exchange.

It is evident, from what has been already stated that Bruton was at the end of the thirteenth century a rich foundation. It was never, however, a large foundation. The church of the canons was always the church of the parishioners of Bruton. The convent could not compare with that at Glastonbury. No parish church rose outside the walls of the cloister of the canons to typify the religious distinction of the people of Bruton. But these endowments brought with them duties which the convent had to perform. Many a piece of land had been given that the prayers of the canons might ever rise for the good of some suffering soul. This was their daily care imposed on them by the gifts they enjoyed. Other duties of a spiritual character are shown in the spiritual alliance which the convent entered into in 1202, with Mary, abbess of St. Edward's convent at Shaftesbury, that there might be a mutual exchange of prayers and offices for the brethren and sisters alive or departed. There were parochial duties also which had to be performed. In charter 61 it would appear as if the parishioners of South Brewham had been dealt unfairly with by the canons, and that William de Draycot, squire of Redlynch, had intervened on their and his own behalf. He desired a settled share of the services of the canon who had to serve Brewham and Redlynch. Neither of these, nor Pitcombe had a resident priest. Charters 83, 93 and 121 tell the same tale of prayers and masses to be offered for the donors' souls and add a canon to the brotherhood. At Scavington there was to be a chaplain as at Redlynch and Brewham and a resident clerk, and burial questions of some interest arose at Barrington and at Criston near Banwell, and great caution is shown in reference to the chapel at Wigborough granted to Helen Hostiaria.

One of the special duties of the Augustinian canons was that of hospitality to the poor. Bruton was close by the high road from Salisbury to Ilchester, and the incessant demands made by the stream of passers by, pressed heavily on the convent. In 1301, we find that William de Marchia, bishop of Bath and Wells,¹ confirms to the canons the grant of the rectory of Chilthorne Domer, on its cession by Geoffrey de Lucy, the then rector, because the convent is over-burdened with the number of people seeking hospitality. The dean and chapter of Wells claims a yearly fee of twelve marks from Bruton, as the price of its sanction to their impropriation, and in 1497 we find this has got into arrears to the extent of 8*l.*, owing to agricultural depression. Our knowledge of the growth of the endowment in the fourteenth century is but scanty. Bishop Hobhouse's edition of the Register of Bishop Drokensford gives us a few facts which suggest that the priory was burdened with the expense of rebuilding the churches on its estates. Canon William of Bruton had done much good to the convent when he held the office of cellarer, in raising it out of its great burden of debt. Bishop Haselshaw, 1302-1308, had on this account rewarded him by sanctioning a separate chamber, and meals and allowances separate. Bishop Drokensford in 1312, confirms this breach of the rule of the order.² The nature of this burden may perhaps be gathered from a further entry in Drokensford's Register of 1317. The priory was fined 20*s.* for not procuring the dedication of its chancels, and this fine was remitted at the instance of John de Bruton, canon of Wells, because the impropriate churches were not as yet fully built.¹ In 1319, Sir William de Montacute in his will made at Bordeaux, bequeathed his body to be buried in the church of SS. Peter and Paul of Bruton.² This is the only evidence in post-Norman times of this older church at Bruton, the one founded by S. Aldhelm. It seems impossible that it should have gone on side by side with that dedicated to SS. Mary and Aldhelm, and it is more probable that in the fourteenth century, the older dedication had been perpetuated by an altar in this later church.

The affairs of the convent in the fifteenth century seem to refer more to the history of the priors and the inner life of the canons, and we have little information in that century concerning the endowment. The impropriation of Chilthorne Domer did not help very materially the charges of the convent, and in 1498, the prior of Bruton and dean Gunthorpe of Wells, enter into an arrangement, under which the rectory is to be let on a lease of ninety-nine years, and the convent is to be thereby enabled to pay its overdue subsidy of twelve marks yearly to the cathedral church. This was accepted by the chapter on May 19, 1498.³ Twenty-one years afterwards in 1519, we find in Wolsey's Register, an interesting account of the re-arrangement of the endowment of the vicarage of Shepton Montague, Canon Wolman is acting as vicar-general in spiritualibus under Cardinal Wolsey, as commendatarius of the see. On May 2, he declares that Richard Lewys, the perpetual vicar of Shepton Montague, has so small an income that he is unable to support the burden of his benefice, and that the abbot of Bruton, William Gylberd, and his convent as propriarii, i.e., impropriate rectors, have agreed to augment his income, and that he consents to their terms; he therefore decrees that the vicar shall have the house adjoining the church-yard on the south, or some manse to be built in lieu by the abbey, that he shall have the vicar's close, and also the yearly sum of 8*l.* 1*s.* 8*d.*, to be paid by the abbey and that the abbey shall find wax lights for processions, pay tenths and subsidies to the king and all other onera, with procurations, whether ordinary or extraordinary. This was ratified by the abbey in the chapter-house at Bruton, on August 1, and by the vicar on August 5, the official of the Bath archdeaconry testifying by his seal.

Two valuations of the conventual property exist, that for the Taxatio of Pope Nicholas I, made in 1281 for the purposes of the Crusades, and the Valor Ecclesiasticus of the twenty-sixth year of Henry VIII.

In the Taxatio we find the following items:

The temporalities of the prior of Bruton are assessed as follows:—

		£	s.	d.
Cary Deanery	Bruton - - - -	17	10	0
" "	Brewham and Horsleye -	8	10	0

THE PRIORY AND ITS PRIORS.

The history of the Austin Canons has an interest peculiar to itself. It is not the history, at least in its inception, of a monastic body. It is the history of a society of clergy, and therefore it is a history which should be tracked out and described outside the ordinary history of the development of the monastic orders. It carries us back to the efforts made by the earnest bishop of Hippo to deepen the spiritual life of the clergy whose duties called upon them to mingle with the outside world. The name canon was probably a general name for the clergy, a name given because they were inscribed on the roll of the bishop, and St. Augustine at Hippo as also St. Eusebius at Vercelli were conspicuous for the care they took of the spiritual life of the clergy who lived with them, both directing their pastoral work and encouraging them in their intellectual and theological studies. It is uncertain how these canons became known as Austin Canons but it is supposed that the authority for attaching St. Augustine's name to the order rests on the memory of his personal efforts, and on the fact that more or less it is a development of the advice St. Augustine gave to religious persons in the 109th letter of his collected writings. But there can be no doubt that the origin of the order is to be looked for in the houses of the bishops, and among the clergy of the diocese. Even to the present day we can discover traces of this early system in the traditional duties of the chancellor of the cathedral church. His duty it was under the direction of the bishop, to superintend the studies of the younger clergy and to promote higher religious education. Life in the bishop's house was a community life. All the members agreed to accept certain rules but were in other matters free to act as they considered right. The three rules of the earlier canonical seminaries were that all the canons should live where their sphere of work lay, that they should take part in the daily offices in the church and that they should attend the daily chapters. From this we can perceive how much the canons differed from the monks. Theirs was not a claustral life. No vows of obedience and poverty were originally exacted. The very reason for its existence was that it might help the canons in their real work in life, their spiritual work among the neighbouring population. It was a means to a desirable end, that they might be better parish priests, and so as this idea developed and spread it was patronised and encouraged by the bishops of the diocese. Robert and Reginald favoured it at Bruton as did Adelulf at Carlisle and Gyffard at Taunton. But we must not anticipate. If we cannot say that all the canons were priests, yet they probably were so originally and the priesthood was the primary object for which they entered the seminary. And this shows us also somewhat of the relationship between the bishop and his canons.

They were his clergy, and he was their head, and even when these canonical houses were multiplied in the diocese so that the bishop could not personally superintend the internal management of the house, he was still the head of that house. But a system so simple as this would naturally as time went on receive many accretions and these additions would produce many variations. The system would differ from diocese to diocese as also from bishop to bishop. This certainly was the case during the fifth and sixth centuries. There was growing up by its side the independent system of coenobitic monks under the wise organisation of Benedict of Nursia and the rules of the Augustinian canons were slowly assimilated to that of the Benedictine monks. There was no rule so to speak of the Augustine canons. It was merely a principle of life defined under these simple heads. But as this principle was developed so variations would arise in different houses. Among the most notable was the system developed by St. Chrodegang, bishop of Metz 742-765, in which he adapted the rule of St. Benedict to the altered duties of the diocesan clergy. Their liberty was curtailed, the work of their day was more elaborately defined. This rule he enforced on his clergy at Metz, who had charge of the two churches of that city and also on all the town clergy of that diocese. The bishop took the place of the abbot and the archdeacon that of the Benedictine prior, the hour offices were to be said daily in the church and such manual work was to be performed by the canons as was compatible with their other duties. Henceforth we can see a steady divergence in the rules of life for the canonical clergy and a continuous approximation towards a definite monastic system. While the houses of some took the name of seminaries and colleges, those of others took the name of monasteries, and in some cases after a prolonged struggle, the clergy of the bishop's cathedral church shook themselves free from the influence and became colleges of purely secular clergy. This was certainly the case at Exeter where Leofric long strove to impose on his clergy the rule of S. Chrodegang as did Gisa at Wells, but when Gisa and Leofric were dead the canons gained their freer constitution. Unwan, archbishop of Hamburg, the opponent of Knut, and Archbishop Æthelnoth, did much to define this difference between the monks and the canons, and Ivo of Chartres 1000-1115 assisted this movement by his foundation of the canons regular, joining to the community life the observances and vows of the monasteries. About 1095 Lutosdus, dean of the cathedral church of Toul, founded an abbey there for canons regular who should live under the rule of St. Augustine, and in 1111 Urban II confirmed this foundation. This is about the earliest reference to this rule of St. Augustine, and it is thus evident that by the beginning of the twelfth century a rule for canons regular began to be known as the rule of St. Augustine, and these canons became known as the canons regular of St. Augustine. In 1131, Innocent II at the Council of Rheims divided the regular clergy into two orders, monks of the order of St. Benedict and canons of the order of St. Augustine, and at the Lateran Council of 1139 the canons regular are contrasted with the monks of St. Benedict as already a well recognised order of the times. While then some canons became more and more like monks, others developed in a secular direction, gaining more and more personal liberty and independence as towards the bishop of the diocese. So also the result of this twelfth century development was that in the internal arrangements of the houses for the regular canons of St. Augustine many rules were borrowed from those of the order of St. Benedict, and the reforms of Archbishop Lanfranc and St. William of Hirsauge for the Benedictine system were in part adopted in the later foundation of canons regular. But if we may infer it from their silence neither Lanfranc or St. Anselm knew anything of a rule of St. Augustine for canons regular and the introduction of the order into England was subsequent to their time. There is a letter of St. Anselm to William prior of the canons de Mont St. Eloy asking him to receive an Englishman named Northmann who belonged to a church where these regular clergy had lately been gathered, and who desired to spend some time under prior William for further instruction in that way of life. The order was certainly in its infancy, variations were common and depended as yet very much on the individuality of the bishop, and certainly in the twelfth century the order was popular. It was a way by which the bishops could retain their hold on men who were practically monks. They did not, like the Benedictines claim freedom from episcopal control; and even after they had gained from their patron freedom to elect their prior they not unfrequently delegated their choice to the bishop.

The foundation of Ernulf at Colchester about 1106, which is said to have been the first foundation of canons regular of St. Augustine in England, and which claimed some jurisdiction over all the houses of the order in this country, was in many ways similar to that at Bruton. The parish church of St. Botolph was taken by the canons regular and was shared by them with the parishioners to whom they ministered, and as at Bruton and Carlisle and many other places was a double church, if not structurally at least for the purpose of public worship. At Bristol the canons built a church for the parishioners and the same arrangement was apparently made at Taunton. The Consuetudinarium of the canons regular of St. Augustine of the priory of Barnwell, near Cambridge, written in 1296 and now in the British Museum Library, gives us evidence of the internal arrangements of a priory at that date. The officers of the house, the obedienciarii, are almost the same as for a Benedictine house. The prior, who had under him a sub-prior and a third prior, the precentor who was also librarian, the succentor, the sacrist and subsacrist, the hall butler, the chief cellarer, the kitchen steward, the steward of the granary, the receivers, the steward of the guest house, the chamberlain, the almoner, and the master of the infirmary. Nothing is said about a school and the use of the books of the library by the canons is left quite optional. The librarian is merely the custodian of the books and the office of chancellor who should instruct the younger clergy seems to have disappeared. It does not appear either that any allowance is made for those canons who had to serve the dependent churches and possibly already by impropriations and the creation of vicarages the priory had got rid of the last vestige of the canons' duty. The perfect scheme of parochial work at Taunton under these canons which Walter Gyffard bishop of Winchester had devised in 1115 broke down in 1308 when vicarages were created for St. Mary Magdalen, Trull and Wilton, and secular chaplains were to serve Stoke St. Mary, St. James, Ruishton, Staplegrove and Hull.

In 1339 Benedict XII endeavoured to assimilate the different bodies of canons regular and his constitution gives us some further insight into the state of these convents in the fourteenth century.

The daily chapters are still to be insisted on and also the yearly one when matters of greater importance are discussed, and an effort is to be made to carry out the system of triennial general chapters of the provinces. The constitution of Archbishop Peckham in 1281 at the Council of Lambeth had however already provided for the obvious inconveniences of attendance at these triennial chapters in the case of alien priories. Benedict XII allowed the canons to keep a servant and a horse, but not in the conventual house, and he urges upon them to study and also to maintain poor students as far as possible at some seminary or university.

In 1222, at the Council of Oxford, Stephen Langton had endeavoured to regulate the dress of the canons regular. In 1289 there was a provisional chapter of the order also at Oxford.

In 1513, at a general chapter for England held at Leicester, the need for reform and for a stricter adherence to the rule of the order was generally recognised and the final injunction for the reforms thus acknowledged were issued in 1520 by Cardinal Wolsey as papal legate. The order had by this time become purely monastic and little of its origin remained. Many canons were not priests, the priors had in some cases become abbots, two, the priors of Waltham and Cirencester were mitred priors and abbot Gylbert of Bruton had become bishop of Mayo. The old relationship with the bishop of the diocese had almost vanished and so also had the connection between the canons and their cures. The duty to promote sound religious learning was niggardly observed in a meagre pittance for the support of a student at Oxford. It was clear that the regular canons and the monks must stand or fall together. One witness remains, and as far as I can ascertain only one of the literary efforts of the earlier canons of Bruton. In the British Museum among the Cottonian MSS. that were plucked from the fire in 1731 there is (Otho A. IV.) one which is described as Liber Annalium Regum Anglorum per quendam monachum de Bruton. It is in a sadly injured state and the little that is legible contains no information about Bruton. It is one of the ordinary monastic annals of the time. Whether it is the same as the work referred to by Wharton in his life of Reginald in Anglia Sacra as Annales coenobii Brutonensis I am unable to say, though it probably is, and since this fails us we can give no continuous history of the priors and the inner life of the priory.

The following list of the priors though possibly incomplete at least approaches more nearly to completeness than any list yet published. It has been drawn up from the chartulary itself and from certain entries in escheat rolls and the bishops' registers. The dates are not in every case the limits of the prior's tenure of office but only such as we can be sure of during his tenure. On the foundation of the priory, William, the parochial chaplain, seems to have stood aside in order that the prior and convent might be installed as the perpetual parson of the parish, and thus Gilbert the first prior and his brother canons had very soon the pastoral care of Bruton, Pitcombe, Redlynch, Wyke, Witham and Bruham to demand that chastened energy and spiritual zeal which their community life was intended to foster.

17. Richard. He occurs in No. 373 as a party to an ordinance in 1373 of the convent whereby the rents of Discove were assigned to the pittancer for the use of the canons. He may, however, be the same as the preceding prior.
18. John Corsham. He died on November 25, 1418. Cf. Bub. Reg. and Minister's Accounts, 971/24. On October 20, 1411, we find him mentioned with others as commissioned by a bull of Pope John XXIII to enquire and redress certain grievances of the chapter at Wells. He issues his mandates from his chamber at North Brewham. His name also appears in Bishop Bubwith's Register among those cited to appear at the convocation at London, November 18, 1415. And also, October 31, 1416. The Cartulary has now ceased to help us.
19. John Schoyle. December 10, 1418. Temporalities restored 31 May, 1419. Minister's Accounts 971/24. Removed February 10, 1430. The isolated position of the houses of the regular canons and the liberty granted to the canons to go out into the world exposed them to dangers into which the evidences from the bishops' registers in the fifteenth century prove that they had fallen. In Bishop Bubwith's Register, f. ccii, we find that at Bruton it was the prior who had fallen, and he is reported by the canons of the house. On September 4, 1423, he submits to the judgment of the bishop and his submission was accepted at Wookey when Bubwith had taken his seat "in quodam deambulatorio inter aulam et capellam manerii de Woky," and had heard the charges made against him. There were present William Felter, doctor of canon law, and John Reynolds, canons of Wells, William Brett, vicar of Frome, John Carant, steward of the priory of Bruton and John Gregory, esquire. He was tried "pro excessibus delictis, compertis sive delatis quibuscunque personam meam seu dictum priorem tangentibus."

The bishop appears then to have enquired further into the charges and in October, [Cf. f. cciii,] of that year he issues his tions to the priory and on the prior. It is expressly stated that the charges were either confessed to by Schoyle or had been reported by his fellow canons. They had detected him in his errors. First the prior is suspended from his office, all the internal care and ruling of the priory is taken from him and he is prohibited from all external duties. Being thus freed from all impediments he is to be present at all canonical offices both by night as well as by day and especially on Sundays and festivals. He is to say mass not less than three times a week and he is to keep the daily chapter whereby the proper discipline of the house can alone be maintained.

Secondly that the evil report might be wiped out "ad sedandam ejus infamiam laudabili testimonio honestarum personarum," he is not to go out or ride abroad on any account whatever unless it shall appear to the subprior and the greater part of the canons to be for the advantage of the convent "pro agendis dicti prioratus negociis."

Thirdly, he is to have sufficient provided for him and for the hospitality due to his rank ; and fourthly all things are to go on as usual and due obedience is to be shown towards the administrator appointed by the bishop to manage the affairs of the convent.

That the efforts thus taken to root out the evil were not successful is proved by various entries in bishop Stafford's register. On August 20, 1427, the bishop writes from Dogmersfeld severely condemning the convent for its evil ways. Hoper the camerarius was charged with quarrelsomeness. There was ritual laxity and the canonical offices were carelessly said and often omitted. Within the convent many breaches of the rules of the order were overlooked, the temporalities of the house were not properly cared for and sexual vice was present among them. Two years after, the bishop seems to have visited the priory in person and he severely blames the canons for their conduct and makes their treatment of the inappropriate parish of Shepton the subject of a monition. They are to present within a month a suitable person as vicar and to assign him a congrua portio.

It would also appear as if this visit had brought about the resignation of Schoyle, for on August 8, 1429, bishop Stafford confirms the election of Richard of Glastonbury as prior. But Schoyle still remained in the priory and on February 10, 1430, the bishop found it necessary to dispense with his residence at Bruton and allow him to exercise his religion in the priory of Poughele in the diocese of Salisbury during the bishop's pleasure. Poughele was a small house of Austin canons in the parish of Chadleworth near Wantage, and its isolated position on the downs was suited for the confinement of this unworthy prior.

20. Richard of Glastonbury. August 8, 1429—October, 1448. It would naturally be expected that the evils that had existed under the previous prior would speedily be rooted out by his successor. But it is clear that the example which Schoyle had set his fellow canons had been to some extent followed. On November 16, 1430 bishop Stafford issues a further monition to the priory, "monitio priori et conventui de Bruton pro remocione mulierum suspectarum." He says that in the course of his visitation he had heard evidence of the admission of suspected women within the walls of the priory and much to incriminate prior Richard, and he had ordered his injunctions to be read in the chapter house twice a week till Candlemas. But these injunctions had been disregarded, the prior's ill fame had become notorious, the laxity had increased. He therefore enjoins "omnia colloquia mulierum tam infra quam extra septa Prioratus vitanda sub poena excommunicationis," and he ordered his monition to be read in the chapter house three times a week till Pentecost.

In bishop Bekynton's register we find that the evil still continued. Richard of Glastonbury was a worthy successor to John Schoyle. On November 31 1444, Bekynton issues a commission to his commissary canon Fulford to renew the monition of his predecessor which Richard of Glastonbury had disregarded, and to call upon him to produce documents needful for enquiry for his admonition, and to bid the prior appear at Wells, before the commissary next Epiphany "sub poena."

On November 31 of the next year, the bishop writing from London cites the prior to answer before him with all his canons in the chapter house at Bruton on December 18. Then on December 7, he issues a commission to the prior of Witham and two others to hold this visitation for him if he is unable to come, and an additional commission is issued at the same time to the same three to enquire especially concerning the crimes alleged against the prior, and to do all that might be needed for correction. On January 8, 1446, a further commission was issued to the same three to continue the visitation and to overcome all hindrance by canonical coercion. The court was held in the chapel of St. Katharine in the parochial church of Bruton.

Two years afterwards death rid the priory of its evil head.

21. John Henton, 1448-1494. We now enter a period of reform and under this prior the convent seems to have cast off its former ill fame. On October 10, 1448, we find from Bekynton's confirmations at the end of his register, that the death of Richard of Glastonbury was reported to the bishop by Robert Goldsmyth the subprior. Bekynton was at Wookey, and had taken his seat in his chapel there that the process might be carried out judicially. First, there is the certificate of the election drawn up by a notary. The subprior and thirteen canons had voted. Two brethren, Lamyat and Pawle, had renounced their order. Then came the written consent of James Luttrell, Esq., as patron with his petition to the bishop for confirmation of the elect. This is followed by the bishop's sentence of institution in his spiritual office, confirmation, and the prior's oath of obedience to the bishop as the ordinary. Then the bishop issued his certificate to the King with petition for the prior's confirmation in the temporalities, and finally the mandate dated October 31, 1448, from Dogmersfield to the archdeacon of Wells to induct the prior.

The next entry in Bekynton's register concerning the priory may be taken as the result of John Henton's efforts at reform. In April 1452, the bishop issues the following injunctions at Bruton:—

- 1 The canons were not to sleep in the same bed.
2. The canons were not to sleep away from the convent without licence.

3. The canons were not to play at dice.
4. The younger canons were to be daily taught by the seniors "in grammatica," i.e. the rudiments of classical learning.
5. The canons were to keep the rules of their order in their dormitory.
6. The infirmary was to be rebuilt.
7. The senior canons were not to attract the juniors to themselves. (Probably this was some system of clientèle leading to favouritism, the juniors doing little offices for the seniors, who in turn favoured them, and waived the rules of the convent.)
8. The juniors were to show all due reverence to the seniors.
9. Women, and especially Margaret Stawel, were not to enter the convent.
10. The canons were to eschew oaths "per Humanitatem seu per Membra Christi."
11. The canons were not to hunt.
12. The canons were to keep the secrets of the house.
13. The canons were to eschew "pervagationes in diversis ecclesiis et capellis prioratus," i.e., running about for service in the dependent churches perhaps for hire, and certainly neglecting canonical duties at home.
14. Canons who had private chambers were not to allow "confabulationes et potationes" therein, which led to a neglect of the Divine Office.
15. The conventual bread was to be of unmixed grain and pure leaven, and the beer to be better.
16. The prior was to take pains in the collection of what was due to the convent.
17. After compline all the canons were to resort straight to the dormitory without talk.
18. Letters addressed to the canons, if not open, were to be taken to the subprior for opening.
19. The coquinarius and cellarer were not to go about the markets as mere laymen.
20. In consequence of bishop Stafford's injunctions having been slighted, the following portions of them were made more stringent :—All disturbances of Divine service, or wilful frivolities to be adjudged as mortal sin. The three essentials of their vow being poverty, chastity, and obedience, the canons were to obey the prior "sub poena majoris excommunicationis." Annual accounts are to be rendered by the prior to the convent, and these injunctions are to be read capitulariter once a month.

In June, 1452, in an order issued from the palace, Wells, Bekynton dispensed with the thirteenth clause of these injunctions, so far as to allow the prior to employ the canons in serving the parish church of Bruton with its chapels annexed and dependent of Wyke and Redlynch, but all the other churches are to be served by seculars.

In 1455, it appears that the prior John Henton had petitioned the pope for absolution from the possible crime of simony. He stated that he had been duly elected, and had been prior for seven years when he discovered that his father had paid money to two noblemen of those parts to further his election, and that he was afraid of impeachment for simony. On x. Kal., Jan., 1455, Calixtus III absolves him, and confirms him in the priorship, and at the same time having learnt that the convent had granted corrodies to the extent of 40s. a year, he forbade all such charges for the future under pain of excommunication.

In 1459, Bekynton commissions canons Sugar and Stoke to enquire touching the observance of his injunctions issued after the visitation of the abbeys of Keynsham, Muchelney and Athelney, and the priories of Bruton and Taunton.

In 1468, prior Henton and the convent make Hugh Sugar, treasurer of Wells, a brother of Bruton, and in the same year in bishop Stillington's register, in the list of taxable chaplains John Howse, chaplain of Bruton, is relieved on account of poverty and charged only 6s. 8d.

That Henton belonged to a wealthy and influential family in Bruton, the foundation charter of the Henton chantry given below clearly proves, and it would appear as if the evil days of the house were over. The long period of his priorship gave him opportunity to root out the ill-fame, and bring back the canons to their original obedience and duty.

T. S. H.

The following notes by bishop Hobhouse on the fabric of the church and matter in connection with it are too valuable to be omitted. They form a suitable ending to the sketch of the priors of the ancient house.

BRUTON CHURCH.

Proofs of one fabric serving the double purpose of a conventual and parochial church.

The canons, being impropriate rectors of the parish church, and as such, in command of the chancel, and being few in number, had no need of any separate chapel for conventual functions.

There is no record of the founder building a chapel, or of one ever being consecrated.

But the founder did rebuild the chancel of the parish church of St. Aldhelm, and built thereunder a crypt for the interment of his family, which still remains, having been the burial place of the Mohuns and Luttrells, and also of Montagues for centuries, and, after the dissolution of the lay grantees, the Berkeleys.

This crypt gives the size of the founder's chancel, which was probably dedicated to St. Mary, the patroness of the priory, and St. Aldhelm's altar was removed into the nave for the parishioners' use.

After the impropriation, the church became an "Ecclesia conventualis," with two sets of worshippers and functions, but one ministering body, deputing one of its canons to be the "capellanus parochialis."

The canons probably buried in the chapterhouse and cloister-yard, the parishioners in the ground attached to the church on the north-east and west sides, but this cemetery is described in bishop Drokensford's register, 1311, as "intra clausum Prioratus de B.,"— and bishop Bekynton's commission sat in St. Katrine's chapel "in parochiali ecclesia," i.e. in the north aisle of the existing church, where "Ora pro nobis S. Katrina" fixes the spot.

St. Katrine's image stood "in Cancelllo" (see Bruton's will), and therefore her altar. The parish chancel was therefore in the east end of the north aisle.

The old fabric and its graveyard stood "intra clausum Prioratus." The "Clastrum" to which Henton gave money was either the conventual building generally, or the cloister, probably attached to the south wall of the nave of the church.

A chapel of St. George is mentioned in document 49.

This account is rendered by Robert Draper, who was clerk of the household of Sir Hugh Luttrell, Sir John's father, 1423 and 26 (see p. 129, Dunster and its Lords).

It does not appear that Sir John was buried at Bruton, or where he was buried, but this official connection with Bruton as patron, entitled him to the prayers of the priory, and the priory to the temporal benefits which were due from the patron in return for spiritual benefits.

The Receiver-general's Roll, 1431-32, shows that Sir John's anniversary was kept up in that year at Dunster, probably at Bruton, and also his father's, Sir Hugh.

THE TWO ABBOTS OF BRUTON.

Shortly before its final extinction, the priory of Bruton was raised into an abbey under circumstances which will be presently related: and it is of the two abbots, William Gilbert and John Ely, and the fate of the dissolved canons, that I propose to treat in the following pages.

The first notice that I have found of William Gilbert is in the Register of the University of Oxford,¹ where it is recorded that:—

William Gylbert "regular canon and prior of Brewton in Somerset" disputed as B.D. 15 May, 1506, and received the degree of D.D. on February 8, in the following year.

He was a member of the family of that name, which was seated at Witcombe in the parish of Corton Denham, in the S.E. of the county of Somerset; it was, however, a wide-spread family and had many branches in various parts of the county. The Gilberts of Corton, were related to the FitzJames family.² Nicholas Gilbert of Bruton gent. had his will proved, Aug. 2, 1566, he was a near relative of the abbot and received an annuity of 6*l.* from the revenues of the dissolved monastery of Bruton.³

Nightingale in his History of Somerset (1819), p. 473 says, "Over the north entrance to the church is a shield, with a chevron charged with three roses between W. G." Burke's Armory gives the following as the arms of Gilbert of Somerset:—"Ar. on a chevron sa. between three . . . as many roses of the first." In my Visitation of Somerset, p. 108, I have given them as:—"Arg. a chevron engrailed between three roses gu." on the authority of a pedigree of Portman which is to be found in a later Visitation of Somerset (Harl. Soc. xi, 126). The shield on Bruton church is in favour of the arms first given, and confirms the connection of the abbot with the Somerset family.

This is what Leland (II. 74), writing about 1540, says about Bruton:—

"Ther is in the Market Place of the Toun, a new Crosse of 6 Arches and a pillar yn the midle, for Market folkes to stande yn, begon and brought up to *fornix*¹ by Ely laste abbate of Brutun. The abbay ther was afore the Conqueste a place of Monkes founded by Algarus, Erle of Cornewal.

"Moion set Chanons there sins the Conquest and divers of the Moions were buried there.

"One Wylliam Gilbert of late Tyme beyng Prior of Brutun went to Rome, and there procurid first that the name of the Priory of Brutun might be chaungid ynto an Abbay. This Gilbert beyng Abbate did great Cost in the Abbay [of] Brutun in Building, almost re-edifying it."

We do not know when Prior Gilbert went to Rome but it must have been about the year 1510.

The letters "W. G." still remain on the battlement of the north aisle of Bruton Church, and "close by the marks of his friend, Richard FitzJames, on a shield, bearing the Dolphin of his family, the mitre of his office, and the cross swords of the See of London."²

Mr. Nightingale in his "Topographical and Historical Description of the County of Somerset" (p. 474) which was published about 1819 speaks of Ely's cross as still in situ; he says "Its shape is hexagonal. It is supported by six smaller pillars at the angles and a large one in the middle. The roof consists entirely of ribs of arches, which, issuing from the centre, diverge from pillar to pillar, and are elegantly adorned with fine sculpture." It has now entirely disappeared.

² Ancient Bruton (Ep. Hobhouse), p. 27.

Three years after taking his degree of D.D. a further honour awaited the prior of Bruton. We have placed his visit to Rome in 1510, for on June 21, 1511, a Royal licence was signed at Eltham and delivered at Knoll on the 24th of the following July, granting to William, prior of St. Mary, Bruton, permission "to change the name of the priory to that of a Monastery and to assume the style of Abbot,"¹ so that for the last twenty-eight years of its existence Bruton enjoyed the distinction of being an abbey.

Wolsey was non-resident bishop of Bath and Wells from 1518-1523 and during the whole of this time the episcopal work had to be performed by deputy.

William Gilbert abbot of Bruton was raised to the episcopate by the title of "Episcopus Maiorensis" i.e., Mayo in Ireland. The date of his consecration is not quite certain, but it was before 1519, and a great authority asserts that he was suffragan of Wells from 1519-26,² that is during nearly the whole of Wolsey's, and for three years of John Clerk's episcopate.

Bishop Hobhouse a few years ago kindly examined Wolsey's register at Wells and said that it showed no suffragan commission whatever, but that Gilbert was once called "suffragan" when he held an ordination; and on March 28, 1525, acting in this capacity, he gave the solemn blessing in the great church of Glastonbury, to Richard Whiting, the newly elected abbot.³

There would be at Bruton, as there certainly was at Taunton priory⁴ a school for the choir boys and the novices, but this did not satisfy the wants of the neighbourhood, at least so thought certain good and influential persons; and so we find from the foundation deed, which is still extant, that on Sept. 29, 1519,⁵ Richard FitzJames, bishop of London, his nephew John FitzJames of Redlynch near Bruton, afterwards Chief Justice of the King's Bench, and Dr. John Edmondes, a native of Bruton, and at this time Chancellor of St. Paul's Cathedral, granted to "William Gilbert Bisshop of Maiorensis and Abbott of the Monastery of our blisshed lady of Brewton and to the convent of the same place the manor of Blynfeld by Shaston in the countie of Dorset” and other property to found a “ffree scoole.” It was intended to be a public school, and also a nursery for regular canons, for the abbot covenanted that he and his successors would take “into their Religion and preferre to the same, parte of such able scolars in vertue and kunnyng, as shall fro tyme to tyme be brought up in the same scoole.” The founders had evidently been stirred up by the example of their friend John Colet, dean of St. Paul’s, who founded St. Paul’s school in 1510.

By 1532 Sir John FitzJames, the second of these founders, had become Chief Justice of the King’s Bench, but during these fifteen years a coolness seems to have arisen between him and his neighbour the venerable abbot of Bruton: their properties intermingled and that is often a source of quarrel: this we suspect is the meaning of the following letter from FitzJames to Cromwell, which is given here as it bears on the election of Abbot Gilbert’s successor. It is dated at Redlinche, near Bruton, 9 Sept., 1532.¹

“The Abbey of Brewton is within a mile of my house. The abbot is sick and old, and upon his death or resignation the monks desire to have one that I dislike. The Abbot has been to me an unkind neighbour, and I would gladly have a better one. The house is not of the King’s foundation, but of Sir Andrew Lutterells [the Lutterells succeeded the Mohuns as Patrons] and he and his ancestors have given the monks licence for election. But still the King’s letter and your policy can do much in the matter . . . I shall be glad to know what applications have been made to you in the matter.”

On the 24th Sept. Cromwell writes from London in answer to the above.²

“Has received his letter and has accordingly moved the King touching the election of the Abbot of Bruton . . . as he understands that both you and Lord Lisle sue for the advancement of the same person to be abbot there, he has directed his letters for that purpose. But if you see cause to stay the election for the trial of his title, ‘his Grace is therewith right well contented, so that his Highness may be remembered somewhat, like as your Lordship wrote unto me in your last which he only remitteth to your wisdom and discretion. He would as fain that ye were well neighbourd as ye would yourself’ will always be ready to do his Lordship's service in this and other things."

The election was postponed, for on April 11th, 1533, Gilbert was still abbot and the licence for the two annual fairs, held on the eve, day and morrow of St. George, and on the eve, day and morrow of the Nativity of St. Mary, was renewed "with a court of pie-powder at the said fairs before the steward of the said abbot and convent with the same tolls and customs as at 'Bartilmew fair.'"¹

He died, however, before the 14th of the following July, for on that day a writ was issued from Westminster to the Escheator of Somersetshire for restitution of the manor of the Stonyeston on the election of John Elye as abbot, whose fealty is ordered to be taken by Sir John FitzJames for divers manors belonging to the said monastery.²

The good Abbot Gilbert was buried in the church beneath a beautiful altar tomb.

Nightingale writing circa 1819 says (he may be quoting an earlier writer) "Abbot Gilbert's tomb still remains in the north-west corner of the church close to the wall; in the rebuilding of which, his skull was laid open."³

The tomb was moved into the churchyard sometime before 1824;⁴ it was again moved further west and now stands on the right of the western entrance to the churchyard, it is much weathered, but still shows signs of great beauty of design.

The Chief Justice had secured the election of the man of his choice, as abbot, against the wish of the majority of the canons and we are not surprised to find that the peace of the community was soon broken.

On 16 Sept. 1533, exactly two months after John Elye's election, Edward, Lord Stourton writes to Cromwell to complain that the present abbot withholds from a certain John White, a servant of the house, an annuity of 10*l.* which had been granted by his predecessor and the convent, and begs Cromwell's charitable interference in the matter.⁵

From subsequent letters we gather that John White revenged himself by bringing a charge of treason against the abbot and thus tried to ruin him.

In less than a month, the new abbot was in hot water again on a fresh charge. Although Cromwell had asserted that both FitzJames and Lord Lisle wished for the election of the same man, yet the nominee had soon fallen out with one of his patrons. On October 7, 1533, less than three months after his election, Lady Lisle writes from Calais to Cromwell.¹

"I thank you for your constant goodness to my Lord and me. I beg your favour to the bearer [John Legat] who is like to have much wrong by the abbot of Brewton for having killed a man in self-defence. He has his pardon, but the abbot seeks to put him from his living, mainly from malice to my Lord and me. If you knew how much my Lord has done for the abbot, you would say he was a churl, as Leonard Smyth can tell you."

John Legat writes from London (letter not dated) to Lady Lisle to say that he is still in trouble with the abbot, that he has served him with a writ to appear before the Lord Chancellor but that the Lord Chief Justice stands his friend and causes him to bide at home: and as long as he has his goodwill "he sets by no man," nevertheless he trusts to put him to some pain before he has done with him.²

It is now time to hear the abbot's defence; he writes from Bruton to Lady Lisle, Jan. 28, 1533-4. He defends himself against a charge of having used unfitting language: Whyte has reported ill of him to her ladyship and to others. He is in a manner compelled to take him again; if it had happened in his master's, the late Sir John Basset's time, White would not have obtained his purpose. Though she says that she repents of having spoken for him, he hopes she will yet be joyful of his promotion.³

On the 28th of May following the abbot writes to her again and says:—

"You and my lord shall have my prayers during my life, whatever has been reported of me . . . I doubt not you have already weighed the character of those who have made reports of me."⁴

On Aug. 10, 1534, John Ely, abbot, and 17 canons signed the Acknowledgment of the Royal Supremacy.

Truly John Ely was a man who had many enemies; the abbey possessed a manor called Runcton in Sussex, and we now hear in a letter from Thomas Lord Lawarr to Cromwell, that the latter had written to the abbot with respect to John Downer, of Mundham in Sussex, whom the abbot had threatened to put out of his copyhold for felling "scrubbyd okys" which were necessary for his hedges.

Lord Lawarr as the abbot's steward naturally takes his part, he tells Cromwell that Downer is a troublesome man and a bad neighbour, and offers Cromwell 20 nobles "to buy him a horse" if he will rid him out of his copyhold. He says the abbot will give Downer 10*l.* if he will leave at Michaelmas next. The letter is dated "at my poor house," 7 Dec., 1534.¹

We do not know how the dispute ended, but the abbot had soon to meet a much more serious charge at home. A section of the canons made a party against him, and it seems to have been a bad day for the abbot when he refused John White's annuity. We next hear of certain [undated but probably 1534] "Interrogatories to be put to Richard Halford, Canon of the Abbey of Brewton" touching his having obtained a licence from the Archbishop of Canterbury to go out of the said abbey and be abroad in a secular clerk's habit, and touching certain erasures and alterations in the said licence and where and when they were made. Also as to what crimes he knows to have been committed by the abbot of Brewton John Ely, or of what crimes he suspected him; whether he, John Harold, one Harte, a brother of his, and Whit a servant of the house, conspired together to accuse the abbot of treason and when and where they did so; whether the deponent did not exhort the conspirators to stick surely in the matter, and whether they had conspired the abbot's death and why.²

For this accusation Richard Halford soon found himself in prison for on June 12, 1536, takes place,

The examination of Richard Halford, monk of Brewton abbey, at the Fleet before Thomas Bedyll of the Council 12 June, 28 HS. [The questions are not given.]

3. In the licence the word prioratus was erased and monasterii substituted by the clerk who wrote it as far as he knows.

Mr. Underhill who procured the licence showed him this. To the rest of the interrogatories he says that after the licence was obtained under the seals of the King and the Archbishop of Canterbury, Robert Wattes, Underhill's servant, showed it him, with the confirmation. Told Wattes the licence was not good, because of the word prioratus and wrote to Underhill advertising him to have it made good but requiring him not to have it rased.

About three weeks ago, Wattes brought them both back rased and amended, saying they were good enough, being amended by him that first wrote them. Showed them 6 or 7 days after to the abbot, who found the same fault. Underhill procured the licence and confirmation without any reward or promise, except that Halford paid the ordinary charges 4l. 6s. 8d.

II. Another examination the same day.

I. Knows no crime against the abbot that he can prove. To the rest says that he never conspired with the said "Harold, Hert or Whight" or any other to accuse the abbot of treason or conspired his death or other displeasure. Does not know that Harold, Hert and White conspired to accuse him of treason or to compass his death, but about two years ago Harold gave Sir William Sturton, now Lord Sturton, a bill of accusation against the abbot in White's chamber. Sir William asked Halford about it, and he answered that he never heard that the abbot had used any such words.

The next morning told the abbot thereof who denied the words. Harold, however, asserted that he heard him speak the words against the Queen [i.e. Anne Boleyn] in the hearing of the prior and two or three other canons.

Had no communication with Hert about it except that he said he was sorry that Harold had made the accusation. White told him Harold had said he had heard the abbot use unfitting words about the Queen.

Had no communication with the prior or any other canons about it. The abbot has been abbot about four years, and Halford has been canon professed for 18 or 19 years. Thinks in his conscience that the abbot never used these words, but that Harold and White conspired to accuse him wrongfully. Harold is about 24 years of age, and has been canon professed 7, 8 or 9 years. White is 40 years, and has been servant 7 or 8 years "by me Richard Alford."¹

This quarrel went on for three years. Then came the end, for on April 1, 1539, Dr. John Tregonwell received the surrender of the house and assigned the pensions which are given below. It will be noticed that Richard Halford's name appears at the bottom of the list.

The fate of John Ely is involved in obscurity, he was allowed to hold his office till the Dissolution and received a pension of 8*o*l. per annum, but the following fact is at least ominous.

In a list of prisoners in the Tower of London (dated November, 1539) there is an entry to this effect: "John Ele, priest, came from Windsor."² His name does not occur in Pole's Pension List so that he presumably died before the date of that document (24 February, 1555-6). On August 12, 1541, a "certain Master John Elye, priest, was admitted to the perpetual vicarage of Pocolchurche (Glos.), patrons the dean and chapter of Wells" (Reg. Worc.).

This man may be identical with the last abbot of Bruton, but we have no proof of it. The vicar made his will March 28, 1548, and it was proved April 18 following, it is at Somerset House (P.C.C. 5 Populwell). I have made a copy of it, there is nothing in it to show any connection with Bruton, he desires to be buried "in the chancel of Pokylchurche."

Against the name of John Elye is a curious mark $\sim\bar{\Pi}3\ddot{v}\ddot{v}$ which I have tried to reproduce, but of which I cannot find out the meaning. Richard Sartor must be the same as Richard Stacye I suppose. Richard Alford's name does not appear, he was apparently away from Bruton, perhaps in disgrace, possibly in prison still; but in the pension list his name is restored at the bottom of the list with a pension of 5*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*

This list shows that several of the canons of Bruton were graduates of the University of Oxford. I give below their degrees and the reference to the register of that university, edited by the late Mr. Boase and published by the Oxford Historical Society:—

John Eley, abbot, B.A., R.U.O., I. 82.
 Rich. Bishop, B.A., I. 80.
 Rich. Harte, B.D., I. 148.
 John Dunster, B.D., I. 156.
 Will. Wilton, M.A., I. 143.

Thus at the time of the Dissolution the abbot and four of the canons were graduates of Oxford, while two of the junior members of the house were "scholars" there; they evidently had to leave the university when their support was cut off: for the names of neither of them are to be found in the register. Hugh Backwell became a vicar choral in Wells cathedral. His father's name was Tynte and he was born at Backwell, he witnesses the will of a brother vicar choral on February 1, 1545-6¹ as Sir Hugh Tynte alias Backwell; on September 1, 1554 Hugh Tinte was instituted rector of Kingweston, he resigned in 1558.² Whether this is the same man or not I do not know, but I do know that our Bruton friend was buried in the churchyard belonging to Wells cathedral, for on May 20, 1559, Richard Camell, vicar choral of Wells, makes his will and desires to be buried "in cemiterio ecclesie Welles juxta corpus Hugonis Backwell defuncti."³

Of John Harrold the other "scholar in Oxon," I can find no trace. John Spicer went to Oxford after the Dissolution and took his B.A. degree March 7, 1541-2 (R.U.O., I. 203), he afterwards became incumbent of a "service" in the church of Wellington, and was pensioned when the chantries were dissolved in 1548,⁴ he probably was a native of Bruton, for Edward Spicer was one of the governors of the Grammar School, July 23, 14 Elizabeth (1572). Of Richard Halford or Alford of whom we have heard so much, all I know is that in March, 1545-6 we find him acting as one of the two chantry priests celebrating in the parish church of Shepton Mallet.⁵ Harte,

Bishop, Dunster, Backwell, Alford, Burgh, Welles, Stacey, Castlyn and Harrold were all living in Feb. 1555-6 the date of Cardinal Pole's pension list.¹

"The site of the Abbey, the home estates and impropriated tithes and patronage of Bruton and all its chapelries were first leased and then sold to Sir Maurice Berkley in 1541. Nothing was retained for any sacred purpose but the churches and the stipend of five chaplains namely Bruton 8*l.*, Brewham 6*l.*, Pitcombe 5*l.*, Redlynch 4*l.*, Wyke 4*l.*, in all 27*l.*, a spoliation which has left its mark upon the religious condition of the neighbourhood." So writes the learned Bishop Hobbhouse in his very interesting sketch of Ancient Bruton before referred to. These cures continued in the first instance to be served by the former canons of the abbey. Richard Bishop (formerly sub-prior) was serving Pitcombe from 1542—1548, and living at Bruton continued to do so till his death.

His burial at Bruton on May 12, 1566, is recorded in the Bruton Registers.

In a Pitcombe will dated 1548 he is styled "Richard Busshope curat of Pitcome," and the testator leaves to him "one sheppe."²

The fate of the other canons, gathered chiefly from extracts from wills at the Wells District Probate Registry, is as follows:—

1. Richard Herte attests a Brewham will as "curat of Brewham," 2 December, 1538, i.e., a few months before the surrender.
2. "Sir Robert Wellys" attests two Brewham wills in 1540 and 1541, which shows that he was serving that cure at these dates. "Sir Robar Wells" attests a Batcombe will dated 3 April, 1556.

In 1548 Robert Wether alias Wells of the age of 68 years was incumbent of one of the chantries in Wells cathedral, but I think that he is a different man from the Bruton canon.

Robert Wellis admitted B.A. 1524 sup. for D.D. October, 1540 [Fasti, 106], R.U.O., I. 135, is probably not the Bruton canon.

3. William Burge, clerk, of the age of 51 years was in 1548 incumbent of one of the four chantries founded by bishop

Nicholas Bubwith in Wells cathedral [Somerset Chantries, 160], he may be identical with "Will Burges, fraterer," at any rate the former's name is spelt Burges in several wills of Wells persons.

4. John Dunster, S.T.B., was instituted rector of Kingsdon, 11 December, 1556, and held the benefice till his death in 1558 (Somerset Incumbents, 118). A man of the same name was at the Dissolution prior of Sherborne abbey, but the degree shows that the Bruton canon was rector of Kingsdon.
5. Richard Stacye became curate of Baltonsborough, a parish near Glastonbury, and in that capacity he attests wills dated: 19 June, 1544; 22 October, 1545; 12 December, 1545; 1 November, 1546. In the last, William Goodson "prist of Glaston," who I think was one of the Glastonbury monks, leaves to "Sir Richard Stacy, curate of Balsborow, my best typpett."

6. Sir John Gylis attests a will dated 14 March, 1540-1, as "curate of Chewton."
7. Thomas Horte alias Yetton, "of thage of lxvj yeres an impotent and lame man," incumbent of "The Gylde of Stokelane alias Michell Stoke, within the paryshe of Doultynge." [Somerset Chantries, 120] I am not sure of the identity of the two last.

The Destruction of the Buildings.

When the Somersetshire Archaeological and Natural History Society visited Bruton in August, 1857, the late Mr. J. G. Bord read a paper on Bruton (see vol. vii, p. 10) which contained these words; "The manor of Brewton was granted by the crown in 37 Henry VIII to Sir Maurice Berkeley, who made Bruton abbey his residence by converting it into a mansion. . . . The great hall of the abbey was destroyed by fire on Michaelmas Day 1763, and the abbey was taken down A.D. 1786."

Later on the handsome range of stables was taken down in part and converted into a residential house for the curate of the church. To commemorate the former existence of a monastic establishment at this place, the following tablet was affixed to the walls of the house :

"HÆC DOMUS
 E RELIQUIIS
 ABBATIÆ OLIM DE BRUTON
 CONSTRUCTA
 ET AD USUM ECCLESIAE
 NUPER CONVERSA
 ANNO 1822.
 R. C. HOARE, PATRONO."¹

The abbey estate was purchased by the Hoare family from the representatives of the Berkeleys (of whom the Bruton branch had recently become extinct) ; in 1777 it was purchased jointly by Henry Hoare of Stourhead, Esq., and Richard Hoare of Barn Elms, Esq., and was settled on Sir Richard Colt Hoare, Bart.²

The spoliation of the abbey and the gradual destruction of it speedily ensued, for in the churchwardens' accounts of this parish (Milton Clevedon) under date 1790, there is an entry to the effect that the tower of Milton church was "built with 1192 feet of stone from Bruton Abbey."

MONTACUTE AND THE CONGREGATION OF CLUNY.

The history of the Cluniac Order presents us with features of special interest in the general history of the development of the monastic idea in Christendom. In many ways it was parallel with the history of the regular canons of St. Augustine. As we have already seen, the church had perceived at a very early date that some system was necessary to bind the parochial clergy together, that their education might be improved and their spiritual life deepened. And so we have the history which has been recorded in the previous section on Bruton. But meanwhile there was that great and increasing crowd of religious outside the ranks of the clergy and slowly losing touch with the monastic system of St. Benedict of Nursia. Many a warning voice was raised by holy and wise churchmen of the eighth and ninth centuries, against the prevailing laxity of the monasteries, and against the variety, and even the absence, of definite rules of monastic life. Benedict, a Goth born in the city of Maguelone, and once a warrior in the train of the great Karl, endeavoured to bring back the monastic world to the principles of his great namesake. In 776 he forsook the Court and found refuge in the monastery of St. Seine. There his austerity and simplicity soon aroused the opposition of his fellow monks, though when the abbot died, their conscience and their knowledge of his remarkable fitness for the office compelled them to offer him the vacant post. But Benedict refused, aware, as he was, of the divergency of views between himself and the majority of his comrades, and with two or three companions of zeal and earnestness, withdrew and founded a monastery on the banks of the Aniane. Here he was so successful that in 782 he had to rebuild his earlier settlement and provide accommodation for 1,000 monks, so great had his fame become and so great was the influence he exerted. In 814 when Hlodwig succeeded his father Karl, Benedict came into greater favour at the Court, and the monastery of the Inde, which Hlodwig gave him, became the head-quarters from which Benedict watched the growth of the monastic spirit in Aquitaine, Burgundy and Septimannia. In 817, was held at Aachen a council at which Benedict presided and in which was drawn up his code of monastic rules. In the previous year a similar council was held for the framing of rules for the lives of canons and canonesses. The rules of Benedict consisted of some 70 canons and in them he endeavoured to accomplish some uniformity in monastic life. He took as the foundation for his code the rule of his great namesake, and he tried to bring all other rules and systems, such as that of St. Columbanus, into conformity with it. But Benedict was a reformer within the existing circle of monastic life. So greatly had the rule of St. Benedict of Nursia been neglected that the second Benedict was sometimes said to have been the author of the code of the fifth century. The age was not prepared for anything new. It was enough to remind men how far they had wandered from the teaching of the founder of Monte Cassino. That and the example of religious fervour and monastic zeal which Benedict showed them, was as much as his generation was prepared to accept.

A hundred years afterwards came the next step. This was no longer a reform of what existed but a development of it. The monks of Cluny were certainly Benedictines, but they were something more, and though the connection was very close, yet they kept themselves quite distinct from the older order. Their system was founded on the earlier one, but it was more rigid, and it displayed peculiarities which had not been seen before. It was founded through the munificence of William, Count of Auvergne, who about 909 invited his relative Berno, abbot of Gigni, to choose a place in his dominions on which to found a monastery. Berno chose Cluny, a retired spot on the river Grone, about 12 miles N.W. of Macon, in the province of Burgogne. He began work, it is said, with the usual twelve companions, and the success which followed his efforts brought him many requests that he would undertake the reform of neighbouring monasteries of the Benedictine order. One feature of special importance in the foundation of Cluny was that, after Berno, the monastery was to be free to elect its own abbot without any interference from the descendants of the founder. Another element of strength was the union and subordination of later foundations to the rule of the Abbot of Cluny. No priory could be independent of the abbot of the parent monastery, it was not allowed to elect its own prior, he was appointed by special commission from Cluny. Even an ordinary monk had to travel to Cluny to be professed in the monastic chapel there. And this system of union of the priories and cells of the order and subordination of authority ensured that perfection of discipline which for the age was especially necessary. Up to that time the Benedictine foundations were sustained by their obedience to a code of rules, and the vigilance of the abbot. The new order of Cluny, equally dependent for much of its discipline on the same code, was further strengthened by the oneness of the congregation which bound all its members together in the common tie of obedience to the Abbot of Cluny. This was its great feature and the cause of its early success. It was founded on the rule of St. Benedict, but was a more rigorous system, and less weight was given to the personal influence of the priors of the allied houses.

Berno died in 927, and was succeeded by Odo, whose greater fame has almost eclipsed that of Berno as founder of the order. Nor was the influence of Odo confined to Aquitaine or Burgundy. Three times he visited Italy to undertake the reformation of monasteries where the spiritual life was decayed or to procure advantages for his own particular home. Under him and his successor Aymard, the system of Cluny spread through Burgundy, Aquitaine and Neustria, and in Majolus the congregation had an abbot who had refused the papacy, and in Odilo—rex Odilo,¹ the satirists of the time called him—a saint whose prayers had brought comfort to the troubled soul of Benedict VIII. In later times the congregation was divided into 10 provinces of Dauphigny, Auvergne, Poitou, Saintonge, Gascony, Spain, Italy, Lombardy, Germany and Burgundy, England and Scotland.

When in the course of time the Benedictines had thoroughly organised themselves, and Cistercians and Carthusians and other new developments of monastic fervour had left the rigorous system of Cluny far behind in the competition for that patronage which procured the bounty of the laity, the order became more and more a distinctly French foundation and naturally as such ceased to exert any but a limited influence. In England, in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, the congregation was especially distrusted until by a severance of their obedience they became a recognised national system.

The first foundation in England was that of Lewes in Sussex, founded in 1077 by William of Warren and Gundrada his wife, and four years afterwards Earl Roger of Shrewsbury founded a similar house at Wenlock. The prior of Lewes seems always to have had an official position over the English houses, acting generally as the vice-chamberlain of the Abbot of Cluny. At the time of the Dissolution there were about forty-eight priories and subordinate cells, of which the greater number had been founded before the reign of Henry II. and the last Cluniac foundation is said to have been that of Slevesham in Norfolk.

The house at Montacute was due to the munificence of William, Count of Mortain in 1102, and it became almost immediately the refuge of the defeated ætheling Eadmund and the scene of his death. On the hill top of Lutgaresbury, as Montacute was wont to be called, in his lordship in Somerset, there had been found that miraculous crucifix in honour of which Tofig the great Danish thegn had built, and Earl Harold enlarged, the minster at Waltham. The miraculous nature of the crucifix had been discovered in the time of Cnut¹ and there seems subsequently to have been settled there a college of priests. When Robert of Mortain, brother of the Conqueror, was adding manor to manor of his vast estates in the south-west, he obtained by exchange the hill which became then known as Montacute, and built on it a castle to overawe the district around. How the Cluniac foundation of William, son of Robert, got possession of the earlier ecclesiastical foundation and the Norman castle, the charters themselves relate. Among the priors it will be noticed that until the time of Henry IV. they all have foreign names, and their connection with France and dependence on Cluny was at once a cause of decay and a reason for the subsequent action of the crown. Among the petitions to the crown² in the reign of Edward III. (4 Edward III.), 1330, is one called Supplicatio Cluniacensium in which this dependence on Cluny is severely condemned. It declares that there is great decay among the Cluniac priories and a general decline of numbers, particularly at Bermondsey and Montacute; large sums of money were being sent out of the country and the rents of English acres went to support subjects of the French King. French monks were said to rule everything, and English monks were always being kept in subjection. Owing to the rule that monks could only be professed at Cluny there were said to be only twenty monks in the province; some monks were forty years before they were professed, and some had never been professed at all. The houses also were exempt from visitation by the Archbishop or the bishops or by any one of the English nation. The result of the petition was an order that the priors and abbots amend the cause of complaint. The outbreak of the French war and the influence of the French nation on the popes at Avignon made these purely French priories a source of danger which at the time was not lost sight of. In 1339¹ the advowson of Montacute was handed over by the crown to William de Montacute, Earl of Salisbury, and in 1414 the possession of these alien priories were placed in perpetuity in the King's hands except so far as they had become denizens by renouncing their allegiance to Cluny and recognising the grantee of the advowson as their patron. This Montacute did in 1407, and therefore from that date till the Dissolution it remained a distinctly English monastery. The four dependent cells of Holne, St. Karroc, Karswell and Malpas went with it in this change of allegiance. Holne was in Dorset, St. Karroc in Cornwall in the parish of St. Veep, Karswell in Devon, in the parish of Broad Hembury, and Malpas in Monmouth near the junction of the Ebwy with the Usk. In 1457 a deputation of these monks arrived in England from Cluny to petition Henry VI. for the restitution of the connection between Cluny and the English priories. The loss of obedience seemed to be a more serious matter than the loss of tribute. The incident, however, served only to make more definite the severance of the English houses and to unite them under a new organisation of which the prior of Lewes was the head.

Four Cluniac cells fell in 1525, when Wolsey dissolved forty small monasteries to endow his two foundations at Oxford and Ipswich. The suppression of Montacute is related below.

I have compared this list, which is taken from Archbold's Somerset Religious Houses, p. 122-3, with the pension list in the Bodleian Library (Rawlinson MS. B. 419), and the latter reads Thomas Ham for Thomas Hurme and Lawrens Hertford for Lawrens Herforde. I believe the Rawlinson MS. to be correct, and Hurme is probably a misreading of Hamme.

Dr. Gasquet in his work, Henry VIII and the English Monasteries, gives the names of four cells belonging to Montacute Priory: Carswell (Devon) S. of Exeter; St. Cyrus (Cornwall) near East Looe; Holme (Dorset) W. of Abbotsbury; Malpas (Monmouth) S.E. of Chepstow. The two last of these are mentioned in the pension list, and the two first are counted as part of the Montacute property. See Somerset Religious Houses, p. 213, where we suppose that "cell of St. Karoch" is the same as "St. Cyrus."

Of the seventeen monks named above no less than twelve were living at the date of Cardinal Pole's Pension List (February 24, 1555-6) their names are given as.¹

Robert Gibbes alias Whitelock.

Robert Warren.

Thomas Taunton.

William Dyer.

John Crybbe.

John Webbe.

John Clerke.

William Wynter.

John Pawley.

John Symmes.

William Crese.

John (sic) Rogers.

Taking the names in the pension list in order, I have not been able to discover very much as to the fate of the monks.

Robert Sherborne, alias Whitlocke alias Gibbes the prior, had a pension of £80, and for a dwelling house a mansion in East Chinnock with a garden adjoining. It is evident from his will, which is given in extenso at the conclusion of these notes, that he died at East Chinnock to which church he leaves 13s. 4d. He died between June 2 and September 15, 1560, thus having lived a little over 21 years from the time of the dissolution of his house. He mentions in his will four of the monks of Montacute—Dyer, Cryssey, Rogers and Palle.

In Somerset Chuntries, p. 9, we find that in 1548, William Dyer, clerk, incumbent (not resident) of the chantry founded in the church of South Petherton by Henry, late Earl of Bridgwater, received yearly from the chantry funds towards his living £6. We have, however, no proof that this person is identical with the Montacute monk of the same name, but it is interesting to note that Montacute and South Petherton are neighbouring parishes.

John Crybbe was instituted rector of Keinton Mandeville August 14, 1554, and resigned in 1560. (Somerset Incumbents, p. 113.)

In 1541 Sir John Webbe attests a will as "curat of Bledon." but his identity with the monk of Montacute is doubtful.

William Wynter attests the will dated October 1, 1541, of Thomas Chard, bishop of Selymbria and formerly prior of Montacute, then residing at Taunton. The bishop leaves his old friend "a salte of sylver with a cover parcell gylte and a sylver cuppe with a cover and the bed that he lieth in with all the appurtenance." Proc. S.A.S. xxxvii. ii. 11.

Sir Thomas Symmes, rector of Compton Martin, Somerset, in his will dated September 10, 1543, bequeaths to "my cosyn Sir John Symys my best gowlne and my sasnot typpyt." Sir John Symys attests the will: he may be identical with the Montacute monk, but the name is not an uncommon one in the county.

Of Sir William Crysse, Cryssey, or Crese, we have more definite information: he attested two wills of parishioners of Dundry, a "capella" in the parish of Chew, bearing date August 22, 1542 and March 4, 1543-4, and in each case the testator speaks of him as "my gostly father."

The following is the will of the last prior of Montacute: it is enrolled at Somerset House [46 Mellersh] and has been printed in Proc. S.A.S. xxxviii.

"In the name of God, Amen. The seconde daye of June, in the yere of over lorde God 1560.

PRIORS OF MONTACUTE.

The following list of the Priors of Montacute in the twelfth century is derived from the History of Abbies (vol. ii. p. 199) by Browne Willis, who took it "from a MS. in the Cottonian Library, numbered Tiberius A. 10, as they are there figured and entered, without dates." As, however, this MS. was severely injured in the fire of 1731, and so "reduced to a state little better than a crust," it cannot now be used for practical purposes. The list is certainly not exhaustive, and there is reason to doubt whether the names given in it are in their proper sequence.

- 1 Walter ; 2 Pontius ; 3 Guigonus ; 4 Ranulph ; 5 Ailmer ; 6 Arnold ; 7 Durand ; 8 William ; 9 Jocelin ; 10 Thomas ; 11 Hugh ; 12 Vigo ; 13 Richard ; 14 Pontius ; 15 Peter ; 16 Simon ; 17 Simon ; 18 Daniel.

² John Morles [Moreleyes (Rawlinson, B. 419)] had an annuity of xx^s from Montacute Priory.

The following list has been compiled from various sources, for the present volume :--

- R. He is mentioned in a charter of Eudo Dapifer (M 47 in this volume) which is not later than 1120.
- E. He is mentioned in a charter of Hamo de St. Clare (M 48 in this volume), who was alive in 1136.
- Durand. He is mentioned in two charters of Matilda Peverel (M 141, 142 in this volume).
- Arnold. He is mentioned in a charter of William son of Rogo (M 155 in this volume).
- William. He was prior in 1159. (Historical MSS. Commission. Report on MSS. of Wells Cathedral, p. 15.) He is mentioned in a charter of Gunfred de Wermewelle. (M 130 in this volume.)
- Thomas. He was appointed Abbot of Hyde in 1175. (Annales Monastici, ed. Luard, vol. ii. p. 61.)
- G[uy?]. He is mentioned in a charter (M 38 in this volume) which appears to belong to the year 1179.
- Oliver. He was prior of Montacute at the time when Hugh was prior of Lewes, which was about 1186. (Ancient Deeds in the Public Record Office, A. 217. See also Pipe Roll Society, Ancient Charters, pp. 78, 79.)
- Jocelin. He was prior in 1187. (See M 58.)
- Durand. He was prior at the time when Savaric was Bishop of Bath, that is between 1192 and 1205. (Historical MSS. Commission. Report on MSS. of Wells Cathedral, p. 170.) In 1207, he was accused by the sub-prior and convent of maladministration, and the King directed the Bishop to eject him if the charges were proved. (Rotuli Litterarum Patentium, ed. Hardy, p. 78.) He was, however, restored in 1217, and again ejected after another quarrel. (Annals of Lewes, quoted in Dugdale's Monasticon, vol. v. p. 163.)
- Mark. He is said to have been skilled in medicine. He is mentioned in five charters, one of which is dated 1237 and another 1246. (M 22, 102, 185, 187, 209, in this volume.) William, Abbot of Cluny, came to Montacute in 1251 and ejected him. (Cotton MS. Tiberius A 10, quoted in Dugdale's Monasticon, vol. v. p. 164; Rotuli Hundredorum, vol. ii. p. 126.)

- Roger. Browne Willis calls him Roger Normannus. He occurs in the charter numbered M 152 in this volume. He was transferred by the Abbot of Cluny to the priory of Lenton in 1260. (Patent Roll, 44 Hen. III. m. 4.)
- Hugh de Noyers. His appointment as prior by the Abbot of Cluny was approved by the King 17 September, 1260. (Patent Roll, 44 Hen. III. m. 3.) He is mentioned as prior in 1261, in the charter numbered M 112 in this volume. He appears to have been ejected. (Rotuli Hundredorum, vol. ii. p. 126.)
- Gilbert de Bexolio. The temporalities of the priory were restored to him, at the request of Ivo, Abbot of Cluny, 30 January, 1266. (Patent Roll, 50 Hen. III. m. 32.)
- Guy de Mercant. He was appointed prior in 1269. (Cotton MS. quoted in Dugdale's Monasticon, vol. v. p. 164.) He occurs in the charter numbered M 95 in this volume. In July 1279, the King, in consideration of a fine of 60 marks, pardoned his offence in clipping the coin, of which he had been indicted before the justices. (Patent Roll, 7 Edw. I. m. 14; Rotulorum Originalium Abbreviatio, vol. i. p. 33.) He was doubtless ejected in consequence, and he is described as "formerly prior of Montacute" in another pardon granted to him in December, 1284, in consideration of a fine of 200 marks, the fresh offences charged against him being the clipping and forging of coins and the receipt of Jews' goods. (Calendar of Patent Rolls, p. 147; Rotulorum Originalium Abbreviatio, vol. i. p. 49.)
- Peter. Browne Willis calls him Peter Gaudemer, and states that he was appointed in 1289. He is mentioned as prior in March, 1290. (Calendar of Patent Rolls, p. 348.)
- John de Bello Ramo. He was appointed prior by the Abbot of Cluny, and he received restitution of the temporalities in June, 1292. (Calendar of Patent Rolls, p. 493.)
- Geoffrey de Dosa. He was appointed prior by the Abbot of Cluny, and he received restitution of the temporalities in July, 1293. (Calendar of Patent Rolls, p. 33.)
- Stephen Raulun. He was appointed prior by the Abbot of Cluny, and approved by the King in July 1297. (Calendar of Patent Rolls, p. 288.) He is mentioned as prior in 1305 and 1316 in the charters numbered M 43 and 137 in this volume. (See also M 56.) He appears to have resigned, for he was still alive in February, 1317, when he is described as Stephen, late prior of Montacute. (Calendar of Close Rolls, p. 395.)

John Cheverer, called in Latin 'Caprarius' or 'Caprarii.' He was appointed prior by the Abbot of Cluny, and he received restitution of the temporalities in October 1316. (Patent Roll, 10 Edw. II. part i. m. 13.) In February 1317, the sheriff of Somerset was directed to stay until Whitsuntide the arrest of John Cheverer, prior of Montacute, brother Stephen, late prior of the same, Roger de Criche, sub-prior, brother Philip, chamberlain, brother Peter de la Douse (doubtless a relation of the prior of 1293), brother William de Beamen, and others, all of whom had been indicted for taking arms and provisions to the Scots. (Calendar of Close Rolls, p. 395.) In 1320, John Caprarii, prior of Montacute, obtained from the pope the reservation of a dignity or office to be given to him by the abbot and convent of Cluny on his resignation of Montacute. (Calendar of Papal Registers, vol. ii. p. 216.) In 1325, he had licence from the pope to be non-resident for a year, while staying in France. (Ibid., pp. 248, 249.) His journey evidently proved successful, for he shortly obtained another office and resigned Montacute. (Ibid., p. 257.)

Guichard de Jou. He was appointed prior by the Abbot of Cluny, and he received restitution of the temporalities in June, 1326. (Patent Roll, 19 Edw. II. part 2, m. 5.) The pope, however, doubtless on the ground of his grant to John Cheverer in 1320, claimed the right of appointment and nominated Robert Busse, a Benedictine monk of Tavistock. The refusal of the convent, supported by the Abbot of Cluny, to admit the proctor of Robert Busse, gave rise to litigation, in the course of which the papal nominee died. The pope thereupon appointed Peter de Mortemart, cardinal of St. Stefano Rotondo, to be prior in his place, and Guichard de Jou was cited to appear at Avignon. (Calendar of Papal Registers, vol. ii. pp. 257, 277, 278.) Guichard appears to have repaired to the papal court in October 1328 (Calendar of Close Rolls, p. 415) but things went against him there, and he eventually applied to the King for help. (Ancient Petitions, Public Record Office, No. 9666.) In February, 1331, the King took up his cause warmly, and wrote a remonstrance to the pope, insisting that Guichard de Jou had been properly appointed, that the cardinal, not being a monk, was unqualified and that such papal provisions to monasteries were not recognised in England. (Rymer's Fœdera, vol. ii. p. 807.) The pope thereupon attempted a compromise by nominating Guichard, whom he styled only a monk of Cluny, to the priory of Lenton, and appointing Geoffrey de Chintriac to Montacute. (Calendar of Papal Registers, vol. ii. pp. 346, 347.) In October 1332, however, he appointed Philip de Chintriac to be prior of Montacute in succession to Humbert de Banhaco, who had been promoted to Parois le Monial. (Ibid., p. 370.) Philip was to hold the priory together with the cell of Carswell, of which he was already prior, but it is almost certain that the convent never recognised him as their head. Prior Guichard's troubles, however, were not at an end, for some years later, John de Henton, a Benedictine monk of Sherborne (Register of Bp. Ralph, p. 368), having somehow been appointed "guardian" of Montacute (during the war), filed a complaint against him before the King's Council. He asserted that, as there were several aliens in the house, the secrets of the realm were being betrayed, that the priors of Kerswell and Barnstaple and other aliens, who had been indicted in Devonshire of communicating with the Abbot of Cluny, had been received at Montacute as guests, that the goods of the priory had been put beyond his reach, and that the prior himself was so infirm as to be incapable of managing the establishment. (Ancient Petitions, Public Record Office, No. 10,488.) The convent on the other hand asserted that the custody of the priory had been committed to their prior for a yearly payment of 120*l.*, and contended that he was far more fitted to watch over its interests than a monk of another order, who ought to devote his attention to his own priory at Horton, which was a cell of Sherborne. (Ancient Petitions,

No. 10,489.) The controversy was thereupon referred to Thomas de Marleberge and Ralph de Middelneye, and they, with the aid of a local jury, sitting at Montacute, reported against John de Henton, declaring that his statements were false, that prior Guichard was perfectly competent, and that the priory was exempt from the ordinary jurisdiction of archbishops, bishops, or other ecclesiastics except the Abbot of Cluny. (Ancient Petitions, No. 10,490.) Their return was made in the spring of 1339, and we may fairly suppose that prior Guichard was not again molested.

John la Porta, I. The exact date of his appointment has not yet been discovered. His father's name was P. la Porta, his mother's name was Dalfina, and he appears to have been a native of Ussac in the diocese of Limoges. In 1343, he describes himself as an ancient bachelor of canon law, chaplain of the cardinal of St. Sabina's, and prior of Montacute. (Calendar of Petitions to the Pope, vol. i. p. 25.) In the following year, he and his monks obtained the pope's assent to the appropriation of the church of Creech which was of their patronage, on the ground that they had begun to rebuild their own church which had been destroyed. (Ibid., p. 42.) In January 1345, the pope ordered the Abbot of Cluny to receive the resignation of John la Porta, and to give the priory to a fit person (Calendar of Papal Registers, vol. iii. p. 15.), but the prior appears to have died before completing his resignation.

John la Porta, II. a monk of Montacute. In December 1345, the pope granted his petition for the priory of Montacute, vacant by the death of his brother. (Calendar of Petitions to the Pope, vol. i. p. 90.).

Gerald de Roche. He is said to be mentioned as prior in 1362 in the episcopal registers at Wells. Under his christian name only, he occurs in several charters of that year and the following in this volume. (M 200, 202, 203, 204.)

Francis de Baugiaco. He was appointed prior of Prittlewell in Essex, in 1361. (Dugdale's Monasticon, vol. v. p. 21.) At the end of the following year, he applied to the pope for the priory of Montacute, vacant by the promotion of the late prior to the priory of Lewes, and his request was granted.

(Calendar of Petitions to the Pope, vol. i. p. 393.) In 1371, Francis, prior of Montacute, received from the King a grant of the custody of the priory and its possessions during the war with France for a yearly payment of 120*l.* as before. (Page 218 of this volume.) There was, however, long and troublesome litigation on the subject in the early part of the reign of Richard II. (M 217.) Prior Francis was apparently ejected on account of his French sympathies.

Nicholas Hornyk de Montibus, a friar minor. There is an undated petition from him to the King, evidently Richard II., in which he asks for the arrest of his predecessor Francis, with a note thereon of the King's approval. (Ancient Petitions, No. 12,495.) The ejected prior, on the other hand, entered two protests and asked for assistance from Parliament. (Ancient Petitions, Nos. 6219, 9917.)

Francis de Baugiaco, restored. In November 1399, Henry IV. gave up to him the priory of Montacute which had been taken into the King's hands on account of the war with France, and at the same time released him and his successors from all payment on account of the grant made by Edward III. to William, Earl of Salisbury. (Rymer's Fœdera, ed. 1727, vol. viii. p. 103; Rolls of Parliament, vol. iv. p. 27.) Francis is mentioned once more as prior in January 1403. (Acts of the Privy Council, vol. i. p. 192.)

William Cryche. He was appointed prior in 1403. (Register of Archbishop Arundel, fol. 292.) In his time, 300 marks were paid to Henry IV. for a very important declaration, that whereas he and all the monks were of English birth the convent should be accounted denizen and excepted from the laws applicable to alien priories. (Rolls of Parliament, vol. iv. p. 27; Patent Roll, 8 Henry IV. part 2, m. 10.) This was followed, early in the reign of Henry V., by another important order, that future priors should be elected by the convent, the monks being left free to settle matters as they could with the Abbot of Cluny, and the pope. (Rolls of Parliament, as above.) William Cryche is mentioned in Hutchins' History of Dorset (vol. i. p. 553.)

- John Bennet. He is stated to have been prior in 1449. (MS. note by Willis, cited in the Monasticon.)
- Robert Montague. He is stated to have been appointed in February, 1452. (Register of Bishop Bekynton, cited in the Monasticon.) He died in office.
- Robert Newton, a monk of Glastonbury. On the death of Robert Montague, the sub-prior and convent made over their right of election to the Bishop of Winchester and the Earl of Wiltshire, and they nominated Newton, who received restitution of the temporalities in November 1458. (Patent Roll, 37 Henry VI. part i. m. 14.) He resigned at the end of 1461 or the beginning of 1462. (Patent Roll, 1 Edw. IV. part 5, m. 23.)
- Robert Criche. He received restitution of the temporalities in the counties of Somerset, Dorset, Hants, Wilts, Devon, Cornwall, and Gloucester, and in the Marches of Wales, in February 1462. (Patent Roll, 1 Edw. IV. part 4, m. 22.) He died in office.
- John Doure or Dore. He received restitution of the temporalities in April 1467. (Patent Roll, 7 Edw. IV. part 1, m. 14.) He died in office.
- John Walter. He received restitution of the temporalities in June, 1483. (Rymer's Fœdera, vol. xii. p. 186.)
- Thomas Chard. He received restitution of the temporalities in July, 1514. (Patent Roll, 6 Hen. VIII. part 2, m. 25.) About eight years previously, he had been consecrated as a bishop, taking his title from Solubria, or Selymbria, in Thrace. He obtained the parsonage of Wellington in 1512. (Weaver's Somerset Incumbents, p. 462.) From 1513 to 1518, he was warden of the college at Ottery St. Mary. (Oliver's Monasticon Exoniensis, p. 261.) He was benefactor to Tintinhull church, which was appropriated to Montacute. (Somerset Record Society, vol. iv. p. 204.) He resigned the priory in, or before, July 1532. (Patent Roll, 24 Hen. VIII. part 2, m. 17.) In lieu of a pension, he took the office of prior of Carswell, a cell dependent on Montacute. (Letters and Papers, Hen. VIII. vol. vi. No. 504; vol. ix. No. 116; Valor Ecclesiasticus, vol. i. p. 196.) His will is dated 1 October 1541, and it was proved sixteen days later. (Pro- ceedings of Somersetshire Archaeological Society, vol. xxxvii. part 2, p. 11.) Several writers have confounded him with Thomas Chard, alias Tybbes, the last abbot of Ford, but, apart from the fact that Ford was a Cistercian house, while Montacute was Cluniac, the two men had distinctive signatures and their styles of hand-writing were different. The ex-abbot of Ford survived until March 1554. (Ministers' Accounts, Henry VIII., 288, m. 10*d*.)

Robert Shirburn. He received restitution of the temporalities in August, 1532. (Patent Roll, 24 Hen. VIII. part 2. m. 17.) For this he undertook to pay 100*l*. to the King. (Letters and Papers, Hen. VIII. vol. v. No. 1213 ; vol. vi. No. 1613.) There is at the Public Record Office a letter from him to Thomas Cromwell, in which he excuses himself from presenting the King's nominee, Emeric Tucfield, to the parsonage of Tintinhull, on the ground that it had been appropriated to the priory in the time of his predecessor. (Ibid. vol. viii. No. 323.)

No. 220. Assize taken at Somerton before John Stonford and Hamon de Derworthy, justices of the lord the king assigned to take assizes in the county of Somerset, together with William Schareshull, on Monday the morrow of St. Lawrence, 22 Edw. III. The assize came to recognise if John de Chaumflour, of Sterte, and Emma his wife, Geoffrey, son of the same John, and

* In later hand Notes of the Pleas.

William Albin unjustly, &c., disseised Robert, the prior of Bruton, of common of his pasture in Babbecary, which pertains to his free tenement, viz. of common in two hundred and forty acres of arable land, sixteen acres of meadow, and ten acres of pasture, viz. in two parts of the said land after the corn is cut and bound, until that land is sown again, and in a third part of the same land every year throughout the whole year, and in the said meadow after the hay has been mowed until the feast of the Purification, and in the said pasture throughout the year with all his cattle, &c. Nicholas Albyn answers for the defendants as their bailiff, and for all, except John, he says that there was no injury or disseisin. And for John he says that whereas he is attached by the name of John Chaumflour his right name is John Chaumplour.

The recognitors say upon their oath that John de Chaumflour is well named, and that Steorte by itself is not a town but a hamlet. And they say that the prior and all his predecessors from a time to which memory runneth not, were seised of a parcel of the tenements put in view to which he claims common, and that the prior is seised of the other parcel of the tenements put in view, viz. of one messuage, two virgates of land, and five acres of meadow in Steorte by the feoffment of Philip de Welleslegh, for which purchase the prior shows the king's charter of licence, dated 10 February, in the eighteenth year of the present king. They also say that the said common, from a time to which memory runneth not, was appurtenant to all the tenements aforesaid. And that the prior was seised of the same common until the defendants disseised him to the damage of the said prior of one hundred shillings.

Therefore it is considered that the prior should recover his seisin thereof by the view of the recognitors of the assize aforesaid, and his damages aforesaid. And the aforesaid John and the others are in mercy, &c.

No. 324. Grant and confirmation of King Henry [II.], concerning Fol. 109. the manors of Horsley and Rungeton, made to the monks of Troarn.

Henry king of England, duke of Normandy and Aquitaine, and count of Anjou, to the archbishops, bishops, abbots, earls, justices, barons, sheriffs, ministers, and all his faithful men, French and English of the whole of England, greeting.

Know ye that I have granted and confirmed to God and St. Martin of Troart and to the monks there serving God, "pro salute," &c., all their lands, liberties and customs which they had in the kingdom of England in the time of the kings William and Henry my predecessors, to wit, Horsley, with all its appurtenances, which the aforesaid king William [I.] my great grandfather, gave to them in almoyn, so absolved and quit that my serjeants of Cirencestre shall not take anything in it as the same king William by his letter prohibited that same : and Rongeton and Haringey, with the appurtenances, which Roger, earl of Salop, gave to them : and three hides of land which Herleuain gave to them at Walteham : and the tithes of Grafam and of Estrementon, and two dwelling-houses in Cicestre : and the tithes of Merston which Oismelin gave to them : and the church of Mundreham which Turstin de Fontanis gave to them : and the tithes of Northburn which Ralph Bastard gave to them : and the tithe of Offam which Atso gave to them : and the church of St. Andrew of Witenehere, with the land of the priests and the tithes which to the same town pertain : and the church of Mapeldra, with the land of the priest and the land of one plough, with the meadows to the same land adjacent, and the tithes of the same town : and the church of Moland with the priest and the tithes of the same mansion and the land for one plough-land with the meadows : and three tenants (hospites) with their land : and in Espichewich one tenant and the church of Waroclia with the tithes, all which Robert de Romeilleio gave to them in almoyn. And besides this I will and order that ten hides of Horsleg shall be rated for seven hides for all gelds and all things, as king Henry granted and by his charter confirmed to them. Moreover I grant to the same church of St. Martin of Troart the land and houses in Winchester which John the marshal (marescallus) gave to them in almoyn, which the same John held of the fee of St. Peter of Hyde. Wherefore we will and firmly order that the aforesaid church of St. Martin of Troart and the monks there serving God shall have and hold all these things aforesaid so well and in peace, freely, quietly and honourably, in wood and plain, in meadows and feedings, in ways and paths, in waters and mills, within the town (burgus) and without, and in all places, with all liberties, customs, and quittances to the aforesaid lands and tenements pertaining, as ever better, more freely, more quietly, more honourably they held them in the time of king William, my great-grandfather, and king Henry, my grandfather, and as their charters testify, and as the charters of the aforesaid donors testify. And that they shall be as quit of shires and hundred courts and of pleas and plaints as they were in the times of my aforesaid ancestors kings of England.

No. 339. Confirmation by J[ohn de Greneford], bishop of Chichester, of an agreement as follows: G., the abbot, and the monks of Troarn, and Master Joceline, canon of Chichester, before J. bishop of Salisbury, and R. the archdeacon, had moved a controversy touching gold due to them annually from him in the name of the church of Mundeham, and the said Master Joceline, who possessed the said church in the name of the monks of Boxgrave, had demanded a certain tithe of the villeinage of the same monks, and a tithe of the lordship of Rungeton. The noble man William de Sancto Johanne, the lord and patron of Mundenham, in order that all controversy should be stopped, and peace reformed between the parties, was solicited. And he mediating between them, all controversy was renounced under this form. Roger de Johannis Villa and Hervey de Agneio, monks of Troarn, compounded the cause thus: The abbot and monks of Troarn renounced to the monks of Bosgrave all right which they demanded against Master Joceline in the church of Mundenham, and all litigation which they were going to move or could move by reason of certain charters, by which they said that the church of Mundenham was granted and confirmed to them, and they granted the said church of Mundenham to the prior and convent of Bosgrave and to Master Joceline, who shall hold it for his life in the name of the monks of Bosgrave, as he formerly held it on behalf of G. the abbot, and the monastery of Troarn, free and quit with the tithes of Mundenham. Also, Ralph, the prior, and the convent of Bosgrave, with the assent of Master Joceline and William de Sancto Johanne, granted to the monks of Troarn the tithes of the sheaves of the whole land of Rungeton, saving all other parochial rights there to the church of Mundenham. They also granted to them after the death of Master Joceline, the tithes of two hides, which are of the fee of Alan Zoche, one, to wit in Brommore, and the other in Honest[an], saving a third part to the vicar of Mundenham.

No. 363. Inquisition taken before Guy de Brian, William de Chyltenham, and Thomas de Sloughtre, at Gloucester, on Saturday next before the feast of St. John the Baptist 29 Edward III. [A.D. 1355] by virtue of a Commission of the Great Seal dated 6 June in the said year. By the oath of John de Draycote, William de Westmyngtote, John de Olpenne, John Notelyn, Thomas Skay, Thomas Colyns, Ralph Derham, John Gyffard, Walter Huwet, John Botiller, John Stonhuse, and John Symondes. Who say that the priory of Horslegh, in the county of Gloucester, of the foundation of the progenitors of the lord the king, is a cell of the priory of Bruton, and that the temporalities of the same cell on every vacancy of the priory of Bruton pertain to the king. And that the prior of that cell answers as canon and minister of the priory of Bruton for all issues and possessions thereto pertaining, saving the reasonable sustentation of himself and his servants to the prior of Bruton for the time being. And they say that Henry de Lyle, the now prior and warden of the said cell wasted and dissipated the goods and chatels thereof, viz. by cutting trees and selling wood to the value of one hundred pounds, selling sheep to the value of thirty pounds, and selling eighty oxen and cows falling to the cell for mortuaries and heriots in the time of the plague, to the value of ten pounds. And they say that Henry, now warden, ex capite proprio and without the licence of his prior, expended sixty pounds in going and returning to Rome and Venice.

Fol. 122. No. 364. Writ tested at Westminster 26 Oct. 35 Edw. III. [A.D. 1361] directed to John de Bekyngton, the escheator in the county of Surrey, reciting that Ralph, bishop of Bath and Wells, had confirmed brother Richard Cokkyngge, canon of Bruton, as prior of Bruton, and that the king had taken his fealty for the manors of Stonieston, county Somerset, Horselegh, county Gloucester, and Rungeton, county Sussex, which were taken into his hand by the death of Robert Coker, the last prior, commanding him to deliver to the said prior the manor of Stonyeston, in his bailiwick. Like writs are directed to Philip de Lutteleye, escheator in county Gloucester, touching the manor of Horseleghe, and to Philip atte Tye, escheator in county Sussex, touching the manor of Rungeton.

No. 365. In the account of John de Bekynton, the king's escheator, from the feast of St. Michael in the thirty-fifth year [Edward III.] to the feast of St. Michael next following, it is thus contained.

And [he renders an account of] five shillings and a penny of the issues of the manor of Stonyeston, which is the temporalities of the priory of Bruton lately vacant by the death of Robert

Coker, the last prior (and it is extended at nine pounds, nineteen pence by the year) from 3 Oct. in the said thirty-sixth year commencing (when the said abbey began to be vacant) until 30 Oct. next following before it was delivered to Ralph Cokkyng, the prior.

No. 366. Inquisition taken before William Auncell, escheator in county Gloucester, 4 July, forty-third Edward III. [1369]. By the oath of Hugh de Rodberwe, Henry Bordon, Philip Rodberwe, John Rommesey, William Mageorlynge, Robert Northcote, John Buryman, Stephen Brongar, Robert Skynner, Richard Tanner, Robert Lokerugge, and Thomas Clergys, who say that the priory of Horselegh is of the foundation of the king's progenitors, given by the king's progenitors to the abbot and convent of Troarne in Normandy to find a prior, one monk, and one parish chaplain to celebrate divine services for the king and his progenitors in the priory and the parish church there, and that he should make continuous residence and shall hold honest hospitality. And they say that the said abbot and convent gave the said priory to the prior of Bruton in exchange for the lands of the said prior in Normandy, to find a prior and a canon and a parish chaplain to celebrate divine services for the king and his progenitors. And they say that the prior of Horseleyge who is instituted and inducted for his life by the bishop of Worcester, at the presentation of the prior of Bruton, without the king's licence, has withdrawn the divine obsequies and hospitality for seven years. And they say that the priory of Horselegh has twice been vacant within fifteen years last elapsed whereby the king had no profit, but the prior of Bruton [had]. And they say that the prior of Horseleghe who now is, granted the manor of Horseleghe to the prior of Bruton for the term of the said prior of Horseleye without the licence of the king. Which manor is held of the king in chief as parcel of the said priory.

No. 367. Inquisition taken at Cirencestre, before William Auncell. Fol. 123. escheator in Gloucester, Hereford, and the Marches of Wales, 25 March, 43 Edward III. [1369]. By the oath of Geoffrey Aylwynce, Richard atte Hyde, Nicholas Amencye, Thomas Tresham, Walter Walteres, Henry Somervill, John Upcote, Robert Hamond, Roger de Morton, John de Fyfyde, Robert Russell, and Nicholas de Veye, who say that the priory of Horseleghe is held of the king in chief by exchange (as in the preceding inquisition). And they say that the priory of Horseleye is a cell of the priory of Bruton, and the priors of Bruton presented to the priory of Horseleye from ancient time one of their canons who was instituted and inducted by the bishop of Worcester. And that the prior of Horseleye shall have a canon of the priory of Bruton to dwell at Horseleye as his fellow to celebrate divine services continually for the king and his progenitors. And they say that the prior of Horseleye shall make continual residence in the priory and shall hold hospitality. Also the said prior shall sustain six poor persons in his hall there once every day at dinner, but now the divine obsequies, hospitality and sustentation of poor persons are withdrawn for seven years. They also say that the vacancy of the priory of Horseleye pertains to the king and that it has been vacant twice in fifteen years and the king took no profit therefrom.

No. 368. Writ of supersedeas dated 15 July, 45 Edward III. [1371] directed to the barons of the exchequer commanding them not to proceed with the demand against the prior of Bruton for the issues of the manor of Horsley taken into the king's hand by pretext of the presentments made before William Auncell, escheator in county Gloucester.

No. 369. Charter of king Edward III., dated at Westminster 20 July in the forty-third year of his reign [A.D. 1369], by which, upon the supplication of the prior of Bruton setting forth the exchange between the prior of Bruton and the abbot of Troarne and that on each vacancy of the priory of Bruton after that exchange the issues of the manor of Horseley had been answered for at the exchequer, William Auncell the escheator of Gloucester, pretending that the church of Horseley and the manor were one priory per se, and held of the king, and were to be charged for finding divers chantries and alms for the king and his heirs, and that he ought to answer to the king for the issues of the priory of Horseley at each vacancy, took the said manor into the king's hand, he orders the restitution of the said manor to the prior of Bruton.

No. 369. Inquisition ad quod damnum taken at Bristol 10 April, 45 Edward III. [1371]. By the oath of John Wykewyk, John de Weston, Hugh Staunton, John Swaylham, Roger Wallsh, Thomas Burnell, John Rolff, Thomas Wykewyke, John de Wyke, William Golde, Reginald Waleys, Robert atte Hay, and John Stanley, who say that it is not to the harm or prejudice of the king or of others if the king grant to the prior and convent of Bruton that they can have and hold in pure and perpetual almain the churches of Horselegh and Whyttenhurste, in the county of Gloucester, to their own uses, the right of the patronage of which churches they hold. Saving to the king and his heirs the custody of the manor of Horsleghe on every vacancy of the priory of Bruton. And that the said prior and his successors, from henceforth can present secular vicars to those churches, so that no canon shall be presented to the said churches nor a prior of Horselegh be nominated, but that the vicars so to be presented, when they shall be admitted and instituted, shall bear the sole care thereof. And they say that the canon of Bruton presented to the said churches was called prior of Horselegh, and another canon used to make his residence at Horselegh, and they were wont every day to feed sometimes six poor persons, and sometimes five or four, whether from devotion or right they know not.

No. 370. Account of the escheator for Horseley, and Rong[ton] in Fol. 125. the time of the vacancy.

In the account of Walter de Glowcester, the king's escheator on this side Trent, for the 26th, 27th, 28th, and 29th years of king Edward, son of king Henry.

Nine pounds thirteen pence of the issues of the manors, of Horseley, county Gloucester, and Rongton, county Sussex, which the said escheator, by virtue of his office, took into the hand of the king by reason of the vacancy of the priory of Bruton by the death of J[ohn de Gundham] the late prior, from the 3rd July in the 26th year, on which day he died, until the 26th August next following before the king rendered the said manors to brother Richard de la Grave.

No. 371. Account of the same escheator for the second year of king Edward, son of king Edward, and commencement of the third year thirteen pounds eighteen shillings and five pence farthing of the issue of the manors of Horseley and Rongton from 2 January, in the second year, on which day the escheator took those manors into the king's hand by the death of brother Richard, prior of Bruton, until 14 April next following before he delivered them to brother Walter de Legh.

No. 372. Writ tested at Westminster, 12 February, 9 Richard II [1386], reciting that whereas the prior and convent of Bruton holding the parish church of Suthpederton to their proper uses lately sued John Longe, Roger Tayllour, Thomas Whyte, John Swayne, and William Hayward, parishioners of the chapel of Sevenhampton, in the parish of the chapel of Suthpederton, in a Court Christian, because they carried away trees growing in the cemetery and sanctuary of the said chapel, and that Joan Taillour, of Sevenhampton, had procured the king's prohibition that that plea should not be prosecuted in a Court Christian, and signifying to them that notwithstanding the said prohibition they can prosecute the cause further in a Court Christian.

Fol. 126. No. 373. Ordinance made A.D. 1373 concerning the manor of Dychescove between the prior and the convent of Bruton, viz. that all issues and emoluments of the lands, tenements, meadows, and pastures of Dichescove, Bykewyke, and Redelyche, pertaining to the said manor, except the wood there, shall be converted to the pittance of the said convent to be distributed by the hands of the pittance who for the time shall be. Saving the heriots and mortuaries and a moiety of all fines, all which shall be reserved to the common uses of the monastery of Bruton. Also all emoluments and profits of tenements in Bruton pertaining to the said manor, together with four closes at Pupplesham, and all arable land in the fields of Bruton shall be converted to the common uses. But the sub-prior shall have for his solace ¹ from the lands of Dychescove which remain to the convent

In the presence of brother Richard, the prior, and the whole convent of Bruton after the decease of John de Mersshon who had the whole rent of the manor of Dychescove in his hand the whole of his life.

No. 374. Quitclaim by William Montacu, earl of Sarum, brother and heir of Simon Montacu, earl of Sarum, for the safety of his soul and a relief (remedium) for the sin of his ancestors in the premises, to Walter de Leghe, the prior, and to the canons of Bruton, of the tenement of Chedesey which the prior and convent of Bruton had at one time granted to one Simon Montacu his ancestor at perpetual farm at an annual rent of ten shillings, and which the said Simon had granted to Adam de Chedesey and his heirs for ever, at an annual rent of ten shillings.

No. 375. Grant by Richard Tyler', of Montacu, of a rent of five shillings issuing from a close called Hachecot, in Montacu, to the prior of Bruton and his successors, which rent was from a time beyond memory to find a lamp burning in the chapel of the Blessed Mary of the said priory at high mass.

Dated, at Montacu, on Monday next before the feast of St. Andrew the Apostle, 10 Henry IV. [1408.]

No. 376. Memorandum that the house of Bruton was founded in the year of the Incarnation of the Lord, 1142, viz. in the seventh year of king Stephen, nephew of king Henry I., in the times also of Innocent II., Theobald, archbishop of Canterbury, and the first Robert, bishop of Bath and Wells. In whose time, to wit, of Robert [bishop] of Bath, the canons of Bruton had the hundred and market of Alexander de Cantilupe, together with his land of Combe and with all other things which the same Alexander had in the said town of Bruton at fee farm, free and quit from all service, except two marks to be paid annually to the lord the king. All which things William Tankervill, the chamberlain of the lord king Stephen, confirmed as lord of that fee. And also Eugenius III. in the third year of his pontificate, Anastasius IV. in the third, and Gregory VIII. in the sixth. And note that the said Robert, bishop of Bath and Wells, ruled the said churches for thirty-one years: to whom succeeded Reginald, who also in like manner ruled them for twenty seven years; and Savaric succeeded him, who held the patronage of the abbey of Glaston granted by king Richard by a charter thereof made to him in augmentation of his bishopric, and thus the churches of Bath and Glaston were united; which union Celestine [IV] confirmed in the sixth year of his pontificate, which said Savaric died in the twelfth year of his consecration. To whom succeeded Joceline, who ruled the churches aforesaid for thirty-seven years, who was consecrated in the eleventh year of the reign of king Henry, grandfather of the now king, and in his twenty-second year he obtained from the court, for himself and his successors, acquittance of paying toll, as appears below. And moved by that reason the king caused it to be announced to the religious men and others in that year who wished to enjoy their liberties that they should renew their charters by the new seal of the king, they knowing that he reputed the ancient charters to be null. And so the house of Bruton is enfeoffed with the hundred of said town and the market the one hundred and first year before Jocelin's obtaining [the acquittance].

No. 377. In the presence of John de Alveton, the chief steward, and Walter de Lenche, the second steward.

Stonyeston.

Copy of the court [roll] of the honour of Gloucester concerning the claims of Stonyeston.

At the great court of Bristol, of the honor of Gloucester, held at Bristol on Wednesday, the feast of St. Gregory the pope, 22 Edward III. [1348] before John de Alveton, Walter de Lenche, stewards of Sir H. le Despenser. It was commanded to distrain the prior of Bruton to make a fine for entry for all the lands and tenements which he held in Stonyeston, which formerly were of Walter Peytefyn, and also to do homage and fealty for the said lands; who comes and says that they are held of the king in chief, and thereupon he showed a charter of king Henry made to Peter Peytefyn, which follows.

Gift by king Henry to Peter Peytefyn [Pictavensis] of the whole land of Stonyeston, which Robert de Garovill, formerly held of him in chief.

And further, it being found by the whole county that the prior holds no lands in Stonyeston of the fee of the honor of Gloucester, the prior and his successors are absolved.

- No. 378. A memorandum that in the time of king Stephen, the prior of Bruton obtained the hundred of Bruton with the market, and from that time he and his successors took toll of all the men of the abbot of Glaston and others whomsoever coming to the said market, and they render two marks annually to the king by the hands of the sheriff. And king Stephen and his progenitors formerly took the toll.
- No. 379. Agreement made on Monday next before the feast of St. Fol. 128. Ambrose, A.D. 1330, at Pulton, between the abbot of Glastonbury and the prior of Bruton, touching toll due to the prior from the men of the abbot coming to the market of Bruton to sell or buy goods and chattels. The bond-tenants of the abbot who shall come to the said market to buy or sell shall pay toll or custom as is meet; and the prior granted that at the request of the said abbot or his steward the said bond-tenants coming to the said market to buy or sell for the necessity of their rent or living, that then the said prior will show grace to them what time he pleases. This agreement was made in the presence of John de Clyvedon, John de la Fosse, Henry Power, and others of the council of the said abbot, and of William de Reygne, Richard Coker, William de Combe, and other of the council of the said prior being there.
- No. 380. Inquisition made at Cherlton Mucegros on the morrow of the Ascension, 3 Edward III. [1329] before Robert de Radyngton, sub-escheator of the king in the counties of Somerset and Devon, by William de Combe, Peter de Norton, Ralph Huscarl, Walter de Porta, Henry de Carvill, Adam at the Felde, Nicholas Poer', Reginald Huse, Robert Lovel, Thomas de Salforde, John Gormond, Nicholas de Hurne. Who say that Alexander de Cantelupe came into England with William le Bastard, and he then had ex conquestu the hundred of Bruton. And in his seisin he enfeoffed the priory of Bruton of the said hundred, rendering to him and his heirs two marks annually. And afterwards the heirs of the said Alexander, together with the other Normans were exiled from England, and then the king had the said two marks by escheat of the Normans. And from that time the canons of Bruton held, and as yet hold the said hundred of the king in chief; rendering two marks annually.

No. 381. A memorandum as follows:—In the year of grace 1181, dominical letter D, in the seventeenth paschal feast, being the nones of April in the second year after leap year, the eleventh from the passion of St Thomas, Pope Alexander ruling the holy Roman Church, in the twenty-second year of his pontificate, the venerable father Baldwyn presiding over the church of Canterbury, and also Reginald called Ytalicus being bishop of Bath, Ralph de Clanvile, then chief justice of England, Geoffrey fitz Peter, then justice of the forest, by the illustrious king Henry II., in the year of his age forty-nine, and of his reign twenty-eight, the house of the Carthusian order in the desert (heremo) of Wyttham was newly founded. Be it remembered also that before the foundation of the Carthusian house in the manor of Wyttham, the prior and convent of Bruton had a chapel with lands and tenements in the same manor pertaining to their church of Bruton. By reason of which the chaplains took all tithes in the said manor. Also the said prior and convent had by ancient custom the feeding of their beasts in the same manor without number and quittance of herbage and sufficient fuel for their fire in the king's demesne woods from the dead wood and one log annually for their fire. After the said house was founded, the king wished the Carthusians there to be free from all exaction and secular strife, according to their custom, wherefore he conferred on the prior and convent the church of Suthperton in recompence for the said chapel, and he assigned to them by his justices the feedings of the beasts, the fuel with the log aforesaid, and the porcary with the hogs. To have for ever in the wood which is called Bryncoumbe which at one time was of Sir Henry de Kareville, the elder, of Bruton, and it came by waste to the royal hands. From that time the prior and convent of Bruton possessed all the things abovesaid in the said wood quietly and peaceably until the time of Robert Passelewe, Sir Geoffrey de Langelegh, and William Bryton, who in the time of their justiceship disturbed them, wishing to know by what right and by what custom they possessed the things aforesaid. And the said prior and convent laying the said plaint before the lord the king concerning the said disturbance, the king having heard their plaint ordered an inquisition to be made concerning their right and custom. And the king being certified by an inquisition of the country touching their right and ancient custom granted and confirmed to them all the things aforesaid, except that he reduced the sufficiency of fuel to a certain amount and their pigs quit of panage to a certain number.

No. 382. Charter of king Henry II. of toll.

Charter of king Henry [II] addressed to the justices and all sheriffs, reeves, ministers, and bailiffs of all England and Normandy and the sea ports, granting that the prior and convent of Bruton may be quit of toll, pontage, and passage. Fol. 129.

No. 41. Charter of the aforesaid Geoffrey concerning the release and quit-claim relating to suit of all kinds of the prior of Montacute and his men of Clouesworthe at the hundred of Cokre.

Fol. 30.

Geoffrey de Mandeville releases and confirms to the church and monks of Montacute suit of all kinds which the prior of Montacute and the men of the house of Montacute owe on account of the manor of Cloueswrde at the hundred of Coker ; that is, both the suit of the said prior and of the free men as well as of all other men of the said manor of Cloueswrde, preserving to the said Geoffrey and his heirs the suit of any free men there may be in the said manor of Cloueswrde at the hundred of Koker to plead the king's writ, and to judge robbers caught in the hundred of Koker, excepting the manor of Cloueswrde, by reasonable summons of the bailiffs of the hundred of Koker. And if at any time there shall not be free men in the said manor of Cloueswrde, suit shall be exacted from the land which free men formerly held, according to the manner of some former suit if there has ever been a former suit there. So that neither the said Geoffrey nor his heirs can ever claim suit from the prior of Montacute or from his free men or servants of the manor of Cloueswrde at the hundred of Koker, except from free men and then only in the aforesaid cases. And the said Geoffrey and his heirs are to have no right of entry in the manor of Cloueswrde, except to summon free men of the said manor to the hundred of Koker in the aforementioned cases, namely to plead the king's writ and to judge robbers taken in the hundred of Koker, excepting the manor of Cloueswrde ; and also for the purpose of making a summons or distraint in the same manor by command of the king or the sheriff. Also he grants that the said house of Montacute shall have, in their manor of Cloueswrde without hindrance, all liberties and free customs appertaining to a free manor, except that the men of the said manor of Cloueswrde shall make suit with the hundred of Koker before the king's justices when on circuit.

- No. 43. Charter of Sir John de Mandevile, son of John de Mandevile, concerning the grant, ratification, and confirmation of the gifts, grants, confirmations, and releases, which his ancestors granted to us.

I, John de Mandevile, son of John de Mandevile, to all the faithful. Edward the stabler (Stabularius) gave, and by his charter, which I have seen, granted to the church of Montacute, and the Cluniac monks there all his land, which in his time he held in the town of Coker, with all liberties, free customs, and rights of common. Also Geoffrey son of Gerold de Coker, gave and by his charter, which I have seen, granted three shillings annual rent proceeding from his land of La Forde in the manor of Coker. Also Robert de Mandevile, and Geoffrey his son and heir, my ancestors, by their confirmation, which I have seen, confirmed the aforesaid gifts. Also Roger de Mandevyle, my ancestor, for the soul of Stephen his father, gave and by his charter, which I have seen, granted his mill of Erlestoke with all the adjoining land and the then tenant of the mill with all his progeny, and the right of grinding for all his men and tenants in the same town. Also Geoffrey de Mandevile, my grandfather, released, and by his writings, which I have seen, quit-claimed to the church of Montacute, and the aforesaid monks, their successors, men and tenants in the manor of Clouesworde, which is within the precincts of the hundred of Coker, all suit which they owed to the said hundred and all else which could be claimed or exacted in respect of the said hundred from the said monks and their successors, their tenants or men of Cloveswrde and Coker; so that the said monks themselves, their tenants and men may be free from all suit, contribution, geld, and secular demand touching the said hundred, according to the form and tenor of the charters and confirmations of the kings of England concerning liberties of this kind. I, the said John, for my own welfare and for the soul of Anastasia, daughter of John de Mautravers, and formerly wife of Herbert de Sancto Quintino, whose body lies buried in the newly constructed chapel of the Blessed Mary of Montacute, grant, ratify and confirm to the aforesaid church of Montacute, and to Stephen the prior all the aforesaid gifts, grants, confirmations and releases, and I release fully and quit-claim any right that I have or can have in the aforesaid lands, rents, mills, men and their issue, liberties, suits, rights of common, contributions, gelds and secular demands. And I, the said John, my heirs and assigns, are to have no jurisdiction whatsoever over the said prior and convent, their men or their possessions, except so far as to collect what is due to the king, and to carry out his commands and those of the sheriff according to warrants as directed to us.

No. 118. Charter of Robert de Lincolnia concerning the gift of the land which is called Holne, for the establishment and maintenance of monks there.

I, Robert de Lincolnia, determined to found a religious house to the honour of God, give to the church and monks of Montacute my land which is called Holne, so that a religious order consisting of thirteen monks may be established there. This gift, with the advice and consent of the bishop of Salisbury, I and my wife Benza and my son Alvred have made in the presence of the prior and monks of Montacute and Sir Gilbert a monk (to whom personally I had previously given the same place) and others, namely William de Lundonia, Walter and Richard. This I have done for the soul of my lord, King Henry, and for the souls of my father and mother, my ancestors, myself, my wife, and sons. I give also to the said monks three virgates of land in Wrde, and a tithe of the bread, meat, and fish from the store of my house, and of my heirs, and one tribute of salt from my salt-cotes adjoining my manor of Langeton, also the whole tithe of my demesne of Acforde, and of Winterburne Gurewambe, and of Langeton, near Abotesbire, and of Corfton, also the tithe of the said three virgates, which gave to them from my demesne of Wrde. Also Bardulph, my knight, with my consent and that of Alvred my son, has given them the whole tithe of the demesne of Chiselburneforde, and of Watercumb.

Witnesses :—Robert de Musters ; Samson de Lincolnia ; Robert de Bosco ; Robert German ; Bardulph Bussel and Gervase his brother.

No. 119. Charter of Alvred de Lincoln, son of the said Robert, concerning the gift, grant, and confirmation of the gift of the said Robert, together with his gift of a tithe of the bread, meat, and fish from the store of his house, and of his heirs, wheresoever they may make their abode, and a tithe from his salt-cotes of Purbic, and many other things here contained.

I, Alvred de Lincoln, for the welfare of my soul, and that of my wife Albreda, and for the soul of my father Robert de Lincoln, confirm to Saints Peter and Paul of Montacute, and the monks there, the gift of my father, and of the Lady Benza, my mother, namely the church and place of Holne, with the land and all belongings. I give and grant also for the maintenance of the monks dwelling at Holne, a tithe of the bread, meat, and fish from the store of my house, wheresoever in England I, my heirs and successors may make our abode, and a tithe of salt from my salt-cotes in Purbike ; also three virgates of land in Wrde, and the tithes of the same, the land of Plys with pasture for ten oxen, Fol. 56. one heifer, and two hundred and fifty sheep, feeding anywhere in Plys with the oxen, sheep, and other beasts of the abbot of Glastonbury ; the whole tithe of my demesne of Acforde and of Winterburne Gurewambe, and of Langetone, which is near Abbotisbire, and of Corftone, and the tithe of the garden near Bradele ; also the whole tithe of the demesne of Chiselburneforde and of Watercumb, which Bardulph Bussel, my knight, with the consent of my father and myself, bestowed upon the aforesaid place ; and the church of Wermewelle, which Gunfred, my man, with my consent, Geoffrey his son hearing and consenting, released and granted to the brethren of Holne. All the above I give, grant, and confirm to the said monks, to have, receive, and hold freely, making no return for the same except prayers and divine services for the souls of all my ancestors and successors.

Witnesses :—Andrew, my brother ; Samson de Lincoln ; Robert de Bosco ; Robert de Antiochia ; Peter, my brother ; William Mauclerc (Malus clericus) ; Roger, my chaplain.

No. 120. Charter of Robert Daneville concerning three acres and a half of land called Cherchyde in Langetone.

Robert Daneville, for the souls of his father Alvred, and of his mother, and for the welfare of himself, his wife Mabel, and his sons, grants to St. Mary of Holne, three acres and a half of land called Cherchyde in the town of Langetone, in the year of Our Lord 1178. And he confirms this with his seal, desiring and enjoining that none of his descendants shall venture to diminish this gift, or presume to take it away from the place of Holne, where his father Alvred Daneville rests in peace.

Witnesses :—Sir Alvred de Lincoln ; the Lady Albereda ; Andrew de Lincoln ; Alvred Talebota ; Luke ; William de Sancto Quintino, the priest ; William Abraham ; Roger my brother ; the Lady Mabel, my wife ; Robert, clerk, and Peter, my sons ; Hamel [in] Russel ; Geoffrey English, my servant

No. 121. Charter of Robert son of Eskelin concerning half a hide of land, and half the church of Acforde, with pasture and other appurtenances, and the tithe of Medesham.

Robert son of Eskelin, grants to the church and monks of Montacute, half a hide of land, and a moiety of the church of Acforde Eskelin with pasturage for ten oxen, five cows, and two horses, with the oxen, cows, and horses of the lords of Acforde, and pasturage for other cattle in the common land of the same town, and the tithe of Medesham.

Witnesses :—Henry, my son ; Roger de Acforde, my nephew ; Robert de Pent, chaplain ; Robert de Sturs, and Ralph his brother.

No. 122. Letter of William de Stawelle, rector of a moiety of the said church, about a certain controversy between himself and us.

William de Stawelle, rector of a moiety of the church of Acforde Scillinge, to all the faithful in Christ who may see or hear this present letter. Whereas there has been a dispute between myself as plaintiff on the one part, and the prior and convent of Montacute, my patrons, defendants, on the other, before Adam de Greinvile and Thomas Trevet, justices of the King in eyre in the county of Dorset, about a certain message, curtilage, and eight acres of land, which Geoffrey son of Luke, holds in the said town, and three shillings proceeding from the said message. At length, upon the advice of common friends, with the consent of the said monks, the aforesaid rector has conceded that the message, curtilage, and eight acres of land belong to the said monks and may be let by them to the said Geoffrey or to whomsoever they may hereafter substitute for him; saving the said three shillings, which three shillings they shall pay, every year on the feast of St. Michael, to the steward of the kitchen of Montacute for the time being; and the said steward shall take into account these three shillings in the payment of the one mark owed annually from time immemorial by the rectors of the said church to the steward of the kitchen of Montacute by way of an annual pension, and the remainder of the said pension, namely, ten shillings and four pence the said rector and his successors shall pay to the steward on the said feast. No. 128. Charter of R[obert], count of Mell[ent] concerning toll at Warham.

R[obert], count of Mell[ent] to F[romund] de Sturmenistre and all his servants. Know that I have surrendered to St. Peter of Montacute the toll of all who trade at Waram.

No. 129. Charter of Richard (sic), earl of Leicester, concerning the grant of the houses of Herlewyn the painter at Warham quit of all fines and customs.

Robert, earl of Leicester, to Fromund de Sturministra and all his men French and English. Know that I have granted and given as my father granted and gave to St. Peter of Montacute the houses of Herlewin the painter at Waram quit of all fines and customs.

No. 130. Charter of Gunfred de Wermewelle concerning the gift of the church of Wermewelle with three shillings.

Fol. 59.

Gunfred de Wermewelle, with the consent of Geoffrey his son and heir, and of Alvred de Nichole his lord, gives and as far as belongs to the lord of the soil grants the church of St. Mary of Wermewelle to the monks of Holne in frank almain, free and quit of all lay service. And since the aforesaid church is now occupied (impersonata) by Robert the deacon, he grants that the aforesaid brethren of Holne shall have of his fee in my aforesaid town three shillings of land until the said church shall fall to them. Executed in the presence of William, prior of Montacute; Ralph de Givelcester, then prior of Holne, and his fellow monk Walter.

Witnesses :—Robert Germein ; Andrew de Nichole ; Bardulph Picot ; William de Staford ; Neel de Staforde ; Alvred Franceis ; Wlward Wider ; Roger the scribe ; A. de Nichole.

- No. 131. Charter of Edgar surnamed Aquilinus, concerning twelve pence with a tith of the bread of his house and of the fishing.

Edgar surnamed Aquilinus, for the souls of himself, his father and mother, and especially for the soul of his wife Mazelina, grants to St. Mary of Holne a rent of twelve pence on the feast of St. Michael. Adam, his son and heir, has approved of this grant in the presence of Sir Alvred de Lincoln, the patron of Holne, and of the lady Albereda his wife. Moreover he has granted a tith of the bread of his house when he shall be residing there, and also of the fishing in that place.

Witnesses :—Sir Alvred de Lincoln, the lady Albereda his wife, and his son Sir Alvred the younger ; Sir Eustace de Stokis ; Nicholas Francigena ; Andrew de Lincoln ; Roger de Tolosa ; Laurence the clerk ; William de Cari ; Richard Bastard.

- No. 132. Charter of King Henry concerning the grant of the land of Holne.

Henry, King of England, to Roger, bishop of Salisbury and Warin, the sheriff and all the barons of Dorset. Know that I grant to Alfred de Lincoln to hold in fee the land of Holne, as Grimald the physician (medicus) sold it to him.

Witnesses :—Roger, bishop of Salisbury ; Ran[ulph] the chancellor ; William Tancervill ; John Baioc[ensis]. At Winchester.

- No. 133. Charter of King Henry to the earl of Gloucester that he may allow the man of Warham to have his liberty.

Henry, King of England, &c. to the earl of Gloucester and his bailiffs of Warham. I direct you that you may allow the monks of Montacute and their man of Warham to have their liberties which they had in the time of King Henry my grandfather. And unless you have done this, let the sheriff of Dorset do it.

Witness, the archdeacon of Poitiers. At Bichenoure.

- No. 134. Charter of Alvred de Lincoln concerning the gift of the land of Gillingeham and of Bruge near Waymue with the men.

Alvred de Lincoln gives and grants to Saints Peter and Paul of Montacute and the monks there all his land of Gyllingeham and all his land of Bruge near Waymue with the men and all other belongings quit of all secular services.

Walter de Meleburi grants and charter confirms to Saints Peter and Paul and the monks of Montacute, one messuage with a curtillage which is called de La Broke, and two acres of land in the northern part of Cuttewlle, one acre in Pukeputte, one acre in Athelinge Acre, and four acres near the southern part of Stoke acre, and three perches of meadow-land on the east of the water of La Hulde and Letham, and two oxen, three cows, twelve sheep, and three pigs quit of pannage and herbage in the common pasture. Moreover the man who holds of the aforesaid monks the messuage with the curtillage and the said land shall have 'haibote' and 'husbote' in his wood under the supervision of his forester or of his bailiff, and as much dead wood (mortbois) as is necessary for fuel (in ignem).

Witnesses :—Jordan Oliver ; William de Dunmere, knights ; Robert de Hewenebere ; Robert de Dilintune ; Ralph de Cinnock ; Robert de Aula of Montacute ; William Harm.

- No. 136. Charter of Richard de Lestra, concerning Baresfeld.

Richard de Lestra, with the advice of his uncle William and other friends, and of his men, grants and restores, to the church and brethren of Montacute for the souls of his father and mother, etc., and for the welfare of his lord, Earl Baldwin, etc., the land of Baresfeld with all that pertains to it, free from all secular service as well royal as his own. Moreover the prior and brethren of the above-named place have relinquished their part of the tithes of the church of Dirministune into his hands to dispose of as, canonically and under God, he may desire. They have granted and relinquished also to him their tithe of Bichehella, reserving unto themselves twelve pence, which they are always to receive annually on the feast of St. Michael, by way of recognition, by the hands of those who shall hold the said tithe. For this confirmation, however, the aforesaid prior and monks are to mercifully condone, as well to his father as to himself and all his counsellors and aiders, whatever they may have offended against them, and to cause to be observed an anniversary of his father's obit at Montacute and at Cluny, and there are to be sung twenty trentals of masses and one hundred psalters for the souls of his father Jordan and of his grandfather William de Lestra.

Witnesses:—William de Lestra; Adam; William; Richard dean of Crich; Roger son of Adalaide; Richard de Croci; William son of Ralph; William son of Osbert; Roger son of Nicholas; Ansgar; William Dagger; Hamo; Richard the miller.

No. 137. Confirmation of Sir John de Sancto Johanne concerning Fol. 61. Weoleghe.

John de Sancto Johanne knight, son of Sir John de Sancto Johanne, knight, to all the faithful in Christ. Whereas Henry de Port, John de Port, son of the same Henry, Adam de Port, son of the said John de Port, and William de Sancto Johanne, son of the said Adam de Port, my progenitors, by their charters and confirmations which I have inspected, granted in frankalmoin to the church and monks of Montacute all that land of Warneford which is called Weoleghe; I, the said John, son of John de Sancto Johanne, knight, confirm, according to the tenor of this present writing, to Saints Peter and Paul of Montacute, as also to brother Stephen, the prior of the aforesaid house, to the convent of the same and their successors, all the aforesaid gifts, grants, and confirmations of my progenitors.

Witnesses:—Sir Richard de Borhonte, Sir James de Nortone, Sir Bartholomew Pecche, Sir Richard de Porteseye, knights; Sir William de Sancto Johanne, parson of the church of Warneford ; John de Basing ; James de Molyngs ; Philip de Claverlee ; Thomas de Marisco ; and others.

- No. 139. Charter of the aforesaid Simon concerning one ferling of land with two shillings from one garden.

Simon son of Hugh* gives to the church of St. Mary of Karswille one ferling of land, which Godrich Goghes held, on this condition that what land is wanting below the road may be made good in the upper part of the road near the dwelling of the villein (rusticus), moreover the garden which the aforesaid villein held, free and quit of all service except the king's service. This land pays annually two shillings, which are to be paid at the feast of St. Matthew, that therefrom monks may be procured on the day of the anniversary of Matilda the grantor's wife, one of whom on the same day shall celebrate the divine office for the soul of the aforesaid Matilda.

Witnesses:—Roger and Azo, priests ; Walter, priest of Sanford ; William Peverel ; Hugh Peverel ; Hugh de Pino ; Richard Peverel son of William Peverel ; Hugh my son ; Master Adam.

- No. 140. Charter of the aforesaid Simon concerning the gift, confirmation and quit-claim of the aforesaid church of Holecombe.

* Hugonis, apparently an error for Rogonis.

Simon son of Rogo, to all the sons of holy mother church, etc. Know that whereas I had a long time since granted the church of St. Mary of Holecumbe and all rights in the advowson of that church with all the things belonging to it, to the monks of Montacute, according to the tenor of my charter, which they have ; long after the execution of that gift I have unjustly and with a certain unreasonable will retained a moiety of the aforesaid church vacant, and have prevented the aforesaid monks from having free power therein. Now, however, later repenting and reflecting that I have in this manner grievously sinned, I have begged for, and, by the grace of God and of the said prior and monks, have faithfully obtained mercy. Therefore, with all devotion, I resign to the aforesaid prior and monks that half which I unjustly detained, similarly with the other half, so that they may fully possess all right in the advowson of the whole of the said church of Holecumbe free from all secular service. And, because I wish that none of my heirs may be able to claim any right in the said church of Holecumbe, or in any part thereof, or cause any hindrance to the aforesaid monks, I have again given and granted, as far as the lord of the soil can give, the original donation made by me. Done in full county [court] at Exeter in the year of our Lord 1206.

No. 143. Charter of N[icholas], legate of the Apostolic see, concerning a moiety of the aforesaid church.

Nicholas, bishop of Tusculum, legate of the Apostolic see, to all the sons of holy mother church, etc. Our beloved son R[oger], archdeacon of Essex, has laid before us, that whereas he had, by R. Peverel, clerk of the diocese of Exeter, been drawn into a suit, before the archdeacon of Exeter and his co-judges delegates of the Apostolic see, concerning a moiety of the church of Ermitone, which the same archdeacon had held, the same judges in that suit, proceeding somewhat illegally causa rei servande, gave to the said R. Peverel the aforesaid portion of that church, although their jurisdiction had at that time been revoked and committed by the Pope to G[ilbert], bishop of Rochester, of good memory, and his co-judges. The said archdeacon because, as he has alleged, nearly a year has elapsed since the said delegation (missionem) has, on the vigil of the Blessed Virgin in the 17th year of the pontificate of Pope Innocent III, offered security to steadfastly abide by the judgment of the church, and has besought that his possession which he previously had may be restored to him.

Dated at Suwerke on the 19th of the kalends of September.

No. 144. Charter of H. Peverel concerning the land of Buelle.

H. Peverel, lord of Samford, for the welfare of himself and Cicely his wife, &c., grants to St. Peter and the monks of Montacute the whole land of Buelle, which the lady Matilda Peverel had before given to the same prior and monks for celebrating her anniversary every year. To hold the same in frank almain, free and quit of all exaction and service except royal service. The same prior and monks have granted to him, his wife Cicely and all his heirs, full fellowship in the Cluniac church, and especially in the church of Montacute and in all services which they hold there, as well in vigils as in fasts and in other regular disciplines, and especially in mass for the dead (de cimiterio pro defunctis), mass of St. Mary for the living, matutinal mass and the greater mass: and in the house of Kerswell, which shall receive the profit of the aforesaid land, two masses shall be celebrated every week, one for the living and one for the dead. And the monk of Kerswell is enjoined to do this faithfully.

Witnesses:—On my part, William of Rouen (de Rotomag); Simon son of Rogo; Richard Flandr[ensis]; Robert de Campbell[is]; and my hundred [court] of Samford.

On the part of the monks, God and conventual truth.

No. 145. Charter of William Peverel of Sanford concerning the gift of ten shillings from Behulle, and ten shillings from Childelumene, and ten shillings from Renetone, and two shillings from the mill-pool of West Wytehedfeld, and five quarters of wheat from the mill of Talletone. Fol. 65.

William Peverelle of Sanforde, son of Hugh Peverelle, of Sanford, with the consent of his heirs, grants, to the House of Karswelle, in frank almain, ten shillings from Behulle, which was Alexander de Behulie's, near to the 'dominicotura' of the lord of Sanford: and ten shillings from Childelumene, which the prior of Leghe was accustomed formerly to pay to us: and ten shillings from Reuetune ; and from the mill-pool of Wytehedfelde two shillings to be paid to the house of Karswelle: and from the mills of Taletone five quarters of wheat (siliginis) at the four terms of the year, namely, at Easter one quarter, at the feast of St. John Baptist one quarter, at the feast of St. Michael two quarters, at Christmas one quarter, under penalty of half a mark for non-payment at any such term ; until I, William Peverelle of Sanforde or my heirs, shall have provided sixteen shillings of land, or a rent of sixteen shillings, in place of the said five quarters of wheat, for the maintenance of a secular chaplain, who shall celebrate divine services for me and for the souls of Christina my wife, Hugh Peverelle my father, and Cicely my mother, &c., every day of his life in the house of Karswelle at the altar of the blessed Virgin Mary and of the blessed Mary Magdalene. And should he fail to perform this service, he may be removed by me William Peverelle of Sanforde, or my heirs, or by whomsoever may be lord of Sanforde ; but he shall not be removed without reasonable cause nor on account of age or infirmity. And the said chaplain shall swear fealty to the house and service in which he is maintained, and every chaplain shall wear the sign of the Cluniac order, namely, the key of St. Peter, and shall enjoy the privileges of the Cluniac order the same as the monks or converts. And if I, William Peverelle of Sanforde, or my heirs, or whoever may be lord of Sanforde, within forty days of the death of a chaplain, shall not appoint another, let the chapter of St. Nicholas of Exeter, within eight days of the expiration of the said forty, appoint a suitable secular chaplain. And the prior and monks of Karswelle shall have the same power of distraining for rent as we in our time had.

No. 146. Cyrograph of Hugh Peverel concerning the form of letters to him and his heirs from the prior of Montacute in the preferment of the prior of Karswelle, &c.

Memorandum that whereas a dispute arose between the prior and convent of Montacute and Sir Hugh Peverel de Sanford patron of the priory of Karswelle, about the form of letters to be transmitted to the same Hugh and his heirs by the prior of Karswelle appointed by the prior of Montacute to the said priory of Karswelle, it was peaceably settled in this manner, namely, that whoever may be prior of Montacute for the time shall transmit to the before-named patron and his heirs his letters patent, sealed with his sign only, in this form :—

Prior Montis acuti nobili viro domino Hugoni Peverel, patrono de Karswelle salutem in vero salutari. Noverit discretio vestra nos virum Fol. 66. honestum monachum nostrum latorem presentium priorem in cellula nostra de Karswelle constituuisse. Quare vos rogamus quatinus ipsum pro Priore habentes eidem gratiam et favorem in omnibus dictam domum contingentibus tanquam loci patronus impartiri velitis. In cujus rei testimonium has literas nostras sigillo nostro signatas vobis transmittimus patentes. Datas etc.

For the security of which, two documents in the form of a cyrograph are executed, one of which sealed with the sign of the said prior and convent remains in the hands of the patron, and the other sealed with the seal of the said patron remains in the hands of the prior and convent. Dated at Tantone, and executed on Wednesday in Easter week, A.D. 1255.

No. 147. Charter of Hugh, son of William Peverel, concerning a grant of two shillings, and also concerning his own gift of three shillings from the land of William Haket, etc.

Hugh Peverel son of William Peverel grants and confirms to the church and monks of St. Mary of Kerswelle two shillings, which William his father left to them in his will, from the land of William Haket, for the yearly performance of his anniversary. Moreover he gives to the aforesaid church and monks, for the souls of himself, his ancestors and successors, three shillings from the tenement of the aforesaid William Haket, to be paid annually on the feast of St. Michael with the aforesaid two shillings; on condition that the abovesaid three shillings shall be assigned for a nocturnal light in the church before the altar of the Blessed Mary. And should the said William Haket, or whoever may hold the aforesaid tenement, not pay the said five shillings on the feast of St. Michael, the prior of Kerswelle shall have full power, without any hindrance from the lord of the soil, to compel him through the chattels of the land (per catalla terre) to pay the said five shillings speedily. Moreover, should anyone presume to act in contradiction of this my gift, let him understand that five priests with lighted candles have pronounced sentence of Anathema against him on the day on which this gift was made.

Witnesses:—Simon son of Rogo; and William his son; Simon del Pin; William de Punchard[on]; Master Adam de Taletone; Ranulph Peverel; Thomas Peverel; Roger le Guiz.

- No. 148. Charter of Hugh concerning a gift of two shillings by R[ichard] de Hydone from the mill-pool of Wytehethfeld at Frielond within the manor of Aure.

Hugh Peverel of Sanford, knight, for the souls of himself and of Margery his wife, &c., grants to the church and monks of St. Mary of Karswelle two shillings annual rent, which Richard de Hydone was wont to pay to him for his mill-pool of Wytehethfeld on his fee at Fryelond within the manor of Aure in the farmed part; to be received from the said Richard or whoever may be tenant of the said pool, at two terms of the year, namely, at the feast of St. Michael twelve pence, and at Easter twelve pence. He gives also to the said church and monks full power by their attorneys to break and weaken the said pool as often as the said annual rent may be withheld from them. But should the said rent fail by reason of the non-maintenance of the said pool or mill, so that the monks are unable to recover the said rent, he grants that the bailiffs of his said manor of Aure shall pay it out of the rent of the manor.

No. 171. Inspection of the abbot of Syreburne and the prior of Medeltone, of a certain bull of Pope Gregory concerning the tithes of Fauitone and Fawymore.

The abbot of Sireburne and the prior of Middelton have received a Papal mandate in these words:—

Gregorius episcopus servus servorum dei dilectis filiis Abbati de Sireburne et Priori de Middelton Sarum diocesis salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Conquesti sunt nobis Prior et conventus Montis Acuti Cluniacensis ordinis quod Abbas et conventus de Mochelne et quidam alii Bathonie, Exonie, Sarum civitatum et diocesis super possessionibus, decimis, debitis et rebus aliis injuriantur eisdem. Quo circa discretioni vestre per apostolica scripta mandamus quatinus partibus convocatis audiatis causam et appellatione remota sine debito terminetis, facientes quod decreveritis per censuram ecclesiasticam firmiter observari. Testes autem qui fuerint nominati si se gracia, odio vel timore subtraxerint, per censuram eandem appellatione cessante cogatis veritati testimonium perhibere. Datum Viterbii vi. Nonarum Maii, pontificatus nostri anno undecimo.

On the authority, therefore, of this mandate, when the prior and convent of Montacute had brought the prior and convent of Launceston¹ before us in a cause concerning all the tithes arising from the demesne of Fawitone, and from Fawimore, and concerning the chapel built on the same moor, and it had been sufficiently argued for a while between the parties appearing, by an amicable arrangement between them the dispute was at length settled in this way, namely, that the said prior and convent of Launceston shall receive two parts of the tithes arising from the said demesne of Fawitone as they have hitherto been accustomed. As to the lands, however, newly brought and to be brought into cultivation, without or within the moor, within or without the demesne, the prior of Launceston shall hereafter receive a moiety of the tithes and the prior of Montacute the other moiety. Saving wholly to the prior and convent of Launceston the tithes of one plough for their own labour and expense of cultivation, and also the small tithes of their own store. In like manner the prior and convent of Montacute, should they cultivate in the same place at their charges and labour, shall make use of a similar privilege in all things. Moreover the bodies of the dead accruing to the aforesaid chapel shall be buried at the church of St. Neot, to such extent as by consent of the parties the churchyard shall be dedicated to the aforesaid chapel. Moreover the said chapel shall be served at common charges, and all emoluments arising to the same as well from the living as from aforesaid dead shall be ceded in equal portions for common uses. The parties, moreover, have bound themselves mutually by oath to observe faithfully in the future this form of reconciliation, and have submitted themselves to our jurisdiction for ever, so that should either of them, at any time, attempt to act contrary to the said compact, we may be able to compel them to the observance of it by sentence of excommunication or other lawful punishment.

Executed A.D. 1238, on the feast of the apostles Peter and Paul.

No. 172. Chirograph between the prior and convent of Montacute and the prior and convent of Launceston concerning the divisions between them of the tithes and revenues of the chapel and land of Fawymore, &c., as here shown.

This chirograph witnesses that the following are the bounds between the prior and convent of Montacute and the prior and convent of Launceston in Fawimore, within which they ought to receive against waste, and divide between them in equal portions, all tithes and revenues as well from the living as the dead, namely, from Fawy water ascending through Smalecumbe as far as Bremegellon-way towards the south, and so by that way as far as la Muchelewrthe, and thence by the water descending to Halgersant, and so ascending through Halgersant to the bounds between the land of Sir Ralph de Suleigny and the land of Hamet, and along those bounds to Loucyn water, and from Louyn by the bounds between the land of Ralph de Suleigne and the land of Trebennock, and thence as far as the pools, and from the pools to the Long Stone, and from the Long Stone as far as the bounds between the land of the said Ralph de Suleigne and the land of Bernard, and thence by the bounds of the land of the said Ralph de Suleigne and the land which was Robert de Lutrot's, and thence by the bounds as far as Duy, and so along Duy to the head of Duy, and from the head of Duy to the bounds of Merifeld, and thence to Mindaldur water, and by Mildaldur water as far as Temple causeway, and thence by the bounds of the land of Fawitone and the land of Blustone as far as Pontyesu. Moreover the prior and convent of Launceston can never in the future exact anything from the tithes of the parish of St. Neot outside the beforementioned limits except only in the demesne of Ralph de Suleigny. But in order that the aforesaid bounds may be faithfully preserved between the aforesaid churches the present writing is drawn up between them in the form of a chirograph and confirmed by the seals of both chapters. Saving to the prior and convent of Launceston all manner of tithes of their land in the same moor which they may have brought into cultivation at their own expense, and similarly to the prior and convent of Montacute, as is contained in the former writing drawn up between them.

Executed A.D. 1241 on Sunday before the feast of the apostles Philip and James.

- No. 178. Charter of William, bishop of Exeter, concerning five marks due annually to the prior of St. Carroc.

William, bishop of Exeter, wishing to cede the church of St. Nonna in Cornwall to those uses to which he had taken it, and being unwilling that the cell of St. Ciric, which was wont to receive from the said church annually six marks four shillings and three farthings, should in any way be defrauded, has, with the consent of his chapter, granted to the same cell, from the property of his bishopric, five marks to be paid every year in equal portions at those terms upon which it was wont to receive the said pension until a more competent or equal provision shall have been made to the same by him, or any of his successors, which indeed he is bound to do as soon as he conveniently can.

Confirmed by his own seal, and by that of the dean and chapter.

Dated at Exeter, A.D. 1236, on the day before the kalends of June in the 13th year of his consecration.

No. 179. William Hakcome, knight and lord of Penpol, for the welfare of his soul, and that of Stephen his son and heir, &c., grants to the church of Montacute, and the monks of the same place serving God at St. Carroc, in frank almon all his land in Trauaylward and Bothele in the fee of Manely.

No. 180. Charter of Robert, bishop of Bath, concerning churches, chapels, and tithes, which he has confirmed to us, and taken Fol. 105.¹ under his protection &c., and he has anathematized contraveners.

Robert, bishop of Bath, notifies that he has taken under his protection, all possessions within his diocese conferred upon the church of Montacute, and has confirmed them to the monks there, namely, the churches of Cinnoc, Cloueswurde, Criche, Odecumbe, Gerlingetone, and Brimetone, and the chapel of St. Michael of Montacute, with all their appurtenances ; the tithes of the demesne of Cinnoc, of Hetsecumbe, of Cilterne, and of Cridelincote, and a moiety of the tithes of the demesnes of Chiselberge and Clafforde, of Nortone of Richard son of William, and of Mersetone of Robert de Bello campo, of Direwinestone, and of Bichehille. Should any one, cleric or lay, attempt to injure the aforesaid church and monks in any of these possessions, he will incur the displeasure of the Almighty, and sentence of anathema from the bishop unless he repent. Amen.

No. 181. Charter of Rainer, bishop of Bath, concerning the grant and confirmation of churches and ecclesiastical benefices, chapels, tithes, pensions, in the aforesaid diocese. Fol. 106.

Rainer, bishop of Bath, giving heed to the honesty and religion of the monks of Montacute, on their devout petition, confirms to them all the churches and ecclesiastical benefices which they have in his diocese, namely, the chapel of St. Katherine which is in their burial-place, the churches of Cynnohc, Criche, Mudiford, Odecumbe, Cloueswrde, Tintenhelle, and St. Olave in Yvelchester; the tithes of the demesne of Cynnocke, of Heseccumbe, and of Cridelincote, the tithe of Robert de Bello campo's demesne of Merston, two parts of the tithes of the demesne of Cylterne, a moiety of the tithes of Richard son of William's demesne of Cyselberge, the tithe of the said Richard's demesne of Clafforde and of Nortune; the pensions, likewise, which they were wont to receive as well from the said churches as from other ecclesiastical benefices, namely, from the chapel of St. Katherine of Montacute one mark, from the church of Cynnoc forty shillings, from the church of Criche half a mark, from the church of Mudiford twenty shillings, from the church of Odecumbe forty shillings, from the church of Cloueswrde five shillings, from the church of St. Olave one pound of pepper, from the church of Gerlingstone ten shillings, from the tithe of the demesne of Birkehulle twelve pence. But concerning the church of Tintenhulle the bishop has, on the advice of prudent men, thus ordained, that, in place of the pension, the sacristan of Montacute, on the tenth day before the feast of St. Margaret, shall take the church into his hands, and hold it until the feast, on the feast-day itself, and on the morrow of the feast, with all and all manner of revenues which may accrue there as well from the living as the dead, excepting only the tithes. The bishop, however, has compassionately provided this arrangement towards the work of the sacristy, because it has become known to him, through many trustworthy persons, that the sacristan of Montacute receives little, indeed almost no rents, towards finding lights for the church.

Fol. 167. No. 182. Charter of Joceline, bishop of Bath, concerning the grant and exemption of certain tithes from certain agreements made between the same and us.

Joceline, bishop of Bath, grants to the prior and convent of Montacute that they shall ever be exempt from all payment of tithes from their demesne which at the time of this his grant they hold within the limits of the parish of the church of Modiforde, which is of his advowson, so long as they shall cultivate it at their own labour and cost. That should they let it or any part of it for cultivation by others, the said church shall take the tithes of all kinds, and when they shall have recovered and cultivated it in demesne at their own labour and cost, they shall for the time be free from the payment of the said tithes. And, that there may be no doubt in the future what land was the demesne at the time of this grant, he has caused it to be plainly expressed by its proper names according to what was settled by the sworn testimony of good men, namely, the lands which are called Bernardescroft, Flexlond, Binethheghe, Binethbure, Estinlond, Blakepol, Acforlang, Middleforlang, la Sulue, Tunforlang, Ferncroft, Fileye, Eldclond, Westinlond, la Breche, and two meadows, namely, Estmede and Northmede, and the mill of Modiford; but the land which the miller himself held is "de vilinagio." Item, William de la Grene held of the demesne five acres in one field, and five in another, and half an acre of meadow. Item, Thomas de la Grene held six acres and a half in the field which is called La breche of the demesne. Item, Brian held five acres in the same field of the demesne. Item, the widow Edith held five perches of land of the demesne. Item, Henry de la Lane held half an acre in the field which is called la sulue of the demesne. Item, Peter son of Ralph, held half an acre in the eastern field of the demesne.

No. 185. Charter of Joceline, bishop of Bath, concerning the churches of Montacute and Cynnoc appropriated to us.

Joceline, bishop of Bath, notifies that since brother Mark, called prior of Montacute, and the convent of the same place of the Cluniac order, with the consent of Hugh, abbot of Cluny, have entirely placed under his control the churches of Montacute and Cynnok, in which the said prior and convent possessed the right of patronage, so that he may control and dispose of them according to his own will, he, in reverence of St. Peter, and in consideration of the honesty of the Cluniac order, and the devotion of brother Mark and the convent of Montacute, for increasing and extending charity and hospitality in that house, [Incomplete].

Fol. 110 No. 186. [Agreement with the dean and chapter of Wells.]

The prior and convent of Montacute remit all right beyond the aforesaid bounds of the aforesaid moors to the said dean and chapter, and quit-claim the same for ever. They also grant that they themselves will renew and make visible the aforesaid bounds at La Mulelake as often as necessary. And when they shall, by their servants chase or hunt the animals grazing in the aforesaid moor, they grant that the animals of the prior and convent, or of their tenants of Hamme shall be separated from the other animals and liberated on the faith of the men of Hamme themselves or of their servants. Moreover the said dean and chapter quit-claim to the aforesaid prior and convent all their right in the lands and tenements of the said prior and convent, or of their tenants in Hamme-juxta-Criz, or in any commons by the dean and chapter formerly claimed.

No. 196. Privilege of Pope John of exemption.

John [XXII], to the abbots of Westminster, St. Edmundbury, and Selby . . . greeting. From the complaint of the abbot and convent of Cluny in the diocese of Maçon immediately subject to the Apostolic see, and of the abbots, priors and deans of monasteries, priories and deaneries of the Cluniac order, we have understood that some archbishops and bishops, abbots and priors, &c., as also dukes, earls, and barons and corporations and individuals of cities and dioceses and neighbouring parts in which the said monastery and other monasteries, priories, deaneries, houses and other places and members subject to the same monastery of Cluny are known to be situate, have occupied and caused to be occupied houses, churches, granges, mills, tithes obediences, villages, lands, vineyards, possessions, tributes, rents and produce, jurisdictions and rights, and several goods moveable and immoveable, outside the kingdom of France, belonging to the said monastery of Cluny and other monasteries subject to it . . . and unjustly detain or render assistance to those detaining the same; and further that some inflict numerous troubles and losses upon the said abbots and priors and deans and convents of the same monasteries and priories in respect of churches, granges, tithes, &c., outside the said kingdom, belonging to them. Wherefore the said abbot and convent of Cluny have humbly besought us that, since it is very difficult for them and other abbots, priors, deans, and their members to have recourse in single plaints to the Apostolic see, we would take care to make provision for them in this matter. We, therefore, willing to aid them, commend to your discretion that outside the aforesaid kingdom, you or two or one of you by yourselves or by another or others even should they be beyond the places in which you are deputed conservators and judges, give efficient aid to the abbots, priors, convents and houses and members aforesaid, by preventing troubles, or injuries being inflicted upon them in respect to the premises and any other goods and rights to them belonging outside the aforesaid kingdom, and that when requested by them or any of them, or their proctor or proctors you shall treat with the parties concerning the restitution of the priories, deaneries, churches, &c., and further concerning any injuries whatsoever, present and future, in those namely which require judicial investigation, straightforwardly without judicial trial; in others, according as their nature demands the complement of justice, by restraining the occupiers or detainers, obstructors and injurers, even should they be of archiepiscopal or episcopal dignity, calling in, if need be, the aid of the secular arm, notwithstanding the constitution of Pope Boniface VIII our predecessor, in which it is provided that no one may be called to judgment beyond his own city and diocese, unless in certain excepted cases, and in those not more than one day's journey from the border of his own diocese, &c., and notwithstanding any other constitutions of our predecessors, or any others which could hinder in any way your jurisdiction and power, notwithstanding any indult, &c. Moreover, we decree that any one of you may have the power to follow up an article even begun by another, although the one who began the same has not been prevented by any canonical impediment, and that, from the date of these presents, perpetual power and jurisdiction be given to you and each one of you in the premises, that you may be able to proceed with the same strength and confidence, in all the premises, and on behalf of the aforesaid, as if all and singular the aforesaid had been begun before us, and your jurisdiction had been perpetuated by citation or other legitimate mode, the aforesaid constitution as to conservators and any other promulgated to the contrary notwithstanding.

Here follow charters touching the appropriation of the Church of Crich.

No. 197.¹ Charter of the King's licence.

Edward, King of England, &c., has by letters patent, granted licence to the prior and convent of Montacute to appropriate, as it is said, the church of Crich, which is of their own advowson, and to hold it for their own uses without let or hindrance, the statute of mortmain notwithstanding. At Westminster, the 22nd day of May (sic) in the tenth year of his reign.

No. 198. Confirmation of the said appropriation by the King.

Whereas Edward, king of England, on the 22nd day of March (sic) in the tenth year of his reign granted licence, to the prior and convent of Montacute to appropriate the church of Crich, and to hold it for their own uses, &c., as is more fully contained in his letters patent. And now the prior and convent by virtue of the said licence and by the authority of the Apostolic See have appropriated the said church, and so hold it appropriated, &c. The King confirms the appropriation, and grants that the prior and convent may hold the church thus appropriated for their own uses for ever according to the force and effect of the said licence and bulls, the statute of mortmain notwithstanding or that the said priory after the said 22nd day of March was taken into the King's hand on account of war with France.

At Westminster the 18th day of May, in the 28th year of his reign.

No. 199. Assessment and determination of the portion of the vicarage by Ralph, bishop of Bath.

Ralph, bishop of Bath and Wells . . . greeting. We have received letters apostolic on behalf of the prior and convent of Montacute within our diocese to the following effect :—

¹ This charter and those which follow are copied in a later hand than the main part of the Cartulary on eleven leaves which have been inserted after folios 26 of the old numbering.

Clement, &c., for an everlasting memorial. The forethought of the Apostolic See takes diligent care for the good ordering of all churches and monasteries, &c. The petition of the prior and convent of Montacute states that the church of the monastery has long since fallen to decay, and that they have already begun to build a new one, an expensive work, which they cannot conveniently complete unless greater assistance be rendered to them from elsewhere, especially since the monastery is in great poverty and loaded with debt, by reason of the frequent reception of guests, the increased frequency of the barrenness of the land, the murrain among the cattle, and the burden of the wars. Wherefore the prior and convent beseech us to appropriate to them the parish church of Cryche, of which they already hold the patronage, and of which the profits are not, according to the assessment of the tithe, of greater annual value than 20*l.* sterling, in aid of the fabric of their church, and to lighten the burdens falling on the prior and convent. We therefore, desiring that the church be speedily completed, and wishing to afford them help in their necessities, and especially since King Edward has written on this matter, grant, attach and bind for ever this church to the prior and convent for their own uses, the building of the church of the monastery, and the lightening of the aforesaid burdens, so that on the resignation or death of the present rector, or on the church becoming vacant from any cause, the prior and convent on their own authority may take possession of it without licence from the diocesan or any one else, and retain it for their own uses, for ever; the ordinary, however, to reserve for the perpetual vicar instituted by him on the presentation of the prior and convent, such a portion as will maintain him suitably, and enable him to pay episcopal rights and other burdens; notwithstanding any general or special letters obtained from us or our predecessors or from legates of the Apostolic See, concerning the provisions of this or any other benefices, even if by reason of these they have proceeded to inhibition, reservation and decree, &c.; which letters and processes we will should not extend to this church, but be without prejudice to the prior and convent's obtaining churches and other benefices. Notwithstanding also any privileges, indulgences, or apostolic letters, by which the effect of this bull could in any way be impeded or delayed. Given at Villeneuve in the diocese of Avignon, Sept. 25th, in the second year of our pontificate.

We therefore, willing, as in duty bound, to carry out the said letters, having summoned all concerned in the matter, and caused diligent enquiry to be made, have proceeded to the regulation or assessment of the said church and its portions, as follows:—

Firstly, we ordain that the vicar shall and ought to have the whole of the house of the rectory of the said church, with the adjacent gardens (ortis), and the gardens (gardinis) with the undermentioned exception.

Secondly, the vicar shall have all the lands, meadows and pastures of the said rectory, excepting only the seven acres of arable land mentioned below, and pasture of eight oxen in the separate manorial pastures within the said parish, which the rector of the church had long been used to have.

Thirdly, the vicar shall have all tithes of hay, wood, milk, mills, fisheries, and rearing of animals, and other small tithes of all things produced in the parish (those excepted which are in the prior's demesne) and a third of the tithes of every kind of corn of the whole parish, and all oblations, death duties, and other offerings which are contained in the name of altarage of the said church.

Fourthly, he shall have common for oxen, cows, swine, pigs, geese, and all other animals in single pastures within the parish, as the rectors have been accustomed to have, except in the separate manorial pastures of the religious, commonly called 'separalia,' in which the vicar shall hold no common.

The said religious, to whom the church is, as premised, appropriated and annexed, shall have two-thirds of all tithes of all and every kind of corn, which the rectors have been accustomed to receive, and also those which the said religious have been accustomed to receive before this appropriation and regulation. Also they shall have all the tenants and their tenements, with their lands, gardens, rents, services, and all other profits, as the rectors were accustomed to have, excepting the tithes of the said tenants which the vicar is to have. Likewise they shall have seven acres of arable land at La Trone surrounded on every side by the manorial lands of the same religious, and which the rectors have been accustomed to receive and have Fifthly, the vicar shall have all other emoluments and benefits of the said church, which the rectors were formerly accustomed to have, excepting only those aforesaid which the religious shall receive. The vicar shall also be bound to pay yearly for ever, within the octave of Easter, half a mark to the chapter of the church of Wells, and forty pence to the archdeacon of Taunton, as indemnity and in recompense of their loss by the said appropriation.

The vicar also shall in future bear the burden of tithes, of procurations of cardinals, legates, and nuntios both of the Apostolic See and of others to whom procuration is due, and also of archdeacons and others who may visit the church, the repair of chancel, books, vestments, ornaments of the church, and all burdens ordinary or extraordinary, formerly accustomed to fall upon the rectors. So that the portion assigned to the said religious shall be quit and free from all burdens. To the firm observance of which assessment we command the said religious and the vicar, with their express consent, and their successors.

In witness whereof we have made our letters tripartite, one for the said religious, one for the vicar, and the third to remain in the treasury of our church of Wells. Given and attested in our manor of Wyvelescombe, Oct. 20th, 1362, in the 34th year of our consecration.

No. 200. Licence of the earl of Salisbury concerning the appropriation.

William de Montacute, earl of Salisbury, patron of the priory of Montacute . . . greeting. Whereas Gerald, prior of Montacute, holds of us the advowson of the church of Crich as part of the said priory, and the prior and convent, by grant of the Apostolic See and licence of the King, have appropriated the said church of Crich without our permission, &c. Know that we have confirmed the appropriation of the said church, the prior and convent and their successors to have and hold it thus appropriated for their own uses for all time; saving to us and our heirs all manner of profits and benefits which will by right pertain to us, our heirs and assigns from the said church, by reason of a certain manner of avoidance of the said priory, when war shall in future be made between the kingdoms of England and France. In witness whereof we have caused our seal to be put to these letters patent.

Given at Dounyate, Dec. 6th, 36 Edw. III.

- No. 201. Final acquittance of Sir William de Montacute, earl of Salisbury, of the contribution, during the time of the King, of his father Sir William, and of himself.

William de Montacute, earl of Salisbury, son and heir, and executor of the will of Sir William de Montacute, late earl of Salisbury, and patron of the priory of Montacute greeting. Whereas the King formerly by letters patent granted to our father and his heirs the rent which, the prior and convent of Montacute and the priors of the cells pertaining to the said priory, viz. Carsewell, Holn, St. Carett, and Malpas, together with all arrears, were bound to pay to the King during the war. We, the said earl, for the souls of our father and mother, &c., and by reason of a grant of an annual payment of 10*l.* made by the prior and convent to Roland Rake for the term of his life, have, by letters patent, remitted and released to the said prior and convent of Montacute and to the priors of the dependent cells and their successors for ever, all arrears of the said rents due from the priors, during the time of the King, of our said father, and of ourselves, from the beginning of the war to the present date. So that the said prior and convent and priors of the afore-said cells and their successors be quit and free from payment of the said arrears. Saving always to us and our heirs the right of patronage of the said priory.

Given at Dounyate, Dec. 12th, 36 Edw. III.

- No. 202. Charter of Ralph de Middleney concerning the remission of the manor of Blakefford.

To all the faithful in Christ, &c. Ralph de Middelney, knight greeting. Whereas Guichard sometime prior of Montacute and the convent of the same place granted to me for the term of my life an annual rent or pension of five marks and also their manor of Blakeforde, to hold of them and their successors as of the right of their church of Montacute for certain services reserved thence to them, I have granted and restored my whole estate in the said manor to Gerald now prior of Montacute and the convent of the same place, to hold to them and their successors as they were accustomed to hold it, for ever, together with the corn sown there and the rent of the tenants for the term of St. Michael, and the Nativity last past, with all profits, &c. I remit also and release to the same prior and convent, all my right which I had in the said rent or pension of five marks together with all arrears of the same. So that neither I nor my heirs or executors can have any right or claim in the said manor or in the said rent or pension.

No. 203. Charter of attorney by the said Ralph concerning possession to be surrendered.

To all the faithful in Christ, &c. Ralph de Middeleneye, knight, greeting. Although Guichard, sometime prior of Montacute and the convent of the same place, granted to me for the term of my life, their manor of Blakeforde, which is of the right of their church, yet I wish that Gerald now prior of Montacute and the convent of the same place may have again the said manor to themselves and their successors for ever, to hold quit of me and my heirs or executors. And in this matter I have appointed William Vyncent my attorney, to place the said prior and convent in full and peaceful seisin of the said manor, to hold to them and their successors for ever, without evasion or impediment of my heir or executors. Given at Montacute, January 3rd 36 Edw. III.

Release of waste made by the prior to the same Ralph.

This indenture made at Montacute on the 2nd day of January, 36 Edw. III., between Gerald, prior of Montacute, on the one part, and Sir Ralph de Middeleneye on the other part, testifies that whereas the said Sir Ralph had held of the prior and convent the manor of Blakeforde for the term of his life by the remission of Guichard, sometime prior of Montacute, the aforesaid prior has granted for himself and his successors that Sir Ralph may be altogether exonerate and quit, towards the said prior and convent, from all action and charge of waste in the said manor.

Given at Montacute in the day, place and year above-written.

No. 204. Grant of an annual pension of ten marks.

Gerald, prior of Montacute, and the convent of the same place, surrender grant and confirm to Sir Ralph Middelneye, knight, a yearly rent of ten marks, for the term of his life from their manor of Blakeforde, at two terms of the year, viz. on the feasts of Easter and St. Michael in equal portions. And should the said rent be in arrears for one month after any of the said terms, then it shall be allowed to the said Ralph to distrain in the aforesaid manor, until he shall be fully satisfied as to the said rents with arrears. Given in our chapter-house at Montacute on the 2nd day of January, 36 Edw. III.

No. 205. Pleas before the justices itinerant.

Pleas of juries and assizes before Salamon de Roff[a], and his fellow justices in eyre at Somerton in the county of Somerset in the 8th year of King Edward, son of King Henry.

The prior of Montacute was summoned to show by what warrant he withdraws from the King three suits in Hyneton, Westmodiford, and Kynkeston, suit of Modyford and Thorne, with the suit of free men, &c., and one tithe due at the King's hundred of Stane, and by what warrant he claims to have gallows and market at Montacute, and a fair at Tinteshull to the hurt of the King's burgesses at Ilchester, and to amend the assize of bread and ale &c. in the same villis and elsewhere in his lands in that county without licence and will &c.

The prior came, and said that as regarded the withdrawal of suits in Hyneton, Westmodiford, and Kyngeston, and of the suit of Modiford and Thorne, with the suits of free men, and of one tithe due at the King's hundred of Stane, and also the gallows and market at Montacute, and the fair at Tinteshull, that he made no withdrawal, because King Henry, great-grand-father of the present King, granted to the church of Montacute the said manors and hundreds with their appurtenances by his charter, which he produced and which was as follows:—

Henry, King of England to William, bishop of Exeter, John, bishop of Bath, and Richard son of Baldwin the sheriff, &c. (see No. 3 above).

Whereon he says, &c., that he and his predecessors have enjoyed the said liberties by this charter, and as regarded the assize of bread and ale in his lands, that he and his predecessors have used that liberty from time beyond memory.

William de Cyselham, who prosecutes on behalf of the King, says that King Henry, father of the present King, and also King John, grand father of the present King, have been seized of the three suits in Hyneton, Westmodiford, and Kingeston, and also of one suit in Modiford and Thorne, with suit of free men, and with tithing due at the hundred of Stane, after the said charter was executed. And he seeks that inquiry be made.

Afterwards jurors came to Winchester, who say on oath that the predecessors of the prior have withdrawn from the King the said suits of Hyneton, Westmodiford, and Kyngeston, Modiford and Thorne, with suit of free men, and a tithing at the King's hundred of Stane, and that the prior keeps them withdrawn and this has been done during fifty years elapsed since the time of King Henry, father of the present King, and the tithe is worth half a mark a year and the suit of free men two shillings a year, and therefore they decree that the King recover his seisin therein, and that the prior satisfy the King concerning the arrears.

A day was assigned the prior by attorney within three weeks after the feast of St. Martin, and the sheriff was instructed to cause to come twelve, &c., so many and such, as well knights as others, to make, &c.

The prior of Montacute was summoned to show by what warrant he withdraws from the King the suit of his tenants at Attebere due at the King's hundred at La Horethurne, contrary to the will of the King, &c.

The prior made and said that his tenants never made or ought to have made any suit at the said hundred, from time out of memory; and he seeks that inquiry be made.

William de Cyselliam, who prosecutes, says that the said tenants were accustomed to make suit, untill a certain Mark, formerly prior of Montacute, predecessor of the present prior, withdrew at the said hundred, and he seeks on behalf of the King, that enquiry be made by jury.

The jury, together with twelve knights chosen for this purpose, say on oath that the tenants of Attebere and Humbre were accustomed to make suit at that hundred when it was in the hands of John de Burgo, before the time of the said prior Mark, and that the said Mark withdrew the suit.

Therefore it was decreed that the King recover seisin of the suit, which the tenants of the said towns of Attebere and Humbre were accustomed to make at the hundred of La Horthurne, at the time when the hundred was in the hands of John de Burgo.

The prior was in mercy. The sheriff was ordered to compel the tenants to make the said suit, &c.

No. 206. Feoffment of the land "le Gonz."

William Croke, parson of the church of Tyntenhulle, Richard Couch, chaplain, William Vyncent, Peter le Barbour, Bertrand le Foune, and John Tanailles, the younger, by licence of the King, grant to the prior and convent of Montacute and their successors, one messuage and forty-four acres of land and one 'scabellum' with their appurtenances in Bisshopstone and Montagu. They grant also to the said prior and convent and their successors one penny of yearly rent which Hugh Benet was wont to pay to them for a croft which he holds for the term of his life of the remission of Thomas Gounz, in Bisshopestone together with the reversion of the said croft after the death of the said Hugh, all which they have of the gift and feoffment of the said Thomas Gounz and which were held of the prior and convent; to have and hold all the premises with reversion after the death of Hugh, to the prior and convent and their successors, in frank almain.

Witnesses:—William Dunfraville, John Meriet, knights; John atte Forde, William Welde, John Leddred. Given at Montacute, on the 5th day of June, 36 Edw. III.

No. 207. In the great roll of the fifth year of King Henry VI. in Somerset.

The prior of Montacute and his successors owe twelve marks a year of ancient tribute, which in time of peace they have been accustomed to pay to the chief house of the priory in parts beyond the sea, from the 24th day of October, 2 Henry IV., and 208*l.* for years gone by. Total 216*l.* In the treasury 26*l.* in two tallies by William Fynderne formerly sheriff of the county on behalf of the said prior, and he owes 190*l.* but he ought not to be summoned concerning 96*l.* of the said rent from the feast of St. Michael, 2 Henry IV. to the feast of St. Michael, in the 13th year of the same late King which are by writ of the King's pardon enrolled in the Memoranda of the 6th year of the present King, Hilary term, roll 20. In which it is contained that Henry V., late King of England, of his special favour pardoned and released to William, prior of Montacute and the convent of the same place all manner of adjudicated fines, amercements, issues, forfeitures, &c. arrears of rents and accounts, due and belonging to the said late King on the 21st day of March, together with all manner of actions and demands which the same late King by himself or with others has or could have against the prior. And he owes 94*l.* The same rendered account of the same debt in the treasury, 94*l.* on the 19th day of February, 6 Henry VI. and he is quit.

Charters of the Burgesses of Montacute.

No. 208. Durand the prior, and the convent of Montacute grant to all the burgage tenants in their town of Montacute, all liberties and free customs which other burgesses in Somerset have who hold in the best and most free manner, as free burgesses. In recognition of which concession the said tenants have given two marks.

Witnesses:—Osbert de Trusti Ganse, steward, Robert Drune, Gilbert de Taunton, Ralph de Radochestone, Peter de Bristoute, William de Torna.

No. 209. Mark the prior, and the convent of Montacute grant to all their burgage tenants their heirs and assigns in the new borough (in novo burgo) of Montacute, namely commencing from the house which Helias the merchant, brother of Robert Sect, holds on the one side, and from the house which Gunhild, daughter of Walter the baker, holds on the other, on either side of the street as far as the house of Hugh Forester, shall be free burgesses with all liberties and free customs which other burgesses in Somerset have who hold in the best and most free manner: the said burgesses paying for their several burgages annually to the convent kitchen, sixteen pence for all service. In recognition of which concession the said tenants have given half a mark.

Witnesses:—Robert dean of Chynnok, Osbert chaplain of Stok, Robert de Hewenebere, Simon the clerk, Robert de Aula, Walter the porter.

No. 210. In the great roll of the 15th year in the Somerset and Dorset Item.

The prior of Montacute and brother Gyot, his fellow-monk owe 120*l.* yearly for custody of the same priory, lands and tenements, goods and chattels, &c., belonging to the same. To have them from the octave of Easter in the 13th year so long as the King should please. Paying one half at the Michaelmas exchequer and the other half at the Easter exchequer as contained in the principal roll and in roll 13. And 120*l.* for the year gone by. Total 240*l.* But they ought not to be summoned or burdened concerning the same rent in future, on account of the King's writ enrolled in the Memoranda of Easter term in this 15th year, in which among other matters is contained that the King has granted to William de Montacute, earl of Salisbury that he and his heirs may have the custody of the aforesaid priory as well in times of war with France as when the priory may happen to be vacant with all belonging to that custody, and that he [the prior] shall be answerable to the said earl for the rent which the custodians or monks of that priory are held to pay to the King annually for custody of the same on occasion of war, with any arrears there may be; and by which writ the King has commanded the barons to cause the prior to be exonerate and quit of 120*l.* of the same rent which he was paying to the King at the time of the aforesaid grant. And he is quit.

No. 211. Richard Lovel, lord of Castelcari, quit-claims to the prior and convent of Montacute, all his right in the manor of Tyntenhulle and Estchinnok, and in the advowsons of the churches of the same towns, and also in the hundreds of Tyntenhulle and Hundesberghe, the fairs and markets of Tyntenhulle, and also in all other matters belonging to the said manors, advowsons, hundreds, fairs and markets.

Witnesses:—Hugh de Curteni, William Martyn, William de Montacute, Ralph de Corges, Henry de Urtiaco, Hugh Pointz, John de Meriet, John de Erleghe, Henry de Glastonbury, Nicholas de Cheyny, John de Elmedone, Peter de Curey. Given at Yeovil on Saturday the feast of St. Hilary, in the 12th year of King Edward, son of King Edward

No. 212. Richard Lovel, lord of Caricastel, quit-claims to the prior and convent of Montacute, all his right in the manors of Tyntenhulle and Estchinnok, and in the advowsons of the churches of the same towns, and also in the hundreds of Tyntenhulle and Hundesberghe, the fairs and markets of Tyntenhulle, and also in all other matters belonging to the said manors, advowsons, hundreds, fairs and markets. And if any fine concerning the aforesaid tenements or hundreds or any part thereof shall have been levied in the King's court between him and Muriel his wife complainants, and Master Richard de Clare and Master Roger de Blokeswrthe deforcians, by virtue whereof any right could in any way accrue to him or his heirs, he desires and grants, for himself and his heirs, that such right shall be null for ever.

Witnesses:—Sir Thomas, earl of Lancaster; Sir John, earl of Richmond; Sir Thomas de Holand; Sir William le Latimer; Sir Fulk le Strange; Sir Nicholas de Segrave; Sir John Claveringge; Sir Fulk fitz Warin; Sir Gerard Salveyn; Sir William Tucht; Sir John Beek; Sir William Trussel; Sir John de Kynardeseye; Sir Michael de Meledone; Roger Beler; John de Lancastre.

Given at York, on Thursday in the octave of the Ascension, 12th year of King Edward, son of Edward, at the time when Parliament was held there.

The aforesaid Lovel has acknowledged this quit-claim and caused it to be enrolled as well in the King's chancery, as before

Henry de Scrope and his associate justices then present there in the aforesaid day, place and year.

This aforesaid writing is enrolled in the King's court, before the King, in Easter term, 12th year of King Edward son of King Edward. In roll 104.

No. 213. Record of assize concerning the land and mill of Wyleford.

The assize came to enquire if Nicholas de Wedergrave, John le Warener, and Thomas de Stapyntone unjustly, &c., dispossessed Guychard, prior of Montacute of his free tenement in Northcadesbury, &c. And the same prior, by William de Perret his attorney, complained that he was dispossessed of one messuage, one water-mill, and twenty-one acres of land, with appurtenances, &c.

And Nicholas and the others came not, but a certain William de Charleton answered for the same as their bailiff and says for them that he ought not to answer to this writ, because he says that none of them has anything in the aforesaid tenements nor had anything on the day of the obtaining of his writ, viz. the 24th day of May, in the first year of the present King, whence he seeks judgment concerning the writ, &c. And if it is joined, &c. then he says that the prior has unjustly obtained that assize against them, because they have done him no injury or disseisin and this places him before the assize, &c., and the aforesaid prior by his action similarly. Therefore let the assize be taken. The jurors say on their oath that the aforesaid Nicholas holds the aforesaid tenements in trespass, and that he and the others in the writ unjustly, &c., dispossess thence the prior, as he complains. Therefore it was adjudged that the prior should recover his seisin by the sheriff's return, and his damages which are taxed by the same at 100 shillings, and Nicholas and the others are in mercy for disseisin, &c.

No. 214. Charter of King Edward III. concerning the advowson and custody of the priory of Montacute, granted to William, earl of Salisbury, during war, &c.

Whereas we, Edward, King of England, in consideration of the strenuous worth of William, earl of Salisbury and marshal of England, and the faithful allegiance rendered to us by him, have granted to him and his heirs, the advowson of the priory of Montacute, for ever, as in our letters patent is more fully contained. Now observing the faithful and laudable behaviour of the same earl in our allegiance, and willing to bestow on him the fulness of a greater favour, we have granted that he and his heirs for ever shall have the custody of the aforesaid priory as well when, on account of wars with France or any other cause, it, among other priories, houses and possessions of religious aliens, shall have been taken into our hands or of our heirs, as when the priory shall have become vacant by the death, deposition or resignation of the prior, or in any other way, with all belonging to that custody. And that the earl and his heirs shall ordain and dispose, as shall seem best for their own convenience and the usefulness of the priory, the issues and profits thence proceeding, as well in times of war as of vacation of the priory. And that concerning the rent which the custodians or monks of the priory were held to pay annually to us in times of war, they shall be answerable for such rent together with arrears of the same to the earl, and shall be altogether exonerate of the said rent and arrears towards us. In testimony whereof we have caused these our letters patent to be made.

No. 215. Charter of the said King concerning the advowson and custody of the said priory together with custody of the cells of Carswell, Holn, St. Carric and Malpas, granted to the same earl.

Edward by the grace of God, &c. Know that whereas we formerly, &c., to the same earl, &c., and now the aforesaid has prayed us that, whereas the cells of Carswell in the county of Devon, of Holne in the county of Dorset, of St. Carric in the county of Cornwall, and of Malpas in Wales, belong to the priory of Montacute and have done from time beyond memory, we will order the aforesaid cells so belonging to the priory of Montacute to be specified in our aforesaid letters to him concerning the same priory, so that he and his heirs may have the custody of the said cells together with the custody of the priory. We, in consideration of the premisses, have granted that the said earl shall have and hold the advowsons of the said cells of Carswell, Holne, St. Carric, and Malpas to himself and his heirs, if the same belong to the priory of Montacute, together with the custody of that priory, as well in times of war as of vacation of the priory, &c.

Pleas before the King at Westminster, Michaelmas Term.

7 Ric. II.

No. 217. In Trinity Term 5 Richard II., the King committed to Robert Tresilian, Chief Justice, a writ close to the following effect:—

We commit to you under our seal the tenor of a foot of fine levied in the court of King Edward II. in the 11th year of his reign, before William de Bereford and his fellows justices of the bench, by the King's writ, between Richard Lovell and Muriel his wife, querents, and Master Richard de Clare and Master Roger de Blokerworth, deforcians, concerning the manors of Blakeford, Southbarewe, Northbarewe, Cherleton Makerell, Tyntenhull, and Prestele, commanding you that, having inspected the tenor of the said foot of fine, you further, at the suit of Richard Seymor, kinsman and heir of Richard Lovell, cause to be done in that matter what, by right and in accordance with the laws and customs of our realm, ought to be done. Given at Westminster, 20 June, in the 5th year of our reign.

The tenor of the foot of fine mentioned in the said writ is as follows:—

This is the final concord made in the King's court at

Westminster in the octave of St. Michael in the 11th year of King Edward II., before William de Bereford, Gilbert de Roubury, John de Benstede, John Bacon, and John de Mutford, justices, &c., between Richard Lovell and Muriel his wife, querents, by Thomas de Croukern representing the said Muriel, and Master Richard de Clare and Master Roger de Blokerworth, deforciant, concerning the manors of Blakeford, Southbarewe, Northbarewe, Cherleton Makerell, Tyntenhull, and Prestele. Richard Lovell acknowledged that the said manors belonged to Richard de Clare and Roger de Blokerworth, as of his gift. For this acknowledgment, &c., Richard de Clare and Roger de Blokerworth have granted the premises to Richard and Muriel Lovell and the heirs of Richard to hold the manors of Southbarewe, Northbarewe, and Tyntenhull of the King and his heirs and the manors of Blakeford, Cherleton Makerell, and Prestele of the chief lords of that fee, by the services which pertain thereto. And this concord, as far as concerns the manors of Southbarewe, Northbarewe, and Tyntenhull was made by command of the King.

Afterwards at the suit of Richard Seymor, asserting himself to be kinsman and heir of Richard Lovell, viz. : son of Muriel daughter of James son of the said Richard Lovell, and asserting that the said Richard and Muriel were dead, and that he had not yet obtained execution concerning the manor of Tyntenhull, and that the prior of Montacute, after the death of the said Richard Lovell and Muriel, entered upon the said manor and occupied the same contrary to the form of the said foot of fine ; and sought execution concerning the said manor of Tyntenhull according to the form of the said fine, &c.

Whereupon, the sheriff of Somerset was ordered to instruct the prior to attend before the King on the quinzaine of Easter last to show cause why Richard Seymor should not have execution, concerning the manor of Tyntenhull against him, and further the same day was assigned to Richard Seymor ; on which day Richard Seymor appeared by John de Hulton, his attorney, and the sheriff made return that he had instructed the prior to attend at the same time, to do and receive whatever the King's court should decree in this matter, by William atte More and Richard Grene. The prior was present in person, and Richard Seymor sought execution, &c. The prior said that Richard Seymor, by the name of Richard de Sancto Mauro, knight, brought a writ of right against him by the name of Francis, prior of Montacute, concerning the manor of Tyntenhull returnable before the justices of the King's Bench, on the morrow of Martinmas in the 6th year of the present King's reign. To which writ Richard Seymor appeared, and the prior was essoined and had by his essoin until three weeks after Easter, and that the writ of scire facias was obtained while the writ of right was pending, the latter being of a more important character, &c., he sought judgment on the writ of scire facias, &c., and produced the tenor of the said writ of right with the tenor of enrolment of essoin obtained through the King's chancellor by the hand of John de Waltham, keeper of the rolls in Chancery, &c.

1. The tenor of the writ.

Richard, king of England, to the sheriff of Somerset, greeting. Command Francis, prior of Montacute, to restore justly and without delay to Richard de Sancto Mauro, knight, the manor of Tyntenhull, which he claims as his right and inheritance and to hold of us in capite, and of which he complains that he is unjustly deforced by the prior, and unless the prior restore the property, and Richard shall have made you sure as to his claim, then summon the prior to appear before our justices at Westminster on the morrow of Martinmas to show cause for non-compliance. And have there the summons and this writ. At Westminster, the 13th of October in the 6th year of our reign.

2. The tenor of the record and process.

Essoin taken at Westminster before Robert Bealknap and his fellow justices of the King's Bench, on the morrow of Martinmas in the 6th year of King Richard. Rot. 2. Francis, prior of Montacute versus Richard de Sancto Mauro, knight, concerning a plea of land by John Davy, within three weeks after Easter on which, as before, he sought judgment concerning the said writ of scire facias, &c. Richard Seymor protested that he did not acknowledge that he had brought any such writ of right against the prior concerning the said manor, and further that it is not shown by the tenors of the writ, record and process, that he ever appeared to such a writ, or that the writ was then pending, and he therefore sought judgment and execution, &c. And because it did not appear to the court to have been proved by the tenors of the writ and record that Richard Seymor had ever appeared to that writ, or that the writ was still pending, and it seeming to the court that the writ of scire facias could be maintained, notwithstanding the said reasons and allegations, the prior was commanded to answer further. The prior said that King Edward, the present King's grandfather, by the advice of his Parliament, caused to be seized into his own hands all the possessions of alien priories in England, to be held so long as the war with the French should last, and among others the priory of Montacute. He produced in court letters patent to the following effect:—

Edward, King of England, to all, &c., greeting. Know that we have committed to Francis, prior of Montacute, the custody of the priory of Montacute and all its possessions, which, with other alien priories and religious houses in the power of the French, but within our realm of England, we have, since the peace of Calais was broken by the French, caused to be taken into our hands, to hold the said priories and their possessions from Michaelmas last so long as the same shall from the said causes remain in our hands, paying to us 120*l.* yearly in equal portions at Easter and Michaelmas; saving to us the knights' fees and the advowsons of the churches belonging to the said priory. On behalf of the prior, John Fitelton and John Halle, of the county of Somerset, being present in person in our chancery, became mainpernors that the prior would continually dwell upon the priory and its possessions, and maintain and provide the number of clerks and servants as ordained of old, and chantries and other divine services and alms, pious works and all other things incumbent on the priory, out of its revenues, and repair and leave the buildings of the priory and its possessions in as good condition as they now are; and that neither the prior, his clerks or his servants would betake themselves out of our realm of England, and on no pretext tell or reveal the condition, affairs, or secrets of our realm of England to any alien, nor send abroad gold or silver in mass or money, jewels, arms, or anything which might be turned in any way to the prejudice of us or our people; and that the prior would faithfully pay the said farm of 120*l.*, and not alienate or remove, lay waste or destroy, any goods, chattels or other things belonging to the priory. Furthermore we grant that the prior shall be quit of all tenths and fifteenths, wools and all other quotas, to be paid to us by the clergy and commonalty of our realm, after the last taking of the priory into our hands, or imposed or to be imposed on the clergy by the supreme Pontiff, and also from the custody of the sea coast and of the payment of wool-taxes, &c., so long as the priory and its possessions are from the above-named cause in our possession and in the custody of the prior, so that the prior may be able to dispose and use the said priory and its possessions as may seem to him best and of the greatest utility. At Westminster, 10 November, 45 Edward III.

The King, by these letters patent, the prior asserted, entrusted to him by the name of Francis, prior of the alien priory of Montacute, the custody of the priory and all its possessions, from Michaelmas then last past, so long as they, from the said cause, should remain in the hands of the King, paying annually to the King, in equal portions at Easter and Michaelmas, 120*l.* saving to the King the knights' fees and advowsons of churches belonging to the priory. And the prior says that he is not now able to answer for these without the King, and sought aid from the King, &c.

Richard Seymor said that the prior, for reasons before alleged, ought not to have aid from the King, and added that the said King Edward was seized of the advowson of the priory, in his own demesne as of fee, and, long before the grant of custody to the prior, granted by letters patent to William de Montacute, sometime earl of Salisbury, and marshal of England, the advowson of the priory of Montacute, to have and to hold to himself and his heirs of the King and his heirs. And the King, wishing to bestow on the earl the fulness of a greater favour, granted that the earl and his heirs should have perpetual custody of the same priory both when on occasion of wars with France or any other causes alien religious houses should be taken into the King's hand, and also whenever the office of prior should be vacant, &c., and that the earl and his heirs should be able to dispose and order the same for their own convenience and the good of the priory, and receive the revenues and profits for their own use both in time of war and when the office of prior should be vacant, and that neither the King nor any of his ministers should at these times intervene. And that account should be rendered to the earl of the rent which the custodians or monks of the priory by reason of war with France, were bound to pay annually to the King for custody of the same, and that the custodians of the priory should be altogether free from the rent and arrears towards the King.

Afterwards William de Montacute, earl of Salisbury, son and heir of the said earl, besought the King that the priory having been taken into the King's hands on the breaking of the peace of Calais, &c., he would command to be delivered to him custody of the priory, with its revenues and profits received after the time of the taking of the same into the King's hands, according to the grant made to his father and his heirs by the King, the King decreeing that though, at the time when it was ordained that priories, houses and possessions of the religious should be taken into his own hands in aid of the war, it may have been determined and ordained in the same Parliament that the priors and other presiding officers of those places or their proctors should be preferred to others as custodians of such priories, houses and possessions, as well for the good government of the same as for the maintenance of divine services, paying thence to the King what may have been agreed between them and the King, yet desiring his former grant, to the earl and his heirs of custody of the priory, to have, as far as could be without offence to the abovesaid concord, its due effect, willed that the earl, in order that he might be able to maintain himself better in the wars, should receive of the prior during this war so much rent, as was accustomed to be paid to the King for custody of the priory before this grant was made to the earl, and as the prior would be bound to pay to the King if custody of the priory had been committed to him by the King. And the King by his writ commanded his treasurer and barons of the Exchequer to cause this rent with the arrears received after the taking of the priory into the King's hands to be delivered to the earl, and to cause the prior to be exonerated and quit with respect to the Exchequer. The King also issued another writ to the prior that he should be answerable to the present earl for the said rent. These writs of which the date is 2 Dec., 45 Edward III., he now committed under his seal to his justices.

And so Richard Seymor said that the King thus demised the advowson, rent, and whatever else of the same priory could appertain to himself, and caused full restitution to be made to the earl, son and heir of the former earl, according to the effect of the grant formerly made to his father, so that whatever of the priory and its possessions could not be reserved in the person of the former King, cannot now reside in the person of the present King, and therefore maintains that the prior should not have the right to obtain aid from the King against him in this matter.

The prior said that it is contained in the letters patent to the prior concerning custody of the priory that the King reserved to himself the knights' fees and advowsons of churches, and that in the writs produced in court by Richard Seymor it is contained that the earl should not in any way interfere in the custody and management of the said house, and also that it is not there contained that in the restitution made to the present earl any special mention was made of the knights' fees and advowsons of churches, and further that the King, after this restitution, presented John de Stone to the church of Tyntenhull, on account of the reservation by his grandfather of the knights' fees and advowsons. For which reason he sought aid from the King.

Richard Seymor said that by this restitution the advowson of the priory, together with its custody and all else appertaining to the priory passed of right to the present earl, and therefore he maintained that the prior ought not to obtain the said aid, &c.

On this a day within the octave of the feast of Holy Trinity next following was assigned for the parties to appear before the King in statu quo; saving their reasons and answers, &c., and on that day Richard Seymor appeared at Westminster by attorney, and also the prior by Stephen de Hall his attorney. The case being continued to the morrow of the feast of St. John Baptist next following, the two then appeared by attorney before the King at Canterbury. And since it appears to the court that the said aid ought not to be granted to the prior in this case, it was decreed that the prior answer further, &c., without the said aid, &c.

The prior said that Richard Seymor ought not to have execution against him by virtue of the said fine, because he said that King Henry, son of William the Conqueror, was sometime seized of the manor in his demesne as of fee, and [granted] the same by his charter, which he now produces,¹ [to the Cluniac monks of Montacute in frank almain for ever, which charter the present King and several of his predecessors have confirmed, and by virtue of which grant, the prior and monks had peaceful seisin of the said manor until Friday before the feast of the Assumption in the tenth year of Edward II. And this King Edward by letters patent, granted to Stephen, prior of Montacute, that when the priory should become vacant by his death or resignation, the sub-prior and convent should have the custody thereof for a period not exceeding two months, for which grant the said Stephen paid 40 marks to the King, and when the priory became vacant by the resignation of the said Stephen, a certain Richard Lovell, ancestor of the said Richard Seymor, entered upon the said manor with a large force of armed men on the said Friday, and occupied the same, and at that time the said fine was levied. And the prior produced in court the tenor of the record and process of restitution beginning with the King's writ to the following effect:—

Edward, &c., to William Martyn, Hugh de Courteneye and Michael de Meldon, greeting. Whereas on the 13th July in the tenth year of our reign, for a fine of 40 marks made by Stephen, prior of Montacute, we granted to him by letters patent, that when the priory should become vacant by his death or resignation, the sub-prior and convent should have the custody thereof for a period not exceeding two months, saving to us knights' fees and advowsons, and afterwards on the 12th October in the same year we took the fealty of John Caprarii, whom the abbot of Cluny had appointed to be prior of Montacute, and ordered the temporalities to be restored to him, as appears by the rolls of Chancery, and John now prior of the same, has complained that certain malefactors have with armed force entered the manors of Tyntenhull and Estchynnok, and the hundreds of Tyntenhull and Hundesbergh belonging of old to the said priory, have expelled the sub-prior and convent, and taken their goods therein, we order you, or two of you, of whom Michael shall be one, to enquire by the oath of knights and other lawful men, and if the facts are as stated, to restore the said manors and hundreds to the prior, and to inform us. Dated at York, 13th November, in the eleventh year of our reign.

By virtue of this writ, the said William, Hugh and Michael ordered the sheriff of Somerset to cause to come before them at Iwele on Monday after the Epiphany twenty-four men—knights, and other good and lawful men—of the vicinage of Tyntenhull and Estchynnok, and of the vicinage of the hundreds of Tyntenhull and Hundesbergh, by whom the truth might be known. On which day the sheriff returned the King's writ directed to him and the writ of the said William, Hugh, and Michael, and the names of the jurors. These came not. Therefore the sheriff was ordered to distrain them by their lands and chattels, and to have them before the said William, Hugh, or Michael, or two of them at Iwele on Wednesday before St. Hilary, and besides them the specified number of knights and others.

Inquisition taken at Jevele on Wednesday before St. Hilary in the twelfth year of King Edward, son of King Edward, by the oath of Ralph de Gorges, John Mautravers the elder, John de Erlegh, John de Meriet, Henry de Glaston, Peter de Evercy, Edmund de Everard, William de Wygebere, John de Clyvedon, knights, John Peytevyne, John Musket, and Henry de Estfeld, who say that Stephen, late prior of Montacute was seised, as of the right of his church, of the manors of Tyntenhull and Estchynnok, and the hundreds of Tyntenhull and Hundesbergh on the day when he retired from the government of that priory, viz. the 13th July in the tenth year of the King, and that his predecessors from time out of mind, were peacefully seised of the same, and that during the voidance of the priory, when the said manors and hundreds were on the hands of the sub-prior and convent by the King's commission, to wit on Friday before the feast of the Assumption in the said year, Richard Lovell, Henry de Pupulpenne, Master Hugh Cook (coocus), Maurice Marescall, Walter de Welham, and Margery his wife, and Thomas, son of the said Walter, Master William de Modford, Eva, late the wife of Richard Suncte and Thomas Revenyng, entered the same with armed force, occupied them, and carried away corn, oxen, ploughs, carts, chariots, horses, sheep, and other goods and chattels in the same to the value of 1,000*l.*, and held the said manors and hundreds for two years and twenty weeks, and nothing is known of the rents of the said hundreds.]

Therefore the justices took the said manors and hundreds into the hands of the King according to the tenor of the commission, and delivered them to the prior to be held as of the right of his church of Montacute, saving the right of any one, as the priors, his predecessors, have always had and held them within the memory of man. And the sheriff was ordered to carry out the aforesaid, &c., and afterwards, the manor being in the possession of the said priory, Richard Lovell by his deed, which the prior then produced in court, quit-claimed for himself and his successors, to the prior and convent of Montacute, and their successors, all his right in the manor of Tyntenhull, and further by the same writing acknowledged that the said manor was the right of the prior and convent and their successors for ever, so that neither he nor his heirs could ever in future claim any right therein, and moreover he granted by the same writing that if any fine should have been levied on the same manor or any part of it in the King's court between Richard Lovell and Muriel his wife, complainants, and Master Richard de Clare, and Master Roger de Blokerworth, deforcians, by virtue of which any right or claim might accrue to himself or his heirs, that fine should be for ever null and held of no account, and he (the prior) produced in court the writing of grant and remission of the said Richard Lovell as follows :—

(See No. 212).

On this the present prior sought judgment whether Richard Seymor ought to have execution concerning the manor against him (the prior) contrary to his ancestor's deed.

Richard Seymor said, not acknowledging any of these allegations of the prior, that the prior's plea is double or triple, and on this account he maintains that the prior ought not legally to be admitted to such a double plea, &c. He therefore sought judgment and execution, &c.

The prior said that he pleaded only the said writing as the deed of Richard Seymor's ancestor in bar of execution and for the chief and final issue of his plea, and the rest he took only by way of protestation and conduction of the whole of that matter to the issue, and said as before that Richard Lovell, ancestor, &c., quit-claimed for himself and his heirs to the prior and convent of Montacute, and their successors all his right and claim in the manor of Tyntenhull, while the former prior was in possession of the same manor ; and moreover he acknowledged, &c. So that neither Richard Lovell nor his heirs, &c. And moreover he granted that if any fine, &c. On which account he sought judgment whether the said Richard Seymor ought, contrary to this his ancestor's deed, to have execution concerning the manor against him, &c.

Richard Seymor, not acknowledging any of the prior's allegations, said that a certain Hugh Lovell, whose kinsman and heir he is, was seised of the manor of Tyntenhull in his demesne as of fee, and, long before the levying of the said fine, granted the manor to a former prior of Montacute, to be held at the will of Hugh himself in aid of the work of the church of that place, as long as the said Hugh should so will, and that the prior or his successors never had any other status in the manor before the levying of the said fine, &c., under colour of which grant the prior and his successors occupied the manor in right of the said Hugh and his heirs, &c. until Richard Lovell, kinsman and heir of the said Hugh, seised and resumed the said manor into his own hands, and continued his seisin in the manor till Richard Lovell granted in fee simple the said manor, with the other manors aforesaid to Master Richard de Clare and Master Roger de Blokerworth, who in virtue of that feoffment were seised of the same at the time the said writing was made, the then prior having nothing in the manor, and this he was prepared to prove, &c. And they granted and restored this and the aforesaid manors to Richard Lovell and Muriel, and the heirs of Richard Lovell, of which manor of Tyntenhull, by virtue of the said fine, Richard Seymor as kinsman and heir of Richard Lovell sought execution, &c. And he says that neither King Henry, son of the Conqueror, nor any other King was ever seised of the said manor before the levying of the said fine. On which account he sought judgment and execution, &c.

The prior, not acknowledging any of Richard Seymor's allegations, said that the plea of Richard was double and therefore he maintains that it is not, of right, necessary to answer to such a double plea.

And because it appears to the court that Richard Seymor's plea was double, it was decreed by the court that he should answer to the writing which is asserted by the prior to have been made by his ancestor, and which the prior pleaded against him in bar of execution of the said fine, &c., whether, &c. And Richard Seymor, having inspected the writing, said that he did not acknowledge that it was made at the supposed date; and further that the then prior of Montacute was not seised of the manor of Tyntenhull nor of any part thereof at the time when the writing was made, but that Richard de Clare and Roger de Blokerworth, who, by the said fine, restored the manor, had been up to that time seised of the same, and this he was prepared to prove, &c. He said too, that he himself took the residue of all the matters above put forth by way of protestation and conduction of the whole of his plea to that issue. On which he sought judgment whether he ought to be excluded from execution by virtue of this writing. And sought execution, &c.

And the prior said that at the time the writing was made the then prior of Montacute was seised of the said manor of Tyntenhull with its appurtenances, and this he was prepared to prove by a trial by jury, &c.

And Richard Seymor said that, at the time the writing was made, the then prior of Montacute was not seised of the manor of Tyntenhull or of any part of it, and this he was prepared to prove by a trial by jury, &c.

The sheriff of Somerset was therefore instructed to cause to appear before the King within the quinzaine of Michaelmas, &c., twenty-four knights, &c., from the vicinage of Tyntenhull by whom, &c. And who neither, &c., to take cognisance, &c. Because so, &c. The same day was assigned to the parties, &c. On which day both Richard Seymor and the prior appeared by their attorneys before the King at Westminster. And the sheriff made return of the names of the aforesaid twenty-four,

&c., of whom no one came, and therefore the sheriff shall produce them before the King, within the octave of St. Martin, anywhere, &c., for the composition of the jury, &c. The same day was assigned to the parties, &c. And the process between them, delayed by the jury being continued to the quinzaine of St. Hilary, &c. On which day before the King at Westminster came Richard Seymor and the prior by their attorneys and also the jurors. And the jurors say on oath that the prior of Montacute who held office at the time when the writing was made, which the present prior pleaded against Richard Seymor in bar of execution of his fine concerning the manor of Tyntenhull and its appurtenances, was not seised of the manor of Tyntenhull or of any part thereof when that writing was made, as Richard Seymor in his plea, alleged, &c. Therefore it is decreed that Richard Seymor have execution against the present prior concerning the manor of Tyntenhull with its appurtenances.

The Prior and Convent of Montacute placed before Parliament their bill in the following form :

To our lord the King and the lords in this present parliament. Their humble chaplains the prior and convent of Montacute show that Richard [Seymor] brought a writ of scire facias against the prior returnable in the King's Bench on the quinzaine of Easter in the sixth year of the present King's reign, to have execution concerning the manor of Tyntenhull by reason of a fine levied in the court of King Edward, great-grandfather of the present King, between Richard Lovell and certain other persons ; which manor is a great part of the substance of the priory, and of which the prior and his predecessors have been seised from the time of King Henry, son of William the Conqueror, until the present recovery. Which priory with all its possessions was seized into the hand of King Edward, grandfather of the present King, on account of the war with France, because the priory was in the power of France, and King Edward by letters patent committed custody of the priory to the prior, to hold it so long as it should from this cause remain in his hand, saving expressly in the said patent the fees and advowsons to the King, to whom the advowson of the church of the said manor is appendant and is still in his hand from this cause. To which writ of scire facias the prior appeared in court and alleged that Richard Seymour, on the morrow of Martinmas in the sixth year of the present King's reign brought a writ of right against the prior concerning the manor and appeared to this writ; and that the writ of scire facias was procured while the writ of right was pending. He demanded judgment on the writ of scire facias procured while the writ of right was pending, but, notwithstanding this exception, the writ of scire facias was adjudged to be valid, and the prior was by the judgment commanded to answer; which judgment is not entered on a roll. Moreover, after this judgment, the prior again brought the matter forward and produced the King's patent, the said grant proving the reservation of the fees and advowsons to the King, and from this cause he sought aid of the King. Of this aid the prior was deprived by the judgment, which judgment is not entered on a roll. Further, after the judgment the prior produced the charter of King Henry, son of the Conqueror, proving that he gave the manor in frank almain to the church and monks of Montacute, who had continuously until the present time had possession of the same by reason of this gift, and by divers confirmations of the King's, and therefore he sought aid of the King; notwithstanding which the justices went on with the plea. Afterwards the prior pleaded to the action, whereat by letters patent right was proved to the King. Wherefore the prior and convent pray your lordships to call before you the said justices, and to examine them on the matter, and to charge them that the said judgment be entered as if they had been pleaded, according to the form of another bill, which is annexed to this, made afterwards in especial manner according to the matter, containing in express words how the enrolment and record ought to be corrected and amended. Which bill should be made and delivered before the justices of the said bench, otherwise, most honourable lords, without your aid, the said priory is destroyed for ever. And, most honourable lords, the said prior, at the commencement of the plea, pleaded only that the justices should enter the pleas in manner as they were pleaded. This the justices utterly refused. So the prior and convent have brought before parliament a schedule of which the said bill makes mention in the form following:—

Memorandum, that where in the record and process between Richard Seymor and the prior of Montacute it is thus contained, viz. “And because by the tenors of the said writ and record here sent it was not established that Richard Seymor ever appeared to the said writ, nor that the said writ was then pending the prior was asked if anything,” &c. The prior petitions that the record be amended under this form, viz. that where “quesitum fuit” occurs, the record be amended and become, “Because it appears to the court that the writ of scire facias could be maintained, notwithstanding the reasons and allegations, the said prior was ordered to answer further,” &c. So the prior seeks that where he sought aid of the King, &c., where it is now thus written in the record, viz. “Because it appears to the court that the said aid ought not to be granted to the prior in this case, the prior was asked if anything,” &c. the prior petitions that the record be amended in this form, viz. that where “quesitum,” &c., is written, the enrolment be corrected to read thus—The prior was ordered by the court to answer further, &c., without the said aid, &c.

This bill and schedule having been read in parliament in presence of the lords justices of the King’s Bench, Robert Bealknap, chief justice of the Common Bench, John de Waltham, keeper of the rolls, Robert de Plesyngton, chief baron of the Exchequer, Walter de Cloptone and William Rikill, serjeants, and other learned men there present, and also the record and process of which the bill and schedule make mention, and which were brought into parliament by command of the lords, and there before the lords of the realm, justices, and others, examined, and thereon the matter contained in this bill and schedule having been diligently debated and examined, finally by the advice of the justices, &c., it is judged and commanded in parliament that the enrolment thus made in the plea be amended and corrected agreeably in all things to what is now demanded by the said bill and schedule, in the form and manner following:—

This is to certify that the rolls in which the said [matters] are pretended to be contained may be taken out of the bundle in which they are now contained, and other rolls newly made, written and presently sent and filed in place of these, comprising the same number of rolls, and containing the matters in all things contained in the previous rolls, except that these new rolls and entries be made in accordance with that which is demanded by the bill and schedule, and these new rolls thus made and filed be new rolls of record thenceforth, and the other previous rolls of the said tenor be null and void for all time. Also that the enrolment of the said record and process be amended, by virtue of the said judgment in parliament, in the said form, and there be another new bill made in parliament on behalf of the prior and convent in the following form—

To the King and his lords in parliament, the prior of Montacute shows that as Richard Seymor, kinsman and heir of Richard Lovell sought a writ of scire facias against the prior in the King's Bench, returnable on the quinzaine of Easter in the 6th year of the present King's reign, to have execution concerning the manor of Tyntenhull upon a fine levied in the court of King Edward, great-grandfather of the present King, in the octave of Michaelmas in the 11th year of King Edward's reign, before William de Bereford and his associate justices of the Common Bench, between Richard Lovell and Muriel his wife, complainants, and Master Richard de Clare and Master Roger de Blokerworth, deforcians, concerning the said and other manors, upon the said writ, and execution concerning the manor of Tyntenhull is adjudged to Richard [Seymor] against the prior as is clearly shown in the record made in the said bench, in which record are divers errors as the prior will be ready to point out. Wherefore the prior prays that it be ordered in this present parliament that certain people of the King's council be assigned, before whom the said record be sent, and who shall have full power and authority to hear the assignment of the said errors, and to cause Richard Seymor to be cited before them on a certain day assigned by them, to hear the assignment of the said errors, and who shall have power to correct and redress the errors and to right the judgment thereon rendered, and that no protection be allowed to Richard Seymor in this suit having regard to the delay which the prior suffers by default of good entry of the plea, and that the King has great interest that this matter be speedily redressed, because by the removal of the aid and the recovery of the manor the King is deprived of the fees and advowsons expressly reserved by his patent, and because the church of Montacute has had seisin of the manor of Tyntenhull from the time of King Henry, son of the Conqueror, as by charters of the King's plainly appears, up to the time of the said judgment.

And this bill having been read in parliament, it was adjudged that the prior of Montacute have a writ of scire facias returnable in the next parliament to cause Richard Seymor to be cited to the next parliament to hear the errors to be shown or alleged by the prior as contained in the record and process, and further to do and receive what shall be adjudged in this matter by the law of the land. And it is commanded that the record and process with all things appertaining to them be in the next parliament for this cause. And it is granted that no protection which is or may be sought for Richard [Seymor] for this cause be allowed in any way in this complaint.

Memorandum that in a parliament held at New Sarum on Friday before the feast of St. Mark the Evangelist 7 Richard II. the prior of Montacute presented his petition, "To our most valiant lord the King," &c., and the said petition having been read, it was decreed that the prior have a writ of scire facias, returnable in the next parliament, commanding Richard Seymor to be present in the next parliament to hear the errors which the prior may show or allege in the record and process, and further to and receive what, in this matter, may be decreed by the law of the land, that the record and process, &c., be in the next parliament from the above cause, and that no protection which then had been or afterwards might be, from a feigned cause, demanded by the said Richard be allowed in any way in that complaint.

Afterwards the parliament being summoned at Westminster on the morrow of Martinmas next, the prior prosecuted and had the writ of scire facias on the matter directed to the sheriff of Somerset returnable in the same parliament. And now in that parliament, John Streeche, sheriff of Somerset made return of the writ the tenor of which is as follows—

“Richard, by the grace,” &c. The tenor of the return and endorsement of that writ follows thus—“I, John Streeche, sheriff,” &c.

And thereupon the prior represented by John de Fitelton his attorney, and Richard Seymor in person being there present, the King and lords in parliament, on the petition of the prior, instructed Robert Tresilian, chief justice, to produce before parliament the record and process, &c., which were in his possession. This he did, the record being as follows: “Pleas, &c.” This record and process having been read and heard, Richard [Seymor] sought that the prior should assign and declare what errors there were in them. Upon which the prior, by his attorney pointed out the following errors, viz.: Firstly that Richard Seymor in the name of Richard de Sancto Mauro, knight, brought a writ of right dated Oct. 14th, 6 Ric. II., against the prior in the name of Francis, prior of Montacute, concerning the manor of Tyntenhull returnable before the justices of the bench on the morrow of Martinmas in that year, to which writ Richard Seymor then appeared, and the prior was essoined and had by his essoin until three weeks next following Easter day as is plainly shown by the tenors of the said writ of right and enrolment of essoin sent before the King by his command and enrolled in the said record, and that the writ of scire facias was sought while the writ of right was pending, the latter being of a higher nature, and sought judgment on the writ of scire facias, and in that it was decreed that the prior should further answer to the writ of scire facias, the aforesaid exception notwithstanding, whereas, if it had been adjudicated rightly and in a lawful manner, the writ of scire facias ought to have been quashed. There was an error.

Secondly that King Edward, grandfather of the present King, on occasion of a war with France had caused to be seized into his own hands all the possessions of alien priories in the power of France, but situated in England, so long as the war should last, and among others the priory of Montacute. And King Edward afterwards by letters patent dated at Westminster, Nov. 10th, in the 45th year of his reign, which the prior produced in court, and which are inserted in the record, committed to the prior the custody of the priory and all its possessions, to hold from the feast of St. Michael last past, as long as they should remain in the King's hand from the before-mentioned cause; paying yearly to the King 120*l.*, saving expressly to the King the knights' fees and advowsons of churches belonging to the priory, and that the present King, on account of the said reservation of the knights' fees and advowsons, presented John Stone to the church of Tyntenhull, and therefore the prior said he could not answer without the King, and sought aid of the King, and in this matter it was decreed that the prior should answer further without this aid. This was an error.

Moreover where the plea concerning the writ of scire facias was recorded and enrolled as a record in Michaelmas term, in the seventh year of the present King's reign and not before, and the writ of the King was committed to the sheriff of Somerset as to causing jurors to appear before the King in the quinzaine of St. Michael, to form a jury between the parties concerning the issue of the said plea, the date of this writ being July 11th, in the seventh year of the present King's reign, which is long before the term of St. Michael, and that the writ of venire facias is a judicial writ, and by right and the law of the land ought to have been warranted by a record enrolled before the issue of this writ, and whereas it could not be warranted by the said record enrolled in Michaelmas term, nay, it issued without a warrant, and yet was returned by the sheriff with the names of the jurors on the said 15th, and the process was continued until by the verdict (juratam) taken and by the judgment returned in this matter, the prior lost the manor.

Wherefore inasmuch as the verdict was taken per retornum by virtue of the said writ of venire facias, which could not be warranted by the said record as aforesaid, and in that it was decreed that Richard [Seymor] should have execution of the manor on the process, there was an error, because if the matter had been rightly and lawfully adjudicated, it ought to have been decreed that the whole process on the said writ of scire facias should have been discontinued, or otherwise that the parties should have been compelled by the law of the land to plead de novo

Wherefore the prior by his attorney, on account of these and other errors contained in the record and process, seeks that the judgment be revoked and annulled as being erroneous, and that he be restored to possession of the manor, with the revenues received from it in the meantime.

Richard Seymor, in person, in answer to these three articles assigned as errors, denies that they are so ; for with regard to the first, viz., that the writ of scire facias was obtained while the writ of right was pending, and that he appeared to this writ, he says that there is no word in the record proving that he ever appeared to the writ of right, and that the writ of scire facias was a judicial writ for obtaining execution of a certain fine, which is a judgment final in its nature, executory within a year without answer of the party, and after a year by writ of scire facias ; which being so, the appearing to or obtaining a writ, while another writ is pending, ought not to quash an executory writ, and therefore there is no error in that article.

Also with regard to the second alleged error, that King Edward had committed the priory of Montacute, which had been seized into his hands on occasion of war with France, to the said prior for a certain annual rent, reserving to himself the knights' fees and advowsons of churches, and that the prior on that pretext was not able to answer without aid of the King, and yet it was decided that the prior should answer without that aid, he says, that it is proved by the record that King Edward gave and granted the patronage and also the custody and rent of the priory, in time of peace and war, to William late earl of Salisbury and his heirs for ever, and that William de Montacute the present earl of Salisbury, son and heir of the said late earl prosecuted in the King's Chancery and had delivery of the custody and rent of the priory without any payment to the King, by virtue of the gift and grant aforesaid. And this delivery is a full revocation of the letters patent made to the prior, and that writs were thereupon issued to the treasurer and barons of the Exchequer for exonerating the prior from the said rent, and other writs to the prior that he should be responsible to the present earl and not to the King for the said custody and rent, and so there is no reason why aid should be granted in that matter. Moreover he says that the said record nowhere mentions that the manor of Tyntenhull is parcel of the said priory, and so the prior lost and could lose nothing on the pretext of the removal of this aid, which was not material and intended only to cause delay ; but by the plea to right and to action, the prior by the issue of the trial by jury lost the manor, on which no error is assigned or alleged, and so there is no error in that article.

And as to the third article, the alleged error that the writ of venire facias was sought before issue was joined, he says that it is clearly proved by the record that the parties pleaded to the issue of the trial by jury on the day after the feast of St. John Baptist, which was in June, and the said writ bears date the following July ; therefore there is no error in that or any other article of the record and process, and he seeks that the judgment returned in his favour be affirmed.

And on this, having heard the reasons, allegations and answers in this matter, and seen and examined the record and process, inasmuch as the writ of scire facias was obtained while the writ of right was pending, and the writ of right was pending after the day on which the writ of scire facias was returnable and returned, to which writ of right, as is plainly shown by the tenor of the record pleaded on the writ of right before the justices of the bench and sent before the justices of the King's Bench, Richard [Seymor] appeared, in which case the writ of scire facias ought, by the law of the land, to have been quashed ; therefore, inasmuch as the justices decreed that the writ of scire facias was good, and that the prior should made further answer, it seems to the court in parliament that they have erred.

Moreover where the prior in his plea sought aid of the King, and the justices decreed that the prior should answer further without the said aid, it appears to the court in parliament that here also they have erred.

Therefore, on account of these errors, it is decreed that the said judgment be revoked, quashed, and entirely annulled as being erroneous, and that the prior have full restitution of the manor with its appurtenances, and the revenues received from the manor from the time when judgment was erroneously given in Richard Seymor's favour. And the sheriff of Somerset was instructed to cause full restitution and seisin of the manor to be made to the prior according to this judgment, and to make enquiry concerning the revenues received therefrom in the meantime, and to certify thereto in Chancery, and when this certificate has been made the prior to have the sheriff's writ for levying and restoring these revenues to himself.

The King's chancellor was also in full parliament, instructed that both in the matter of seisin and restitution of the manor to the prior, and of levying to the use of the prior the revenues, in whatever way received, of that manor since the erroneous judgment in Richard Seymor's favour, and in all singular the premises decreed in the same parliament he cause and demand full execution according to the law and custom of the realm of England.

It is not however the King's intention that Richard Seymor may not prosecute de novo by writ of right or scire facias in this matter, should it appear to him expedient.

On Tuesday, Jan 25th in the 4th year, &c., the prior of Montacute in the county of Somerset, by citation, &c., appeared before the King's Council by his attorney, who showed to the council that the prior and his priory were held and declared exempt by the King in his last parliament ; praying therefore to the council that the said exemption remain in force according to the effect of the same declaration. And because the council well remembered the said exemption declared in parliament, the attorney was licensed to retire, and so he was from thence dismissed from the said council.

Notes on the Bruton Cartulary.

- B 1. This charter is recited in Patent Rolls 20 Edw. III. part 2, m. 24, and 36 Edw. III. part 2, m. 22. It is also printed in Dugdale's Monasticon, vol. vi. p. 335, and in the Proceedings of the Somersetshire Archaeological and Natural History Society, vol. ix. p. 75. Being addressed to Robert, bishop of Bath, the date must be between 1135 and 1166, and it appears from No. 376 that it cannot be anterior to 1142. William de Mohun is said by the author of the Gesta Stephani to have been created Earl of Dorset, but as Somerset and Dorset were often associated, this mistake is easily explicable. He was the second of that name in England. (See Maxwell Lyte's Dunster and its Lords, p. 6.) The four clerks, Henry, Ivan, Peter and Richard seem to have been his younger sons. (Cf. B 4, 230.)
- B 3. This is a grant to the church of Bruton, made apparently before the foundation of the priory, by Thierry de Mesnil Mauger, who took his name from a place near Auge. William the Sheriff may possibly be the first William de Mohun, who was sheriff of Somerset at the time of the Domesday Survey, 1086.
- B 4. This charter, like No. 1, belongs to the period between 1142 and 1166, but it is somewhat later in date, William de Mohun, Earl of Somerset, being dead. William son of Durandus, was doubtless a son of Durandus de Mohun who is mentioned in a writ of Henry I, given in the cartulary of Bath Priory, and was probably identical with Durandus, a tenant under William de Mohun at the time of the Domesday Survey, and with Durandus Dapifer, a witness to the charter of foundation of the priory of Dunster. Ivan son of the Earl was brother of the grantor, the third William de Mohun. (Cf. Nos. 1, 230.)
- B 5. This charter is printed in Proceedings of the Somersetshire Archaeological and Natural History Society, vol. ix, p. 74. The grantor was the fourth William de Mohun, and the date must consequently be between 1177 and 1194. (See Maxwell Lyte's Dunster and its Lords, pp. 7, 8.) Richard de Mohun was probably the grantor's uncle. (Cf. B 1.)
- B 6. This charter also belongs to the period between 1177 and 1194.
- B 7. This charter is recited in Patent Rolls, 20 Edw. III, part 2, m. 24, and 36 Edw. III, part 2, m. 22, as part of No. 87, but the Christian name of the last witness is there given as Gilbert. It also belongs to the period between 1177 and 1194.

- B 8 This charter is also recited in Patent Rolls, 20 Edw. III, part 2, m. 24, and 36 Edw. III, part 2, m. 22. If the list of Deans of Wells given by Le Neve is correct, the date must be 1237. The founder's heirs were by common law the guardians of the temporalities of a religious house during any vacancy of the headship.
- B 9. This charter is transcribed also in a roll made by order of Bishop Jocelin which gives the names of further witnesses. (See No. 385.)
- B 11. The lords of Tancarville were hereditary chamberlains of Normandy. (Stapleton's Rotuli Scaccarii Normannie.)
- B 12. This charter belongs to the period between 1135 and 1166.
- B 14. Remewarde should probably be Reinewarde.
- B 16. This charter is transcribed also in a roll made by order of Bishop Jocelin, but the name of the last witness is there given differently. (See No 386.) It belongs to the period between 1135 and 1166.
- B 19b. William Malet was sheriff from Christmas, 1209, to 22 November, 1212.
- B 20. Cogley Wood is near Bruton. Roger de Forde was sheriff from 20 November, 1221, to 1 February, 1223.
- B 26. Cf. Green's Pedes Finium for Somerset, p. 30.
- B 27. Cf. No. 94B.
- B 31. John Russell was sheriff from February, 1223, to December of the same year.
- B 34. Cf. Green's Pedes Finium for Somerset, p. 22.
- B 37. Cf. Green's Pedes Finium for Somerset, p. 225.
- B 43. Walkelin de Bonham is mentioned in Green's Pedes Finium, p. 50.
- B 44. The name given as Dicheneston should probably be read Dichenescov, the letters 't' and 'c' and the letters 'n' and 'u,' being practically alike in many medieval MSS. Discove is called Digenescova in Domesday Book. Santemareis may for the same reason be read Sautemareis.
- B 45. See preceding note.
- B 51. This charter is transcribed also in a roll made by order of Bishop Jocelin. (See B 387.) It belongs to the period between 1146 and 1160.
- B 52. This charter belongs to the period between 1142 and 1166. As Hugh the archdeacon, and Alfred, canon of Wells, are not stated elsewhere to have been sons of William de Mohun, Earl of Somerset, it may be conjectured that the scribe has omitted an 'et' before 'filii predicti comitis.'
- B 54. This charter also belongs to the period between 1142 and 1166.
- B 56. This charter also belongs to the period between 1142 and 1166.
- B 57. This charter is transcribed also in a roll made by order of Bishop Jocelin. It is probably a charter of Archbishop Theobald. (See note on B 388.) Dicheneston should be read Dichenescov. (See note on B 44.)

- B 58. This is a charter of the first Reginald de Mohun, and the date must consequently be between 1204 and 1213. (See Maxwell Lyte's Dunster and its Lords, p. 8.) Kettenor is the old name of Culbone. In Patent Roll 20 Edw. III, part 2, m. 24, and again 36 Edw. III, part 2, m. 22, there is a recital of an almost identical charter, in which, however, no mention is made of the church of Liun, the mills of Winton, or the rent from Maisuns, while Colebere is rightly called Totebere, and the church of Mynnehefd (Minehead) is substituted for the mill there. The witnesses are practically identical also, though Robert son of Robert is not mentioned. The minor discrepancies may be due to errors, on the part either of the Bruton scribe or the Chancery clerk, or of both, but the omission of the Norman property from one of the two charters, which were doubtless issued simultaneously, has a distinct political significance. In 1203, while Reginald de Mohun was still a minor, the King desired him to exchange his lands at Lyon near Caen for lands in England, and on the separation of Normandy from England, he ceased to have any direct interest in the Norman possessions of his ancestors.
- B 64. Richard de Mohun was one of the four sons of the Earl of Somerset who are described as clerks in B 1.
- B 66. This charter is recited in Patent Rolls 20 Edw. III, part 2, m. 24, and 36 Edw. III, part 2, m. 22. The grantor was the third William de Mohun. Ivan de Mohun was his brother, and William son of Durand, was his cousin. (See B 1, 4, 233.)
- B 67. This charter belongs to the period between 1142 and 1166. The grantor was apparently the third William de Mohun.
- B 69. This charter also belongs to the period between 1142 and 1166. The grantor was apparently the third William de Mohun, as the witnesses are identical with those to B 66.
- B 71. This is a charter of the third William de Mohun, Ivan de Mohun, who was a son of the Earl of Somerset (see Nos. 1, 4, 230), being described as the grantor's brother. The name of his wife, who survived him and his son, is given as Godehold in the Placitorum Abbreviatio, p. 60.
- B 72. The occurrence of Hugh de Meriet among the witnesses seems to show that this charter belongs to the period preceding 1236.
- B 73. This is a charter of the fourth William de Mohun, and belongs to the period between 1177 and 1194. Richard de Mohun was his uncle.
- B 74. This charter belongs to the period between 1206 and 1242. Ferschet is near Barrow in Charlton.
- B 75. This is a charter of the third William de Mohun relating to property in Normandy. Henry de Mohun his brother was one of the witnesses to B 1. Richard de Mohun, also a clerk, was another brother.
- B 76. Dicheneston should be read Dichenescov. (See note on B 44.)

- B 77. Thomas de Cirencestre was sheriff from 10 November, 1228, to 11 July, 1232, and again from 1233 to 1236.
- B 80. The date of this charter appears to be about 1280.
- B 83. Ivo was dean of Wells from 1139 to 1159.
- B 84. This charter is enrolled on Charter Roll, 32 Hen. III, but without Paulinus Peyure as a witness, and with an additional witness, William de Bello-monte.
- B 85. This charter is enrolled on Charter Roll, 36 Hen. III, m. 4.
- B 87. This charter is enrolled on Patent Rolls, 20 Edw. III, pt. 2, m. 24, and 36 Edw. III, part 2, m. 22. The charters recited in it are those numbered B 1, B 7, and B 8. The Patent Rolls also recite a second charter of the same John de Mohun of the same date, reciting and confirming the charter numbered B 66 in this volume, and a third charter of the same person and the same date reciting and confirming a charter of Reginald de Mohun of which some account is given in the note on B 58.
- B 89. Listhulle is Lusty.
- B 90. The original of this is in the Public Record Office, Inquisitiones post mortem, 12 Ric. II, No. 25.
- B 94b. Cf. B 27.
- B 96. This grant appears to have failed, probably for want of the overlord's assent.
- B 97. Alina, wife of Jordan de Clinton, was one of the daughters and heirs of Gerard de Brocton. (Green's Pedes Finium, p. 64, A.D. 1227.)
- B 98. Sibyl, wife of Robert de Baggedrep, was another of the daughters and heirs of Gerard de Brocton. (Green's Pedes Finium, pp. 64, 86.)
- B 99. See note on B 97.
- B 102. This charter belongs to the period between 1142 and 1166.
- B 103. Dicheneston should be read Dichenescov. (See note on B 44.) Ralph, dean of Gerlington, was probably the parson of Yarlington and dean of Cary deanery. This charter apparently belongs to the period between 1166 and 1174. (See B 105.)
- B 106. This charter belongs to the period between 1174 and 1191.
- B 107. The date of this charter is about 1217.
- B 113. Cf. Green's Pedes Finium for Somerset, p. 84.
- B 114. This charter is anterior to 1206.
- B 116. This charter belongs to the period between 1174 and 1191.
- B 117. This charter probably belongs to the episcopate of the earlier bishop Robert, 1142-1166.

- B 119. Henngrave is Henley grove.
- B 125. This charter belongs to the period between 1174 and 1184.
- B 128. This charter belongs to the period between 1174 and 1191. David, parson of Bleadon, was dean of the deanery of Axbridge.
- B 130. Certeles or Cerceles, is Churchill in Banwell.
- B 133. Rolveston is Rolston in Banwell.
- B 134. This charter belongs to the period between 1174 and 1191. Wringmarsh was the level drained by the Wring, now called the Yeo. The chapel was probably that of Puxton.
- B 136b. This charter belongs to the period between 1156 and 1166.
- B 137 and 138. These charters belong to the period between 1174 and 1191.
- B 139 and 140. These charters belong to the period between 1192 and 1205.
- B 141. This may perhaps mark the creation of the parish of Rodney Stoke.
- B 144. This charter belongs to the later part of the year 1181 or the earlier part of 1182.
- B 148. Walter de Maine (de Meduana) died between 1186 and 1190. His wife, Cicely, who witnesses this charter, was Countess of Hereford.
- B 149. The occurrence of Sir Hugh de Meriet among the witnesses seems to show that this charter belongs to the period between 1229 and 1236, perhaps to 1232 or 1233, as Thomas de Cirencestre is not styled sheriff.
- B 153. Compton is Compton Durville in South Petherton.
- B 164. Wigbere is Wigborough.
- B 165. This agreement probably belongs to the year 1206 or 1207. John Hostiarus is mentioned in Domesday Book as holding land at Wigborough which is there called Winchinberia.
- B 168. This document belongs to the year 1240 or 1241.
- B 171. Nicholas de Meriet died in or before 1229. (Greenfield's paper on Meriet in Proceedings of the Somersetshire Archaeological Society, vol. xxviii.) For date see B 174.
- B 172. Archdeacon is probably an error for Bishop, as the Archdeacon of Bath had no official connection with Lopen. Spart is probably Sparkford.
- B 173. Thomas de Cirencestre was sheriff from 10 November, 1228, to 11 July, 1232, and again from 1233 to 1236.
- B 174. This document belongs to the year 1208 or 1209.
- B 177. The succeeding document seems to show that this charter belongs to about 1221. William was abbot of Glastonbury from 1218 to 1223.
- B 179. This ordinance belongs to the period between 1279 and 1292.

- B 180-182. These three charters belong to the period between 1142 and 1166.
- B 183. This charter belongs to the period between 1198 and 1205.
- B 184. Cf. Green's Pedes Finium for Somerset, p. 24.
- B 188. Isabella, late the wife of William Fitz Adam, is mentioned in the Fine Roll. A.D. 1252.
- B 191. Geoffrey de Mandeville died in or before 1269. (See Batten's Historical Notes, South Somerset, p. 126.)
- B 193. Reginald de Mohun died in 1257. (See Maxwell Lyte's Dunster and its Lords.)
- B 194. The date of this charter is somewhere about 1260.
- B 195. Sir Walter de Burges was sheriff from 5 October, 1257, to 23 October, 1258.
- B 201. This charter belongs to the period between 1274 and 1298.
- B 202. See note on B 188.
- B 205. The succeeding document shows that this charter was granted before 1238.
- B 210. See note on B 188.
- B 215. The succeeding document shows that the date is probably 1276.
- B 217. Cf. Green's Pedes Finium for Somerset, p. 239.
- B 221. This is a charter of William de Mohun, the third of that name. For W. Durandi see note on B 4. Codecombe is Cutcombe.
- B 223. This charter appears to belong to the period between 1192 and 1196.
- B 224. This appears to be a charter of William de Mohun, the fourth of that name. See No. 225.
- B 225. John appears to have been elected abbot of Ford in 1190, and as William de Mohun, the fourth of that name died in or before 1194, the date of this charter is fixed within a few years.
- B 226. This charter appears to belong to the period between 1192 and 1196.
- B 227. This charter belongs to the year 1221.
- B 230. This charter belongs to the period between 1142 and 1166. Earl William was obviously William de Mohun, the second of that name, Earl of Somerset. The second witness was William de Mohun, the third of that name. The third, fourth and fifth witnesses were younger sons who are described as clerks in B 1.
- B 235. This document belongs to the year 1238.
- B 237. This is a charter of Reginald de Mohun, the second of that name. No 239 seems to show that it belongs to the year 1237.
- B 239. This document belongs to the year 1237.

- B 240. This document belongs to the period between 1174 and 1191.
- B 241. This document belongs to the period between 1237, the date of the impropriation of the church of Minehead by the prior and convent of Bruton, and 1242, the date of the death of Bishop Jocelin. Reginald de Mohun was the second of that name.
- B 248. Mary was abbess of St. Edward's, Shaftesbury, in the reign of Richard I. (Dugdale's Monasticon, vol. ii. p. 482. See also No. 247.)
- B 249. The succeeding confirmation shows that this document was executed in, or shortly before, 1219.
- B 252. This document belongs to the period between 1218 and 1222.
- B 253. The Knights Templars had a house at Combe, which is now called Templecombe.
- B 254. See note on B 248.
- B 259. The date of this document is 1294.
- B 260. The date of this document is 1289.
- B 263 and 264. These charters belong to the period between 1174 and 1191.
- B 272. This charter belongs to the period between 1211 and 1252. (See Mr. Batten's paper on the Barony of Beauchamp in Proceedings of the Somersetshire Archaeological Society, vol. xxxvi.)
- B 273. This charter belongs to the period between 1252 and 1266. (See Mr. Batten's paper, as above.)
- B 280. This early fine is not given in Green's Pedes Finium.
- B 281. The date of this bull is 1243. It is not entered in the Papal Regesta.
- B 283. This bull belongs to the year 1197.
- B 290. William, Earl of Gloucester, died in 1183. His relict, the Countess Hawise, died in 1197.
- B 291. This document belongs to the period between 1225 and 1230.
- B 293. This document belongs to the year 1299.
- B 297. Roger de Forde was sheriff from 20 November, 1221, to 1 February, 1223.
- B 311. Moyon, the original home of the Mohun family, is near St. Lo in Normandy. Horsleigh is in Gloucestershire.
- B 321. This charter is entered on Charter Roll 45 Hen. III., m. 2.
- B 324. This charter belongs either to the year 1155 or to the year 1158. (Cf. Eyton's Court of Henry II, pp. 11, 35.)
- B 325. This charter is recited in Patent Roll, 11 Ric. II., part 1, m. 6, with some variations in the spelling of names given in No. 324.
- B 329. This charter belongs to the period between 1088 and 1095.

- B 331. This charter belongs to the period between 1199 and 1220.
- B 337. This charter apparently belongs to the period between 1150 and 1176. Queen Adelicia, relict of Henry I, died in 1151. Jocelin was her half-brother and the ancestor of the Percy family.
- B 340. This charter belongs to the period between 1148 and 1169.
- B 342. This is a charter of the second bishop Seffride, of Chichester, and it must belong to the period between 1180 and 1194, as Peter, abbot of Coggeshall, died in the latter year.
- B 352. This charter belongs to the period between 1221 and 1224.
- B 354. This charter belongs to the period between 1268 and 1272.
- B 374. William de Montacute was created Earl of Salisbury in 1337, so that there appears to be an error here.
- B 381. Reginald, bishop of Bath is here called Italicus from the place of his education. Herbert of Bosham calls him "natione Anglus, sed sicut educatione et cognomento Lombardus." Materials for the History of Thomas Becket (ed. Robertson), vol. iii. p. 524.
- B 383. Cf. Green's Pedes Finium for Somerset, p. 2.
- B 384. This document belongs to the period between 1206 and 1242. The original appears from M. D'Anisy's transcript to be a roll containing copies of the documents here numbered 385, 386, 387 and 388.
- B 385. Cf. B 9.
- B 386. Cf. B 16.
- B 387. Cf. B 51.
- B 388. Cf. B 57. The title "legate of the apostolic see" was generally used by Archbishop Theobald, and it is not unlikely that the scribe at Bruton made an error in writing Thomas for T.
- B 389. The original transcribed by M. D'Anisy was in a private collection.
- B 390. This occurs in the Troarn Cartulary, fol. 22.
- B 391. This occurs in the Troarn Cartulary, fol. 22. It may belong to the year 1159. (See Eyton's Court of Henry II., p. 46.)
- B 392. This occurs in the Troarn Cartulary, fol. 23. It may belong to the year 1186. (See Eyton.)
- B 393. This occurs in the Troarn Cartulary, fol. 20.
- B 394. This occurs in the Troarn Cartulary, fol. 27. It may probably be assigned to William de Mohun, the fourth of that name, and consequently to the period between 1177 and 1194. Five of the witnesses are also witnesses to B 224.
- B 395 and 396. These occur in the Troarn Cartulary, fol. 21. Philip was bishop of Bayeux from 1142 to 1164, and so they may probably be assigned to William de Mohun, the third of that name.

- B 397. This occurs in the Troarn Cartulary, fol. 21. It is a charter of William de Mohun, the third of that name. Since the text of this volume was printed, it has been ascertained that "ewie" means "waters." In a transcript by M. Deville at the Public Record Office, there is mention "allectium suorum et piscium de ewiis suis de Longolio," a place on the river near Dieppe.
- B 398. This occurs in the Troarn Cartulary, fol. 21. It belongs to the period between 1142 and 1164.
- B 399-401. These occur in the Troarn Cartulary, fols. 22, 23. They belong to the period between 1142 and 1164. Richard de Mohun was one of the younger sons of William de Mohun, the earl, the second of that name. See Nos. 1, 230.
- B 402 and 403. These occur in the Troarn Cartulary, fol. 23. "Such land as subjected the holder to service in the host with horse and arms at his own expense bore in Normandy the designation of a fief d'haubert, i.e. feodum lorica." (Stapleton's Rolls of the Norman Exchequer, vol. ii. p. ix.) Ilbanus de Moyon was doubtless identical with Juwan, Juvan, or Iwan, one of the four younger sons of William de Mohun, the earl, the second of that name. See B 1, 4, 230. B 405 gives some indication of the date.
- B 404. This occurs in the Troarn Cartulary, fol. 23.
- B 405. This occurs in the Troarn Cartulary, fol. 26. It belongs to the period between 1142 and 1164.
- B 406. This occurs in the Troarn Cartulary, fol. 22. It belongs to the period between 1164 and 1205.
- B 407 and 408. These occur in the Troarn Cartulary, fol. 22. They belong to the period between 1164 and 1205.
- B 409. The original transcribed by M. D'Anisy was in a private collection. William was bishop-elect of Coutances.
- B 410-412. These occur in the Troarn Cartulary, fol. 39.
- B 413. This occurs in the Troarn Cartulary, fol. 39. The date of the papal commission is 1191.
- B 414. The original transcribed by M. D'Anisy was in a private collection.
- B 415. This occurs in the Troarn Cartulary, fol. 37. It belongs to the period between 1202 and 1208.
- B 416. This occurs in the Troarn Cartulary, fol. 37.
- B 417. This occurs in the Troarn Cartulary, fol. 24.
- B 418. This occurs in the Troarn Cartulary, fol. 23.
- B 419 and 420. These occur in the Troarn Cartulary, fol. 30.

- B 421. The original is in the archives of St. Lo. (Proceedings of the Somersetshire Archaeological Society, vol. xix. p. 96.) It is transcribed in the Troarn Cartulary, fol. 37. William de Mohun was almost certainly the fourth of that name as that William mentions his brother Thomas in No. 394, and the document appears to belong to the period between 1177 and 1194. No bishop of Coutances named Hugh is mentioned in the ordinary lists at that time. Bishop Richard, who was elected in 1151, died in 1180. (Hoveden, ed. Stubbs, vol. ii. p. 252.) William, who is described as bishop-elect in 1184, in No. 409, occupied the see until 1202. It is, however, remarkable that in a treaty between Philip, King of France, and John, Count of Mortain, concluded at Paris in 1193, there is a special clause concerning a certain Hugh, bishop of Coutances. (Rymer's Fœdera, Record edition, vol. i. p. 57.) This seems to point to the existence of two rival claimants of the see.
- B 422. The original is in the archives of St. Lo. (Proceedings, as above, p. 97.) It is transcribed in the Troarn Cartulary, fol. 37. See preceding note.
- B 423. The original is in the archives of St. Lo. (Proceedings, as above.) It is transcribed in the Troarn Cartulary, fol. 37. The document which it confirms appears to have been about thirty years old.
- B 424. The original is in the archives of St. Lo. (Proceedings, as above.) Henry de Mohun may have been a younger son of the fourth William de Mohun of Dunster, and the inheritor of his French possessions on the separation of Normandy from England.
- B 425. The original is in the archives of St. Lo. (Proceedings, as above.) It is transcribed in the Troarn Cartulary, fol. 30.
- B 426. This occurs in the Troarn Cartulary, fol. 24.
- B 427-430. The originals are in the archives of St. Lo. (Proceedings, as above.) They are transcribed in the Troarn Cartulary, fols. 32 and 30.
- B 431 and 432. These occur in the Troarn Cartulary, fols. 31, 32.
- B 433. The original is in the archives of St. Lo. (Proceedings, as above.) It is transcribed in the Troarn Cartulary, fol. 26.
- B 434-448. These occur in the Troarn Cartulary, fols. 26, 34, 19, 20, 27, 31, 34, 37, 24, 30, 28, 38. The dean "de Podiis" in B 444 was the dean of Les Pieux in the Cotentin.

Notes on the Montacute Cartulary.

- M 1. This charter is printed in Dugdale's Monasticon, vol. v. p. 165. It belongs to the period between 1091 and 1106, when the Count of Mortain was taken prisoner at the battle of Tinchebrai. Some of the witnesses were the real donors of the lands specified, as appears by M 9.
- M 2. This charter is recited in Cartæ Antiquæ FF., and in Patent Roll, 1 Hen. IV. part 5 m. 11. It is also printed in Dugdale's Monasticon, vol. v. p. 166. It belongs to the period between 1100 and 1118.
- M 3. This charter is recited in Cartæ Antiquæ FF., and in Patent Roll, 1 Hen. IV. part 5, m. 11. It belongs to the period between 1107 and 1118.
- M 4. This charter also belongs to the period between 1107 and 1122.
- M 5. This charter belongs to the period between 1135 and 1137.
- M 6. This charter also belongs to the period between 1135 and 1137. "Richard the chancellor" is probably an error for "Richard the chamberlain," can' being misread canc'. See M 7.
- M 7. This charter belongs to the period between 1135 and 1145.
- M 8. This charter is recited in Cartæ Antiquæ FF., and in Patent Roll, 1 Hen. IV. part 5. m. 11. It is also printed in Dugdale's Monasticon, vol. v. p. 166. It belongs to the period between 1152 and 1158. Mr. Eyton ascribes it to 1155. (Court of Henry II. p. 7.)
- M 9. This charter is recited in Charter Roll, 54 Hen. III. m. 10. It is also printed in Dugdale's Monasticon, vol. v. p. 166. It appears to be of the same date as the preceding.
- M 10. This charter is recited in Patent Roll, 1 Hen. IV. part 5. m. 11. It belongs to the period between 1174 and 1184.
- M 11. This charter belongs to the year 1156 or 1157.
- M 12. This charter is recited in Charter Roll, 54 Hen. III. m. 9. It belongs probably to the year 1155 or 1157. (See Eyton's Court of Henry II.)
- M 13. This charter belongs to the period between 1189 and 1199.
- M 16. This charter is printed in Rotuli Chartarum, p. 23.
- M 19 and 20. These are in reality one charter of the 11th year of Henry III, which is recited in Cartæ Antiquæ FF.
- M 21. This charter is entered in Charter Roll, 54 Hen. III. m. 10.
- M 22. This charter is entered in Charter Roll, 30 Hen. III. m. 2.

- M 23. This charter is entered in Charter Roll, 37 Hen. III. m. 8.
- M 24. This charter is entered in Charter Roll, 53 Hen. III. m. 13, but the time appointed for the fair is there given as the eve, day, and morrow of the feast of St. Matthew, which falls on the 21st of September.
- M 25-29. These are in reality one charter of the 30th year of Edward I., which is recited in Patent Roll, 1 Henry IV. part 5, m. 11.
- M 38. This charter belongs to the year 1179. Mr. Batten antedates it by a few years. (Historical Notes, South Somerset, p. 40.)
- M 39. This charter appears to belong to the earlier part of the reign of Henry III.
- M 40. This charter appears to belong to the later part of the reign of Henry III.
- M 42. This charter appears to belong to the later part of the twelfth century. See Batten's Historical Notes, South Somerset, pp. 118, 119.
- M 43. According to the pedigree given by Mr. Batten, Stephen de Mandeville and Roger his son were not lineal ancestors of Sir John de Mandeville.
- M 47. Eudo Dapifer died in 1120. (Morant's History of Essex, vol. i. p. 141. Dugdale's Monasticon.)
- M 48. Hamo de St. Clare was successor to Eudo Dapifer at Colchester.
- M 49 and 50. These charters appear to belong to the earlier part of the reign of Henry III. William son of Henry, was sheriff from 1226 to 1228.
- M 51. Robert de St. Clare occurs in the year 1262, in M 33. See also M 98. Pharamund de Bolonia is mentioned in the Somerset Assize Roll (756) of 8 Edw. I.
- M 53. William Briwere, or Brewer, whose name is preserved at Ile Brewers, died in 1226. (Dictionary of National Biography, vol. vi. p. 297.) Heriet and Pateshull were judges like himself. (Foss.)
- M 54. This charter, which seems to date the preceding, belongs to the period between 1192 and 1205.
- M 56. Roger de Mortimer died in 1282. His wife Matilda was one of the daughters and coheirs of William de Braose. John de Hastings and William de la Zouche were her great-nephews, being grandsons of her sister Eva, who married William de Cantilupe. Their claim to Odcombe was derived through the above-mentioned William de Braose, whose mother was one of the daughters and coheirs of William Briwere.
- M 57. Edmund de Mortimer was son of Matilda and he succeeded to her estate (Calendarium Genealogicum).
- M 58. The Launvaleys were probably of Breton extraction.
- M 91. Robert de Beauchamp, who is mentioned in this as alive, appears to have died before 1196. (Proceedings of the Somersetshire Archaeological Society vol. xxxvi. p. 23.)

- M 92. This charter is apparently almost of the same date as the preceding.
- M 95. This charter belongs to the period between 1269 and 1284. One William de Mohun died in 1265, and another, his nephew, in 1281. (Maxwell Lyte's Dunster and its Lords.)
- M 102. Mark was prior of Montacute in 1246. See M 22.
- M 107. Roger de la Forde was sheriff from November, 1221, to February, 1223.
- M 108. Wandregesil de Curcelles lived in the reigns of Richard I and John.
- M 109. Turstin was sheriff of Hampshire from Michaelmas, 1155, and possibly earlier, to March, 1159. One of John de Port's charters is printed in Dugdale's Monasticon, vol. vi. p. 1014. Sireburne is West Sherborne near Basingstoke.
- M 110. Adam de Port was outlawed in 1172. He lived until near the end of the reign of John. (See Gesta Regis Henrici Secundi, ed. Stubbs, vol. i. p. 35.)
- M 111. William de St. John lived in the early part of the reign of Henry III.
- M 113. William de Cantelupe, son of Walter, died in 1239. (Batten's Historical Notes, South Somerset, p. 37.)
- M 114. William de Cantelupe the younger died in 1251. (Batten, as above.)
- M 116 and 117. These charters belong to the latter part of the twelfth century.
- M 118. It appears from No. 9 that Robert de Lincoln was son of Alfred de Lincoln, who may perhaps be identified with a person of that name who was a tenant in chief in Bedfordshire at the time of the Domesday Survey, 1086. At Worth, Langton (Herring), Winterborne, Chesilborneford and Watercombe alike, Robert de Lincoln had succeeded to the over-lordship which at the time of the Domesday Survey belonged to the wife of Hugh son of Grip. Bardolph Bussell's charter is given later in the Cartulary, M 124.
- M 121. Scheling was the tenant in chief of Acford, or Ockford, at the time of the Domesday Survey, 1086. Robert Escheling is mentioned in the Pipe Roll of 22 Henry II.
- M 124. Roger Boissell was under tenant of Ceoselburna at the time of the Domesday Survey, 1086. (Exon Domesday, p. 47.) That Bardolph's surname was also Bussell appears clearly from M 119 and 126. It is probable that he gave his name to Bardolfeston, which, like Chesilborneford, is now in the parish of Piddletown. Robert de Mustiers was doubtless identical with Robert de Monasteriis, a witness to M 126.
- M 125. The grantor of this charter may have been a grand-daughter of Gervase Bussell. Samson Roch, her father, held half a knight's fee in Dorsetshire under Alfred de Lincoln, in 1166. (Liber Niger Saccarii.)
- M 126. Just as Bardolph Bussell is called in the rubric of M 124 Bardolph de Chiselburneford, so his brother Gervase Bussell, who is a witness to that charter, is here called Gervase de Watercombe from the name of his seat in the parish of Warmwell.

- M 128. Robert, Count of Meulan, died in 1118.
- M 129. As this charter is directed to the person named in the preceding, it is probably not much later in date. The grant of the houses at Wareham by the Count of Meulan is mentioned in M 9.
- M 130. Nichole is the old French form of Lincoln. William was prior of Montacute in 1159. (See the List of Priors in this volume.)
- M 131. Alfred de Lincoln and Albreda his wife were alive in 1178. (See M 120.)
- M 132. This charter belongs to the period between 1107 and 1122.
- M 133. This charter apparently belongs to the period between 1163 and 1173, when Richard, archdeacon of Poitiers, a constant attendant on the King, was elected Bishop of Winchester.
- M 134. This charter cannot be later than 1158, as it is mentioned in M 9.
- M 135. This charter probably belongs to the early part of the reign of Henry III. (Compare the witnesses to M 35, 52, and 107.)
- M 136. There were several Baldwins, Earls of Devon. William de Lestra, doubtless an ancestor of Richard, was a tenant under the Count of Mortain at the time of the Domesday Survey, 1086, and the grantor to Montacute Priory of land at Baresfeld. (See M 9.)
- M 137. See M 109-111.
- M 138 and 139. These charters appear to belong to the later part of the twelfth century. Stephen occurs as prior of Taunton in 1159, 1174 and 1189. (Proceedings of the Somersetshire Archaeological Society, vol. ix., pp. 5, 6.)
- M 141 and 142. These charters appear to belong to the early part of the twelfth century. A Matilda Peverel is stated to have lived in the reign of Henry I. (Testa de Nevill, p. 194.)
- M 143. A.D. 1214.
- M 144. It appears from M 145 that the grantor of this charter was Hugh Peverel. Some of the witnesses occur again as witnesses to No. 140, which is dated 1206. See also M 150.
- M 151. This charter belongs to the period between 1119 and 1129, Ranulph earl of Chester, being alive. It was confirmed by Henry II. (See M 2.) For Robert Fitz Martin, see Round's Geoffrey de Mandeville, p. 94.
- M 152. This charter belongs to the period between 1251 and 1260.
- M 158. William, son of Henry I, was drowned in 1120. Matilda, queen of Henry I, died in 1118. The date of this charter must consequently be between 1120 and 1135, when Henry I died.
- M 160. This charter belongs to the period between 1138 and 1160.
- M 164. This charter must be anterior to Christmas 1122, when Ranulph the chancellor died from a fall from horseback. Alfred de Nichole is doubtless Alfred de Lincoln, the first of that name.

- M 166. This charter belongs to the period between 1119 and 1147.
- M 167 and 168. Stephen de Mandeville is believed to have died about 1147, or at any rate before 1155. (Batten's Historical Notes, South Somerset, p. 114.)
- M 169. This charter belongs to the period between 1091 and 1106. (See note on M 1.)
- M 170. William son of Henry was sheriff from 1226 to 1228.
- M 180. This charter belongs to the period between 1135 and 1166.
- M 181. This charter belongs to the period between 1174 and 1180.
- M 192. The original charter is at Paris, in the Bibliothèque Nationale. The date is September, 1131.
- M 193. This charter belongs to the period between 1114 and 1135.
- M 195. This charter is entered on Charter Roll, 24 Hen. III. m. 3.
- M 33. Gunle is clearly a misreading of Givile, the old name of Yeovil. John Maltravers occurs in 1280 as lord of the manor of Hendford in Yeovil. (Batten's Historical Notes, South Somerset, p. 168.)
